David and Goliath

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

The Navy announced late yesterday that two American motor torpedo boats had "seriously damaged" a Japanese light cruiser during a recent night attack on five enemy warships off the Island of Cebu and had "left it in a sinking condition."

It was the latest exploit of the Navy's famed "mosquito boat" commander, Lieut. John D. Bulkeley, who played a major role in the evacuation of Gen. Douglas MacArthur from Corregidor and won the Navy Cross for two prior sinkings of Japanese ships.

One of Bulkeley's fast, deadly, little vessels was lost, but the other got away, the Navy reported in a communique telling of the David-and-Goliath fight.

Few Guardsmen Flee Bataan

Meanwhile, the War Department announced that only 107 of the some 2500 National Guard troops who were among the troops of Bataan have escaped to Corregidor. The remaining guardsmen, the department added, "are believed to be in the hands of the enemy."

Earlier, the Army reported that the continuous heavy bombardment of Corregidor that began Sunday morning slackened late Monday and that the damage done to the fortress was much less than some here feared at first.

Monday, the late War Department communique said laconically

Nazis Pick Out 20 Frenchmen, Slaughter Them in Cold Blood

By Ralph Heinzen
United Press Staff Writer

Vichy, April 21.—German occupation authorities executed 20 French hostages at St. Nazaire today and repeated an announcement that, in addition to the 30 killed at Rouen yesterday, 80 more would be shot and 1000 deported if the saboteurs of a German troop train were not captured by Thursday.

The new wave of reprisal executions, coinciding with Pierre Laval's return to power and promulgation of a policy of intensified collaboration with Germany, was the most violent since that of last October which followed a series of attacks on German army officers in Occupied France.

Laval motored to Paris this morning for his first conferences with German authorities there since he became chief of government. One of the first persons he saw was Otto Abetz, the Nazi delegate to the occupied capital.

Laval is expected to spend much of his time in Paris where he will maintain a large secretarial staff.

Simultaneously, it was disclosed today that Admiral Darlan, commander in chief of French defense forces, will take up Paris residence in the Elysee Palace, former residence of the presidents of the Third Republic.

(Heinzen's cable did not enlarge upon the statement that Darlan would take up Paris residence. It was presumed, however, that it would be used merely as his headquarters when official business brought him to Paris and that not all of his time would be spent there.)

The mass execution of hostages at St. Nazaire was described as "clean-

Clapper Says:

Chinese Urge Allies Beat Hitler First

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

Returning from a 33,000-mile air journey to the Far East, Raymond Clapper, noted reporter and columnist, said yesterday that China now agrees that the United Nations must first concentrate on beating Germany and then "gang up" on Japan.

This thesis, when enunciated by Secretary of the Navy Knox on January 12, caused considerable dismay among America's allies in the Battle of the Pacific.

The defeat of Germany, Clapper pointed out, would free the American and British navies for the task of facing Japan, and would also make available a great pool of merchant tonnage. The big task meantime, he said, was to hold the line in that part of the world he had visited, to keep open the Indian Ocean, and to prevent a junction of Germany and Japan.

Clapper, who left Washington early in March to fly across the South Atlantic and thence over Africa to Cairo, Calcutta and Chungking, came back with a good part of his wardrobe missing.

He explained that he had merely followed custom in Chungking. Because of the difficulty of getting supplies into Generalissimo Chiang Shai-kek's capital, he said, visitors usually leave behind them articles which they can buy when they return home. So before he left Chungking, he opened up his bags to friends and they relieved him of a suit of clothes, a raincoat, a pair of shoes, socks, underwear and toilet articles such as shaving cream and razor blades.

Reports Alsop in Prison

On his way back, Clapper bought a khaki suit in India and he wore this until he reach Puerto Rico, on the next-to-the-last-leg of his tremendous journey.

While he was in Chungking, Clapper got some news of Joseph

Jittery Japs Sound New Raid Alarms

Nipponese Christians Pray for Peace As Sirens Wail

By the Associated Press

Central and western Japan were held under new air alarm yesterday afternoon, the Berlin radio reported, but the Japanese themselves confined their broadcasts to depreciatory reports on Saturday's raids on four great cities and to hints of a peace offensive in a lengthy account of prayers by Japanese Christians for an early peace.

The German report said that alarms sounded between 4 and 5 p. m. Japanese time (3 and 4 a. m., Eastern War Time), and that "for central Japan the all-clear sounded about 5 p. m., while the alarm remained in force for western Japan, especially for Kyushu."

Kyushu is the most southern and westerly of the four main Japanese islands, nearest China. It has many steel mills, the great Sasebo naval base and the important port of Nagasaki.

Attack Minimized

The German broadcast said nothing of planes or bombs, so the alarms may have been precautionary or nervous reaction to the raids Saturday on Tokyo, Yokohama, Nagoya and Kobe.

The Japanese made several broadcasts about those raids.

One said various ministers reported to the cabinet Tuesday that Japanese life had been affected only in a few instances and to small degree, and that the transportation system was hardly disturbed.

Another, in French, told of two planes being attacked Saturday by Japanese interceptors.

"Shortly after 1 p. m (Saturday), they picked up an enemy plane which seemed to be of the North American B-25 type, flying at less than 1000 meters," said this broadcast

Antiaircraft fire caused the plane to reduce its altitude, the report continued, and "the enemy plane then attacked with machine gun

Executives Face Draft To U. S. Posts

May Be Necessary, Nelson Says, Unless Attacks on $1 Year Men Are Curbed

By Milton Magruder
United Press Staff Writer

The Government may be forced to draft executives for important war posts unless Congress restrains "criticism and veiled illusions" about businessmen, WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson told the Senate Defense Investigating Committee yesterday.

He said much of the Congressional criticism "seems to be based on the fact that they are businessmen—it has gotten to a point where if you know something about a business you are a suspect."

This attitude, he warned, is hampering the activities of his agency.

Reports on WPB

Nelson appeared before the group to report on the work of WPB since it was organized three months ago.

He reported that we are now "over the hump" on production. Everything that we need is now in production and mass production is in sight, he declared.

The productive capacity of the United Nations is now in excess of that of the Axis powers but we still have a reserve to overcome, Nelson explained, pointing out that Japan started producing war materials in 1930, while Germany began in 1933. However, he said that within a few months we will have overcome that reserve advantage.

Most of the session was devoted to the sensitivity of businessmen to criticism from men in public life. Nelson said the executives are reluctant to face these attacks which come as soon as they accept $1-a-year war posts.

"They, perhaps, should be impervious to criticism but they are not," he said.

Truman Reassuring

Chairman Harry S. Truman (Democrat) of Missouri, assured him that Congress is trying to help him in his job. He said "We may kick you around at times, but we are trying to help you." He insisted the $1-a-year men must adopt "an elephant-hide attitude."

Sharp-tongued Senator Tom Connally (Democrat) of Texas, said "These businessmen can stand a bit of sniping if the boys at the front can stand the shooting." Senator Harley M. Kilgore (Democrat) of West Virginia, thought much of the criticism came from small businessmen who feel they are not being treated squarely by some $1-a-year men who formerly were their competitors.

"I haven't seen a man influencing a contract yet," Nelson replied. "He won't last five minutes in WPB if we catch him."

Senator Harold R. Burton (Republican) of Ohio, suggested the executives should regard themselves in the same role as big league baseball players in a park where "everyone feels called upon to pass judgment

U. S. Seizes All Patents Of Enemies

Several Thousand Production Secrets Expected to Aid Our Effort in War

By Robert De Vore
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt has ordered seizure of all patents controlled either directly or indirectly by nations at war with the United States, the Chief Executive announced yesterday.

These carefully guarded keys to production of materials which may make possible the manufacture of better munitions will be made freely available for the "Survival War" of the United Nations as well as for the national needs of America.

Production secrets estimated to number from "several thousand" to 25,000 and believed to be worth "billions" of dollars will be caught in the patents draft, officials said.

Many Already Confiscated

Many enemy-owned patents already have been confiscated by Alien Property Custodian Leo T. Crowley, who has been made responsible for the seizure, the President stated.

Mr. Roosevelt emphasized that, in contrast to the practice at the end of the World War, seized patents will not be handed back to the enemy at the close of World War II.

No technicality will be allowed to bar patents seizure, the President declared. Patent rights can be defined as property, he explained, and seizure accomplished under his emergency war powers. America must take everything it needs, he asserted, because the first thing to do is win the war.

Mr. Roosevelt's announcement came after disclosures of patent-controlling, production-restricting alliances between big American firms and German industries in the main associated with I. G. Farben industrie, the huge Nazi dye and chemical trust.

May Prolong Hearing

Senator Bone (Democrat), of Washington, chairman of the Patents Committee that Monday began a second week of hearings on international industrial alliances, told reporters last night that the White House announcement, in all probability, would prolong rather than shorten the work of his committee.

Bone said the President's action would make it less urgent upon the committee to report out a bill it is now studying, which would authorize Mr. Roosevelt to issue production licenses under any patent, foreign-owned or domestic.

Survey Under Way

"We'll go right ahead," declared Bone, explaining that, in his opinion, the President had "simplified" the committee's problem, giving it time for extended study of permanent revision of existing patent law.

Senator Pepper (Democrat) of Florida, described the President's action as a "salutary and necessary step too long delayed."

Many enemy controlled patents already have come into the posses-

Huge War Fund Passes

House Approves Profit Curb By Contract Renegotiation

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

The House yesterday sidetracked its own rigid 6 per cent limitation of war profits and substituted a conference compromise that diverted to tax legislation the problem of recapturing excessive profits.

The compromise, legalizing departmental renegotiation of contracts to recoup big war gains, but rejecting percentage limits, shot through the House on a $19,151,397,010 war bill aimed at new production goals.

Chairman Cannon of the Appropriations committee told the House that America is already overshooting its production time tables and is turning out munitions at a rate that "staggers the imagination."

"As a result we are already reaching a turn in the war," Cannon said. "We have now outdistanced the enemy in production and are producing as much war material as Germany, Italy and Japan combined. In the last week we have taken the initiative and have passed from a defensive to an offensive war."

Coincident with House action, Chairman Doughton, of the Ways and Means Committee called his House taxing group into executive session today on the seven to nine billion dollars war tax program. Doughton said he will ask that corporation taxes and excess profits levies receive "earliest possible" consideration.

Treasury recommendations call for an increase in the maximum rate of the excess profits tax from 60 to 75 per cent, with corresponding increases all along the line, but the President's forthcoming anti-inflationary program is expected to ask a further stepup in the profits rate.

The conference formula approved by the House provides for renegotiation of contracts to recapture ex-

Roosevelt Program Also Would, in Effect, Freeze Pay Through Labor Board Action

By Cecil B. Dickson
(Copyright by the Chicago Sun)

President Roosevelt will submit the most drastic antiinflation program in American history to the Congress and the Nation probably on next Monday night.

His sweeping program still is subject to revision, but the basis of it is:

A 99 per cent excess profits tax on all corporation profits in excess of 6 per cent, with the 6 per cent subject to normal taxes and surtaxes.

A limit of either $25,000 or $50,000 on individual income, all the remainder to go to the Government.

A directive to the War Labor Board prohibiting any increases in wages.

Rationing of consumer goods.

Continuation of voluntary savings by purchase of war bonds.

Continuation of voluntary mobilization of man and woman power, except for military purposes with that applying only to men.

Machinery Broken Down

Mr. Roosevelt is represented as feeling that it is imperative to take these steps to curb the present soaring inflation, now admittedly out of hand. Existing anti-inflation machinery has broken down.

Living costs have increased an average of 12 per cent in the last 12 months. With new millions of workers going into high wage war industries, the consumption power will be increased tremendously as supplies of consumer goods sharply diminish.

In certain cases, prices of medicines have increased 300 per cent,

U. S. to Call Nation's Youth To Aid Farmers

College, High School Students of Both Sexes to Be Recruited

By Christine Sadler
Post Staff Writer

As a "third line of defense," America's high school and college students will be called into farm service this summer to replace men gone into military service and also workers drawn away to larger paying war production jobs.

Getting them down on the farm will be the job of Man Power Mobilizer Paul V. McNutt, who yesterday announced both boys and girls would be recruited and that registration would be made through the United States Employment Service.

Studebaker to Take Hand

To avail themselves of this youth power, local sponsors and cooperating agencies must insure adequate housing facilities, suitable working conditions and proper supervision.

The Employment Service has been instructed to learn how many students may be needed for the peak seasons and to work out a plan for recruiting and for any training courses that may be necessary.

John W. Studebaker, Commissioner of the United States Office of Education, will ask school superintendents to determine the number of students who can be called on in emergencies and report to the employment agencies.

Wages paid will be worked out locally between the employment agency and farmers, who will foot the bill. Only where real shortages exist will the bringing in of "outsiders" be permitted officially.

Job Priority Urged

No labor union will be formed in connection with the youth program nor be utilized in furthering it, McNutt's office said last night. Nor will workers be required to be union members.

In the meantime plans to recruit women for the second line of defense continued. Mary Anderson, chief of the Women's Bureau, stated

Gallup Poll

Public Would Up Taxes by 2 Weeks' Pay

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., April 21.—With only a third of American families at present paying Federal income taxes, one of the most controversial issues of the next few weeks will be whether to lower the exemptions in such a way as to make the middle third pay as well as the top third.

While nobody enjoys paying taxes, there is much evidence to show that the majority of Americans who are now exempt from the income levy are ready and willing to pay an income tax amounting each year to as much as two weeks' salary or wages.

The willingness of the people to make such a contribution toward the war is reflected in the views which they themselves have given in an American Institute of Public Opinion poll from coast to coast. As Congress prepares to go to work soon on the new revenue bill, the poll put this question to a cross-section of all employed persons:

"In order to help pay the cost of the war, would you be willing to pay a tax of about two weeks' salary per year, in addition to all other taxes that you pay?"

The national results are:

YES	64%
NO	31
UNDECIDED	5

The upper income group, which contains the country's present income tax payers, indicates its willingness by a substantial majority to pay an extra two weeks' salary, the vote for that group being 69 per cent in favor, 27 per cent opposed and 4 per cent undecided.

The lower income group, the great bulk of which is now exempt from income levies, also indicates a readiness to make this contribution. Of those reached in the survey in the lower income group, 59

Looms Ordered Converted for War

The War Production Board yesterday took an initial step toward eventual forced conversion of about 88 per cent of the cotton textile industry to war or essential civilian production.

It ordered from 20 to 100 per cent of the weaving looms in textile mills now producing various civilian cotton fabrics shifted to manufacture of bagging for sand bags, camouflage cloth and food and agriculture bags. The mills were granted 60 days in which to make the shift.

Grand Jury Recalls Baxter After Prophecy of U. S. Revolt

By Dillard Stokes
Post Staff Writer

David Baxter, leader in the secret, revolutionist Social Republic Society, was called back before the special grand jury on Axis agents yesterday, by a subpena served as he was about to leave Washington to speak in Chicago and Lima, Ohio.

Baxter told reporters America is ripe for revolution and that if this does not come through political means it eventually will come by violence.

Then, said Baxter, although his armed "Socis" do not advocate violence, his followers in every State will seize control and set up a provisional government. That will be the end, said Baxter, of the "unbridled majority dictatorship of democracy," after which a "strictly constitutional republic" will be set up.

Baxter was called here from his home in San Bernadino, Calif., two weeks ago, after it came to light that the hidden leadership of the "Socis" was using the United States mails to indoctrinate its followers in revolutionist tactics and to "warn" them to collect arms for an "emergency."

Until he was threatened with jail for contempt of court, Baxter refused to name the "chancellor" of the "Socis," and then said he would do so only in the grand jury chamber, which is secret.

Roosevelt Tells All—

U. S. Planes That Bombed Japs Were Based at—Shangri La

Sh-h-h!

President Roosevelt told a press conference yesterday how he had revealed the secret base of the American planes that bombed Tokyo. His confidante, he said, was a sweet young thing who attended a White House dinner, and asked him to tell all.

He said he told her the secret base was Shangri-La (the fictional Utopia in James Hilton's "Lost Horizon"). The President said that she believed him.

"Mr. President," a reporter asked, "is this the same young lady who——"

A roar of laughter swept the President's office, in which the Chief Executive joined. The reporter had in mind another sweet young thing who, according to the President, asked him several weeks ago how Gen. MacArthur escaped, and was told that he had rowed a boat from Bataan to Australia.

The President said sweet young thing, as used in his parable, was a generic term. His refusal to talk about the Tokyo bombing, the silence of Army and Navy men, and the apparent bewilderment of the Japanese themselves, indicated that it would be a long time before the secret was disclosed.

Cuffs Banned on Jodhpurs, Too

WPB Approves Bias Sleeves, Cuts Flap Off Blouse Pocket

In a series of amendments to the original order, the War Production Board yesterday told the Nation's women a little more about what they can and cannot wear during wartime.

The prohibition against cuffs on slacks was extended to riding breeches, jodhpurs, ski pants, play suits, overalls and coveralls.

Bias sleeves, originally prohibited, are now permitted—except when the cloth is plaid.

A blouse made of any material may not have more than one patch pocket, and that must not have a flap.

Fur trimmings may be used with a wool cloth lining when the wool under the fur is an integral part of the body of the coat.

The top of a two-piece dress is required to conform with the length restrictions imposed on jackets.

A jacket may have a two-piece back with a belt attached, provided the belt is stitched on in such a way that there is not more than a half inch of overlay of wool cloth on wool cloth at the upper and lower side of the belt.

A schedule of maximum sweeps for suit skirts is added. It permits a sweep of 78 inches for size 16, and corresponding sweeps for other sizes.

MacArthur Names Bataan Aides to His Australian Staff

Forde Finds War Turning In Our Favor

By the Associated Press

United States Army Headquarters in Australia, April 21.—Gen. Douglas MacArthur selected today a staff headed up by his old comrades of the Philippine campaign and formally began his tour of duty as supreme Allied commander of the southwest Pacific by issuing his first military communique for this entire theater.

Meanwhile, Australian Army Minister Francis M. Forde issued today one of the most heartening declarations since first the enemy's shadow began to fall to the south from the Dutch East Indies. Speaking at Rockhampton, Forde declared:

"The war has turned in our favor. "We will not rest until we are at full strength and our forces are fully equipped.

Offensive Is Prepared

"When the Allied offensive against the Axis is unfolded it will be a staggering spectacle. The day for it to be unleashed is not yet here, but it is not too far off."

Nevertheless the minister predicted that the war would be long and that there would be more Allied reverses.

"To think that the Japanese will concentrate on India and not come here would be foolishness," he added. "We must be prepared for the worst."

General MacArthur selected as his chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Richard K. Sutherland, 48, of Washington, D. C.; and as deputy chief of staff, Brig. Gen. Richard J. Marshall, 46, a Virginian.

Their chief assistants, also all Americans:

Personnel, Col. Charles P. Stivers; military intelligence, Col. Charles A. Willoughby; operations and training, Brig. Gen. Stephen J. Chamberlain; supply, Col. Lester J. Whitlock; adjutant general, Col. Burdette M. Fitch.

Allied Officers Selected

Other members of the new staff include Col. H. F. H. Durant, of the Australian Army; Lieut. Col. J. M. R. Sandberg, of the Royal N. E. I. Army; Lieut. Col. John D. Rogers, of the Australian Army.

There will be no officially designated deputy supreme commander, but it was stated that Australian Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey, commander of all Allied land forces, was by seniority second to MacArthur.

Of the Americans on the general staff, four—Sutherland, Marshall, Stivers and Willoughby—served with MacArthur on Bataan.

The supreme commander's first communique did not cover action of today—a raid by nine heavy Japanese bombers and six fighters on Port Moresby in New Guinea and a heavy Allied assault on the enemy base of Rabaul on New Britain Island.

First Communique

General MacArthur's communique No. 1 listed these operations:

"N. E. I.—Koepang: Our aircraft executed a successful night reconnaissance combined with bombing attacks Saturday on satellite airdromes in this area.

"New Britain—Rabaul: An Allied air attack Sunday resulted in direct hits on ships, wharves, runways and airdrome installations. Our units also attacked flying boats and transports by machine-gun strafing. The opposition developed strong fighter interception. One type Zero Japanese fighter was shot down and another probably damaged.

"New Guinea—Port Moresby: Saturday morning our fighters intercepted an enemy raid by five Zero fighters. One enemy plane was shot down and another damaged.

"Salamaua, New Guinea: Allied bombers attacked Salamaua Airdrome on Monday, damaging hangars and headquarters buildings and destroying a fuel dump."

The Germans asked the French subprefect of St. Nazaire to pick 20 of his townsmen for the firing squad.

Admiral Darlan issued his first order of the day, which said:

"As I now no longer have to fulfill the task which I had shouldered from a sense of discipline and patriotism, I shall be able to devote my full time and my whole energies to my comrades. Count on me, as I count on you, to go the way of honor and to defend the empire under the high authority of Marshal Petain."

Three-Day Curfew Ordered for Paris

Berlin (From German broadcasts), April 21 (AP).—The German radio announced tonight that as a result of the slaying in Paris of a sergeant of the French volunteers against Russia, all theaters, movies and places of entertainment in the occupied French capital were being closed from 2 p. m. today until 5 p. m. April 24. Street traffic must cease by 11 p. m. instead of at midnight as heretofore.

The sergeant, named Roland, was shot in the Rue Erlanger by an unknown assailant.

Chinese Free British From Burma Trap

By the Associated Press

New Delhi, India, April 21.—Heartened by the first Allied victory of the Burma campaign—recapture of the desolated oil center of Yenanyaung and rescue of 3000 encircled British troops—Chinese and British forces held firmly today to a line running westward from the 3000-foot heights of Mount Popa to the broad Irawaddy River.

A British communique confirmed that the Chinese under the American Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell had joined British armored forces in an attack which drove the Japanese back southward from Yenanyaung, where the British had destroyed 3000 oil wells last week to keep them from the hands of the invaders.

British Escape Trap

As a result, the communique said, the British main forces were enable to move northward across the Pinchaung River, which starts on the steep slopes of Mount Popa and plunges quickly down to the Irrawaddy almost at sea level just above Yenanyaung.

The Chinese remained in occupation of Yenanyaung.

While the British communique said no further action had been reported by them since yesterday's attack, a Chinese spokesman in Chungking declared severe fighting still was in progress.

Hailing the Yenanyaung Battle as a brilliant victory, British military sources warned that the long-term position in Burma appeared little improved even though the immediate situation was "considerably relieved."

Concern Over Eastern Drive

Both the British and Chinese indicated some concern lest Japanese attacks farther east lay open the left flank of the Irrawaddy front.

Reinforced Japanese troops were reported attacking the Chinese in the Sittang River area at Lewi, ten miles southwest of Pyinmana, with artillery shelling extended as far north as Aing, ten miles north of Lewi.

Japanese success in that zone would endanger Chinese-British positions around Taungdwingyi, on the 1500-foot ridge which separates the valleys of the Irrawaddy and the Sittang.

The Chinese, however, were giving stubborn battle, and in addition were reported sending reinforcements down the Salween River to support the troops holding up the Japanese drive toward Loikaw in the Shan States. The Japanese have made a slight northward advance, but still are about 50 miles below Loikaw, the Chinese said.

Pistols and Bullets Stolen From Store

Forty-three pistols of various design, a number of knives and a large amount of ammunition were stolen from the Atlas Sporting Goods Co., 927 D Street Northwest, early yesterday morning, police were told.

Ollie Atlas, manager, 916 Emerson Street Northwest, reported that entrance was gained through a skylight. He placed his loss at $807.

U. S. Air Units Readied for EuropeanRaids

By the United Press

London, April 21.—Heavy bombers of the United States Air Force, the first of the all-American striking units which will soon fly wing-to-wing with the R. A. F. against the Nazi continent, are being ferried to British operational bases, it was reported reliably tonight.

Any day now, the British expect to see the red, white and blue star insignia of the United States planes, and air correspondents of the national press are saying that the planes and their American crews will make Britain "the world's greatest air base."

This fruition of plans for joint air action is the most noticeable consequence of the visit here of Gen. George C. Marshall, the United States chief of staff. Before he flew back to the United States, General Marshall said that United States Air Force units soon would be at all fields in all parts of Britain and that United States troops in the British Isles would participate in British Commando raids on Nazi-held European coasts.

The first United States planes—to be flown and probably serviced by Americans—are understood to be big bombers capable of flying the Atlantic and going into service quickly after mechanical tune-ups and establishment of base facilities, which will be provided largely ready-made by the British.

To follow by ship will be medium bombers and possibly dive-bombers, which some commentators long have regarded as the R. A. F.'s greatest need.

At the receiving end of this imminent combined offensive action, the German occupying forces in northern France, the Netherlands and Denmark were reported by Dutch sources today to be building up a bicycle army to combat invasion thrusts from the British Isles.

Dutchmen escaping from the Netherlands said cycle factories in the Low Countries and Denmark were working at top speed on German army orders.

This move was said to be motivated by the need to speed up infantry transport while the bulk of Nazi trucks and cars are being used on the Russian front.

Likewise the Norwegian Telegraph Agency said that several more divisions of German troops, including an armored force, had been sent to Norway to guard against invasion.

Defenses were said to have been especially strengthened and extensive mining carried out in the Bodo area, below the Commando-raided Lofoten Islands, and all possible landing places in the Trondheim and Narvik vicinities were said to have been barricaded with concrete strongpoints and barbed wire.

Critics Hamper WPB, Nelson Says

pro and con on everything they do."

"Yes, but they do not challenge his honesty if he makes an error," Nelson retorted.

Belief that much of the criticism would be eliminated was expressed by Senator James M. Mead (Democrat) of New York, who told Nelson that "your growing pains will soon be behind you."

"The criticism of the future won't be as severe as of the past," he promised.

Truman ended the discussion by threatening to pillory businessmen who refuse war jobs.

"When a man does not want to come, just give us his name," he said. "We will bring him down here and if he fears criticism we will give it to him first and let him go to work."

Nelson submitted a report made by John Lord O'Brian, WPB general counsel, with respect to the recent resignation of Robert R. Guthrie as a WPB branch chief.

Nelson told the committee that he accepted Guthrie's resignation when it was offered because in his opinion Guthrie was not a good administrator, and was impeding the war production program.

Attempt by Sea

Wavell Waits Jap Landing, In India

By the United Press

New Delhi, April 21.—Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, British commander in chief in India, said today the United Nations have massed powerful air and land striking forces for the defense of India, and that in time "not far distant" they will have the sea power to drive the Japanese from the Indian Ocean.

Until the Allied sea power can be brought into play, however, he said in a radio speech, the enemy may attempt to land on the Indian Coast.

Air Attack Expected

He said the Japanese would find India defended "by a powerful air striking force which will attack enemy ships as they aproach and by a land striking force which will be concentrated rapidly against the threatened point."

Broadcasting to allay fears over the aproach of the Japanese and remove doubt about the ability of the defenders to resist them successfully, Wavell said the "immediate danger is that of air attack."

But, he added:

"It is not in the power of the Japanese to bring air attack against the cities of India on anything approaching the scale, in intensity or continuity, of the German attack against Britain or of our air attack against Germany.

"I can tell you that our defenses by fighter aircraft and antiaircraft guns already in the most threatened quarters of India are strong enough to cause Japanese raiders heavier losses than they yet have suffered elsewhere."

Jap Losses at Ceylon Cited

As evidence, he cited the loss by the enemy in attacking Colombo and Trincomalee, both on Ceylon, on April 5 and 9, when 92 Japanese planes reportedly were shot down or damaged. He continued:

"Let nothing that has happened in Malaya or Burma shake your faith in the fighting powers of the British or Indian soldier, or lead you to think highly of the Japanese."

He added that "four of the toughest and most enduring races in the world" are fighting together—the British, Chinese, Russians and Americans.

The Japanese "may raid India," he said. "They may even seek to occupy a portion temporarily. So long as India remains true to herself, she can never be conquered."

Roosevelt Reviews War Fronts With Pacific, United Nations Chiefs

Beaverbrook, Hopkins Call On President

By the Associated Press

In an unusual series of conferences, which included the fourth meeting of the Pacific War Council, President Roosevelt yesterday reviewed the war situation from the thawing plains of Russia to the far reaches of Australia.

Besides the Pacific council, composed of representatives of the seven nations battling Japanese aggression, these United Nations' representatives called upon Mr. Roosevelt in almost unbroken procession:

Russian Ambassador Maxim Litvinoff; the Chinese Foreign Minister, Dr. T. V. Soong, accompanied by Lieut. Gen. Hsiung, chief of a military mission to this country; Minister Alexander Loudon of the Netherlands, with Lieut. Gov. Gen. Hubertus J. Van Mook, of the Dutch East Indies.

Dutch Still Resisting

Dr. Van Mook, told reporters afterward that "I think at least the (Japanese) march to the southeast has been stopped for the time being."

He said the Dutch still were resisting in the East Indies and that a number of Dutch air and naval forces had reached Australia.

Between times, Lord Beaverbrook, in charge of British supply activities here, and Harry L. Hopkins, war supply adviser to the President, lunched with the Chief Executive.

Hopkins also appeared before the War Council and later members described his report on his recent visit to Great Britain as "interesting and encouraging." Hopkins and Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, returned to the United States Sunday after two weeks of conferences with United Nations' leaders in London.

'Everybody More Cheerful'

The council meeting brought from Dr. Soong the comment that "We are progressing," while Leighton McCarthy, Canadian Minister to the United States, asserted that "I think we all agree we are getting places. Everybody seems to be more cheerful."

What was said at the various conferences was, of course, a military secret of the highest order, but it seemed obvious that the war situation, and especially its industrial production and supply aspects, were given a close scrutiny.

In the House, Reresentative Cannon (Democrat), Missouri, of the House Appropriations Committee, said the United States alone was now producing as much war materials as Germany, Japan and Italy combined and had passed from the defensive to the offensive.

fire and, flying close to the ground, fled along a certain river.

"The enemy plane then climbed but was attacked again over Oshima Island (60 miles southwest of Tokyo) at 1500 meters. It caught fire and lost altitude gradually, finally disappearing in the clouds. But from the circumstances it appears the plane must have fallen into the sea."

Then a Lieutenant Umegawa was quoted on the other encounter as follows:

"When we were flying over Mito we picked up an enemy plane of a Lockheed-Hudson type . . . flying at low altitude. We launched a violent attack and followed the plane to Higata, in Chiba Prefecture (the peninsula separating Tokyo Bay from the Pacific), where the plane, in flames, fled toward the sea, losing altitude.

"Because of lack of fuel my plane could not follow, but I think the enemy plane must have fallen into the sea."

The Tokyo radio also said Premier Tojo would leave Wednesday on a tour of industrial establishments in Miye Prefecture, a district some 250 miles west of Tokyo and containing many war industries.

The Japanese broadcast on prayers for peace quoted Toyohiko Kagawa, most famous Japanese Christian leader, as saying that more than 200 Japanese Christians prayed day and night for a week before the outbreak of war and that even now "prayers are being said daily for an early conclusion of the war and restoration of peace throughout the world."

This broadcast might be a cautious feeler in a "peace offensive" of the type which Archibald MacLeish, director of the Federal Office of Facts and Figures, predicted Monday the Axis would launch this summer.

Kagawa has lectured widely in the United States and his books have had some circulation in this country, so Japanese leaders could be counting on his reputation to gain a hearing for such an offensive.

The broadcast said Kagawa declared the prewar prayers were started in response to an appeal made by Bishop Stanley Jones of the Methodist Church and well-known American writer. Dr. Kagawa received a cablegram from Bishop Jones exactly a week before war broke out, asking Japanese to participate in a period of prayer for prevention of catastrophe in the Pacific."

The broadcast said more than 200 members of the Japanese Methodist Church immediately began day and night prayer meetings in the Kanda Methodist Church in Tokyo and that even though "war was unavoidable despite the efforts of the Japanese envoys at Washington," prayers were continuing at present.

The 53-year-old Kagawa, an alumnus of Princeton Theological Seminary, lectured in the United States in 1925, 1931 and 1935-36. On the last occasion he was at first refused entry because he was suffering from trachoma, a contagious disease of the eyes, but finally was admitted under a special ruling of the Immigration Bureau.

Mrs. O'Hare Hangs Nation's Highest Award On Hero Husband as President Beams

PRESIDENT HONORS HERO—President Roosevelt handed the Congressional Medal of Honor to the pretty bride of Lieut. Edward H. O'Hare at the White House yesterday and she placed it around her husband's neck as the President shook the naval flying hero's hand. The President also promoted him to lieutenant commander and cited him for knocking out six planes of a Japanese bomber formation as it attacked his carrier. In the background are Secretary of Navy Knox (left) and Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the United States Fleet

BARRIE BURNSIDE

By the Associated Press

Sydney, Australia, April 21.—Though partly shot up by Japanese fighter planes and with every member of its crew injured except the pilot, a United States bomber succeeded in reaching its home field, it was disclosed today.

Wounded members of the crew shifted their weight to counterbalance the loss of an elevator and help Pilot Barrie Burnside, of Janesville, Wis., bring his craft home.

The two-engined bomber had completed its mission over New Guinea when a Japanese fighter squadron turned all its firepower on it.

Every man but Burnside was wounded, the elevator smashed, and the propeller feathering apparatus shot away.

Burnside helped the copilot out of his seat, took over what were left of the riddled controls and managed to straighten the plane out barely 100 feet above the sea.

Enemy fighters, watching its crazy dive, evidently had marked the plane off as smashed and had departed.

Then one engine failed. Burnside asked his woundtd crewmen to shift toward the tail to trim the wobbling plane.

Although they were painfully hurt, they obeyed and helped again when their base was sighted by jettisoning all extra equipment and spreading out fore and aft for the landing.

The whole length of the bomber's metal skin had been perforated.

Man Who Got 6 Jap Planes Is Now a Lieutenant Commander

International News Service Staff Writer

The Happy O'Hares hung up another record yesterday when Lieut. Comdr. Edward H. (Butch) O'Hare became the first hero ever to receive the Nation's highest award, the Congressional Medal of Honor, from the hands of his wife while the President of the United States beamed his approval of the sentimental ceremonial at the White House.

The lieutenant commander hung up the first O'Hare record over the Pacific last February. There he shot down five, and possibly six, Japanese planes in "one of the most daring, if not the most daring single action in the history of combat aviation," as described in the citation read by the President himself "to the grave young man, who seemed a trifle embarrassed to have stirred up so much fuss.

Not only the Congressional Medal "for gallantry and intrepidity beyond the call of duty" was awarded O'Hare by his Commander in Chief, but the 28-year-old naval officer was promoted from the rank of lieutenant (junior grade) to that of lieutenant commander.

The President, in fine fettle and obviously relishing his job, conferred the medal in the presence of Secretary of the Navy Knox, Admiral Ernest J. King and other Navy brass hats who made no attempt to suppress smiles that can only be described as broadside.

Mrs. O'Hara, a bride of nine months, was the only woman present. A very pretty blonde girl in a bright red draped turban, a blue tailleur and a white blouse, she stood shyly in the background until President Roosevelt had difficulty unfastening the clasp of the pale blue ribbon from which the Congressional Medal is suspended.

"You can do this better than I," the President beamed as he beckoned the surprised Mrs. O'Hare forward and handed the medal to her.

"You put it on while I shake hands with him," the President said. Mrs. O'Hare's slim white fingers worked furiously at the clasp, which finally parted. Then, proud, excited and close to tears, she hung the ribbon around the neck of the country's ace pilot, as President Roosevelt pumped his hand.

As the President notified him of his promotion to the rank of lieutenant commander, O'Hare said gravely:

"Thank you very much, sir. That's very nice."

The Navy Department indicated last night that Lieutenant Commander O'Hare would be here another 48 hours at least

War Sidelights

Poles Bring 'Amazons' To Africa

Cairo, April 21 (AP).—A new army of many thousands of Poles from Russia has arrived in the Near East to swell the Allied forces in this region.

In Russian camps since the collapse of Poland, these soldiers now are clad in uniforms supplied by Britain.

Their commander is Gen. Wladyslaw Anders, who had charge of all Polish forces in Russia.

Accompanying the troops was a woman's corps garbed also in British battledress with breeches and military boots. They are not combatants but are assigned to jobs of danger and difficulty, such as driving trucks and ambulances at the front.

'Quisling' in Tulips

London, April 21 (AP).—The Netherlands government-in-exile in a broadcast tonight to the Nazi-occupied homeland assailed Derek Jan de Geer, Dutch premier at the time of the German invasion, as a "traitor" and a "tool for his people's enemy."

The broadcast said De Geer, who returned to the Netherlands from London late in 1940 to join his ailing wife, had written a pamphlet which the Nazis were permitting to circulate and which "is a crafty plea for a compromise peace."

De Geer also was accused of twice breaking his word: First, when he went back to the Netherlands via Lisbon and Berlin at a time when he had accepted a mission from the exile government to the Dutch Indies and second, because he promised when he got back to Holland that he would live as a "forgotten citizen."

Money 'Worries' Yanks

Melbourne, April 21 (AP).—United States soldiers, accustomed (occasionally) to dollar bills, soon may be provided with an Australian equivalent.

The commonwealth government disclosed today it was considering an issue of five-shilling notes, partly to meet the desire of the Americans for bills of lower denomination than the current 10-shilling note and partly to meet an extreme shortage of coins.

(There are 20 shillings to a pound. The Australian pound has an official value of $3.23.)

Coroner Continues Accident Probe

Investigation into the death of William Kendrick, 20, of 4421 Ord Street Northwest, who was killed in a 40-foot fall at the MacMillan Reservior Monday, was continued last night by Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald.

The coroner said a death certificate will be withheld until today.

Kendrick fell to his death when a boom hoist collapsed, according to the police report. He was employed by the United States Engineer Department and was hauling bags of lime from the ground to the top of the silo with a block and tackle. When a rope broke he became entangled and was thrown to the ground, it was stated.

Hitler's Spring Drive Off Now, Prisoners Say

By the Associated Press

Kuibyshev, April 21.—The Russians reported today that Adolf Hitler's once bright hopes for a spring offensive, by the admission of his own Soviet-captured officers, have all but vanished under the haunting fear of a British-American thrust in the west.

Soviet authorities said their own predictions that the threatened Nazi offensive would come in the summer instead of the spring—if it comes at all—had been borne out by statements of a Major Bittner, captive German transport officer.

The Russians said this officer related that the specter of double trouble—war on two fronts—had seeped into the German high command itself and that Nazi hopes of big spring operations were growing dim.

Writers See Prisoners

Prisoners seen by foreign correspondents and information gathered by the Russians show that the main force of the German army, whittled down by the Red Army's winter operations, now is made up of reserves who are family men over 30 instead of the youths originally thrown into the Battle of Russia.

On the fighting fronts, meanwhile, the Russians were reported attacking Smolensk, center of German military power, under cover of an artillery bombardment with the Nazi defenders foundering in swampy forest areas.

The Moscow radio announced that General Zhukov's troops approaching Smolensk from the northeast repulsed several fierce enemy counterattacks, killing 1800 Germans in two days. In one day five Soviet snipers were credited with bagging 108 Nazis.

(The German high command said that on the central front a "fairly weak" Soviet group had been encircled and annihilated.)

Press Drive in Finland

The Russians stepped up the tempo of assaults against Finnish lines on the Aunus Isthmus with fresh troops from Siberia. (Stockholm advices quoted the Finns as saying the heaviest fighting of the war was in progress there.)

(In Helsinki, a Finnish military report said the Russian offensive—now in its tenth day—still had gotten nowhere and that during the day six Soviet attacks were repulsed.)

The army newspaper Red Star related that "new reserves" to bolster the Red armies were flowing to the front along roads "full of marching companies."

It carried an article by a guerilla warrior named Arkadi asserting the day "is not far distant when the Red army will tear Pskov from the chains imposed on the city by Hitler gangsters."

Pskov is on the Northwestern Front, near the Estonian border and was the base for Alexander Nevsky's armies which defeated Scandinavian and German invaders in the thirteenth century.

Moslem Found Guilty Of Violating Draft Act

Harry M. Craighead, 25-year-old Negro, was found guilty of violating the Selective Service Act by a District Court jury yesterday after 45 minutes of deliberation.

Accused of refusing to report for his physical examination, Craighead gave as his excuse the fact that he was a member of a local Moslem sect and opposed to war on religious principles.

John W. Miller, 26, has already been convicted on the same charge.

HOLC Loans Shrink

Outstanding loans of the Home Owners Loan Corporation have declined 187 million dollars in the last year. On February 28 they totaled $1,742,000,000, compared with a peak of about 3 billion dollars in 1936.

In Vichy Hospital

Mrs. Leahy, Wife of U. S. Envoy, Dies

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

MRS. WILLIAM D. LEAHY, wife of the United States Ambassador to France, died yesterday at Vichy. She underwent a major operation last week

Mrs. William D. Leahy, 66, wife of the United States Ambassador to France, died unexpectedly in a Vichy hospital yesterday, the Associated Press reported.

Death, attributed to an embolism, followed a major operation undergone 12 days ago and from which she was apparently well on the road to recovery. Monday night she and Admiral Leahy discussed plans for leaving the hospital.

It was due to Mrs. Leahy's illness that Admiral Leahy postponed his return to the United States when he was recalled last week "for consultation" upon Pierre Laval's assumption of control of the French government.

Admiral Leahy was at his wife's bedside at her death. Other survivors are a son, Lieut. Comdr. William Harrington Leahy, United States naval officer attached to the London Embassy; a sister, Mrs. Albert P. Niblack, of 2129 Florida Avenue Northwest, Washington, and two grandchildren.

Mrs. Leahy had been active in Washington's social life and Red Cross work during her husband's frequent tours of duty here since 1912, when the present French Ambassador first came to the Capital for duty as assistant director of target practice and engineering competitions in the Navy Department.

In later years the Leahys maintained a residence at 2168 Florida Avenue Northwest, where they entertained frequently. When Admiral Leahy was made chief of naval operations in 1937 they moved to a stately old red brick house at the Naval Observatory.

Mrs. Leahy was particularly active in work of the Navy Relief Society and the Red Cross Gray Ladies. She was first chairman of the Naval Hospital Gray Ladies unit, serving in 1930 and 1931. She also took a leading part in affairs of St. Thomas' Episcopal Church, where she had held a pew for 20 years.

In addition, she was a member of the Sulgrave Club, and in 1939 served on an advisory committee of the New York World's Fair.

Born Louise Tennant Harrington in San Francisco, daughter of a banker, Mrs. Leahy attended school in San Francisco, France and Baltimore before her marriage in 1904 at San Francisco.

In nearly 40 years as a naval officer's wife she accompanied her husband to many of his shore posts and joined residents in community activities.

In Puerto Rico in 1939 and 1940, while Admiral Leahy was Governor of the West Indian Island possession, she worked with welfare agencies in seeking to improve conditions among children and working women. She was honorary president of the Notre Dame Day Nursery there and an honorary member of the Society of Women Graduates of the University of Puerto Rico and of the Puerto Rico Chapter of the League of American Pen Women.

In her 16 months as first lady of the American Embassy at Vichy, Mrs. Leahy had acquired a reputation for social work and one of her last public acts was to make a large donation to the Red Cross.

Immediately after her death the Embassy's register was signed in condolence by the French government chief of protocol in the name of Laval and by Admiral Jean Darlan, chief of the armed forces.

From Washington, Secretary of State Hull sent this message to Ambassador Leahy: "Mrs. Hull and I were greatly distressed and pained by the sad news which has just reached us. We are grieving with you in the great loss which you have suffered in serving your country and send you our very deepest sympathy."

Hull 'Invites' French Revolt Against Laval

Secretary of State Cordell Hull yesterday virtually invited the people of France to rebel against active collaboration with the Axis as promulgated by the government headed by Pierre Laval.

The Secretary recalled his own statement of last June 13 declaring that the people of France and the United States have a common interest in preventing collaboration, and gave the statement new point. That statement of almost a year ago, said Hull, now should stand more emphatically and acutely than heretofore.

"It remains to be seen," the June 13 statement had said, "whether the French people accept this preposterous status and thus pave the way for them to find themselves assisting Hitler as his co-belligerents in his desperate effort to conquer Great Britain and secure control of the high seas.

"In the prevention of such a possibility, both the French people and the people of the United States have a common interest of tremendous importance to the future."

Hull said at his press conference that the United States as yet has received no confirmation of a deal disclosed Monday night by the Chicago Sun under which Vichy would turn over 50,000 tons of shipping to Japan for use in the Far East. Hull's statement, however, said merely that the department has not received information that the deal has been closed, and he made no effort to deny that the department was well aware that such an agreement had been in process of negotiation.

Free French circles in London, however, disclosed yesterday that the deal now has been closed, and placed the total figure at around 60,000 tons of merchant shipping, a priceless gain for Japan in the Far East where her transport facilities are taxed to the breaking point.

A new demand for military action against Vichy to protect America's supply routes developed yesterday in the House. Representative Carl Hinshaw (Republican), California, demanded that the United Nations seize Madagascar to prevent its capture by Japan or Germany.

"Madagascar is the key to India, the Persian Gulf, Egypt and Asia Minor," Hinshaw told the House. "For Madagascar to fall into unfriendly hands would be a tragedy of the first magnitude to the United Nations in the fight for freedom."

Bank Failures Few

The Federal Reserve Board reports that in the first two months of 1942 two banks with deposits of $176,000 between them failed. Both were insured. In all of 1941 there were eight failures of banks, whose deposits totaled $3,726,000.

freeze wages have been fought bitterly by the C. I. O. and A. F. of L. As new developments have come into the economic picture, new problems have had to be tackled.

Voluntary Effort Stressed

The President is said to be determined that the Nation be geared to win the war but he wants as little compulsion and as much voluntary cooperation as possible.

Thus, the Nation's man power and woman power, except man power needed for military purposes, is to be continued on a voluntary basis.

Likewise, voluntary contributions in the nature of investment in war bonds will be continued despite demands for compulsory savings.

This voluntary phase of the program is to be tried out for several months, probably until next January, and after the November Congressional elections.

The 99 per cent excess profits proposal is regarded as an answer to demands in Congress and among the people, particularly labor, against any war millionaires being created.

It would be retroactive to January 1, 1942, and would eliminate the alternative of using the average earning basis—1937-39, as a means of determining excess profits.

The figure 99 was reported arrived at because a 100 per cent levy might be considered in violation of the Constitution's provisions against confiscation. It would recoup millions in profits made by war contractors.

Under the Administration's pending $7,610,000,000 war revenue program, now pending before the House Ways and Means Committee, the new proposed excess profits tax minimum is 75 per cent. However, Secretary Morgenthau proposed that the present 24 per cent normal corporation tax and the 7 per cent surtax be increased to a total of 55 per cent.

A final decision had yet to be reached on whether the limit on individual income should be $25,000 or $50,000, in view of State income taxes and the effect it would have on the employment of domestics by persons of middle and upper bracket incomes.

Also undecided was whether the limitation would be applied to net incomes or gross incomes, before taxes are deducted.

England has a top limit of $26,000 on individual income, this being the maximum amount the wealthiest Briton is allowed to keep. Anything above that goes to the government.

Various Methods Studied

The limit could be imposed by raising the income tax brackets on individuals receiving more than $25,000 or $50,000, with credits allowed for taxes paid States, counties and municipalities.

Since the freezing of wages by statute would be strict compulsion, the President proposes to keep demands for increases down by directing the War Labor Board to bar any raises.

By imposing control on retail and wholesale prices and setting up a rationing system, the cost of living could be held to where demands for increases to meet costs would be at a minimum.

This is reported to be a vital phase of the President's program. Authors of the Price Control Act claim that Price Administrator Leon Henderson has the power to invoke such rigid controls.

War Bonds Drive Pressed

As a corollary to the program, the Treasury has launched a campaign to encourage consumers to invest a minimum of 10 per cent of their wages in war bonds. The plan contemplates siphoning a billion dollars a month of consumers' buying power to help pay for the war and at the same time help avert inflation.

Another phase is strict control or absolute elimination of installment buying. The Federal Reserve Board is now considering this.

That the President will receive considerable support for his program is indicated by recent demands in the Senate and House for taking all excess profits, freezing wages and prices. Only today Chairman Andrew J. May (Democrat), of Kentucky, of the House Military Committee, introduced the American Legion bill calling for fixed prices, wage freezing, draft of man power for war work and the licensing of industry and curbs of profits.

Green and Murray Condemn N. A. M.

A. F. L. President William Green and C. I. O. President Philip Murray united yesterday in charging that the National Association of Manufacturers is seeking to pressure Congress into freezing management-labor relations.

Referring to a full-page advertisement placed by N. A. M. in many newspapers and headed "America Wants Victory—Not the Closed Shop," the labor leaders said:

"The N. A. M. is brazenly trying to take advantage of the war to secure special protection that it could not get in peacetime for a few selfish, recalcitrant employers who hate unions more than they hate Hitler."

The labor leaders urged that control of wages be left in the War Labor Board and to collective bargaining processes. Murray and six C. I. O. vice presidents also charged in an open letter to the President that there is a deliberate conspiracy afoot to "wreck the organized labor movement."

They urged a more adequate tax bill and more drastic control of rents and prices as part of "a bold and affirmative" program to assure victory over the Axis.

New York, April 21 (AP).—Answering A. F. of L.-C. I. O charges that the National Association of Manufacturers had violated the labor-management conference agreement of last December by opposing extension of the closed shop, N. A. M. President William P. Witherow denied tonight that "an agreement on this controversial subject" ever existed.

viewers formed the impression that he can hear very well without it.

The Californian issued statements in which he said, "I was brought here by Caesar, that I might behold Caesar's power."

"It has been my contention that the New Deal philosophy of government should be abolished," the statement went on. Now, however, I am forced to modify that word, substituting for it the word 'liquidated.' . . . The record of events during the next few months will amply justify the opinion that the American people will do the necessary liquidating."

With calm assurance, Baxter explained that there are "Soci" members in every one of the 48 States. The membership is secret, he said, because many prominent persons are members and they do not wish to be smeared. "The Administration," he added, "would like to know who they are."

Calls 'Union Now' Treason

Baxter called "Union Now" and similar groups "treasonable organizations" and named a Cabinet officer and a Supreme Court justice among their members.

This point of view was advanced by Representative Clare E. Hoffman in his "Roosevelt Is a Judas" speech, of which Baxter said he got about 1000 copies. He did not know who mailed them to him, he said.

The speech was mailed out with the "buy arms" bulletin" of the "Soci" leadership.

Baxter said the Hoffman speech was only one of those he had distributed. "I don't know how many thousands of Congressional Record reprints have been sent me in the last few years," he said.

Names Other Legislators

Among those whose material was sent him, Baxter said he recalled the names of Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat) of Montana, Senator Gerald Nye (Republican) of North Dakota, and Representative Hamilton Fish (Republican) of New York.

Baxter said he remembered receiving "an exceptionally large bundle" of Congressional Record reprints from Lake Geneva, Wis., home of the isolationist, anti-British magazine Scribner's Commentator and its companion weekly, The Herald. Both have suspended.

The "Socis" have voluminous records of the acts of "predatory elements" in official positions, Baxter declared, and use will be made of these records in the next few months. He would not say "for the record" what the purpose of the records was.

Wants Negotiated Peace

The "Soci" leader called for a negotiated peace, saying "Japan" has attained her objectives in Asia and it makes no difference from whom we buy in the east, "so there is no use fighting."

"By fall," he added, "Hitler will be glad to agree to a peace."

The new grand jury subpena was waiting for Baxter when he called at Judiciary Square after the press conference.

There appeared to be no connection.

Dilling Asks Wife About Nazi Funds

Chicago, April 21 (AP).—Albert W. Dilling, embroiled in a divorce suit with his wife, Elizabeth, author of "The Red Network," today asked the Superior Court to compel Mrs. Dilling to produce an accounting of any contributions she may have received since 1935 "from any American or foreign persons acting for any Axis government in spreading pro-Axis propaganda in the United States."

His petition also asked the opportunity to examine correspondence which Dilling alleged his wife received from 33 persons, including Charles A. Lindberg, William D. Pelley, the Silver Shirts leader; George Sylvester Viereck, convicted as a Nazi agent; Sir Oswald Mosley, the British Fascist; Father Charles F. Coughlin and Laura Ingalls, the former flier recently imprisoned for failure to register as a Nazi agent.

Smith Will Speak In Coughlin's Behalf

Detroit, April 21 (AP).—Gerald L. K. Smith, national chairman of the isolationist "Committee of One Million," announced today he would address a rally here Friday night on the subject, "Will We Permit the Reds to Jail Father Coughlin?" The Coughlin magazine, Social Justice, has been barred from the mails, pending a hearing on Attorney General Biddle's finding that it is "clearly seditious."

Mother! That LAMB'S here again!

THE LAMB: Excuse the intrusion—but I am a lamb with a purpose. I'm here to remind you of a gentler way of getting after that little trouble of yours.

BABS: You mean . . .

THE LAMB: Yes, constipation! If you are one of those people with normal intestines who are troubled with constipation due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, a crisp, delicious cereal, KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, will not only correct the cause of the trouble—but will do it in a way that is pleasant and gentle, too.

MOTHER: Did you say "gentle"?

THE LAMB: I did indeed, ma'am! ALL-BRAN acts differently from many medicinal laxatives. They work by prodding the intestines into action, or by drawing moisture into them from other parts of the body. ALL-BRAN works principally on the contents of the colon, helping you to have easy and normal elimination.

BABS: But tell us, lamb, does ALL-BRAN taste good?

THE LAMB: My dear young lady, ALL-BRAN has a grand nutty flavor—you'll enjoy every crunchy spoonful! Eat it every day, drink plenty of water and "Join the Regulars."

G. O. P. Maps 'Poor Man's Campaign'

Martin Says Nonwar Spending Will Be Party's Prime Issue

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, April 21.—The Roosevelt Administration's nonwar spending will form a prime political issue this year, Chairman Joseph W. Martin of the Republican National Committee predicted today as he looked ahead to a "poor man's campaign" for House and Senate seats.

"The people are willing that we spend all that is needed in the war effort but they are getting fed up on other expenditures," he stated at a press conference. "They are demanding a reduction of normal Governmental expenses and they want nonessentials cut out."

Such outlays, he added, would develop one of the principal issues in the forthcoming interparty fight.

Martin told reporters the party never was in a better financial position and related that it was virtually free of debt whereas it was "$1,500,000 in the hole" in 1937.

"We have very little money on hand, however, and we'll run a poor man's campaign," he related. "But I think we'll be able to get enough money for a moderate campaign."

He disclosed that contributions were "well up" to those of other years and announced that a fund raising project would be organized.

Martin was asked if the Republicans would voice criticism of the Administration's conduct of the war, and he replied:

"We reserve the right to make constructive suggestions about the war effort at any time."

The chairman planned to call all State chairmen, vice chairmen and publicity directors to a conference about the first week in June to draft a campaign program. He said the meeting would be in Cincinnati or St. Louis—"probably St. Louis."

Martin outlined his views in the wake of yesterday's parley of the national committee—which produced a demand for an offensive, uncompromising war and an agreement that the United States should assist in bringing about cooperation of the nations of the world in the postwar period.

"The Republican National Committee may well be proud of its accomplishments yesterday," he said.

Republican Legislators Approve Party's Action

Congressional Republicans gave general approval yesterday to resolutions newly adopted by the party's National Committee advocating international cooperation after the war to maintain world peace.

Senator McNary of Oregon, the minority leader and 1940 Vice Presidential nominee, called the committee's action "a good day's work," which he said had produced "a definite statement of the party's present and future responsibilities."

Senator Austin of Vermont, assistant leader, said he was "greatly relieved that the party has freed itself from the color of isolationism."

But Senator Aiken of Vermont expressed the view that the resolutions presented "nothing to offend and nothing to inspire."

For An All-Out War

Other comment:

Senator Burton of Ohio: "It was a normal stand. I am in entire sympathy with the resolution. It coincides with the view I've taken all along."

Senator Capper of Kansas: "I approve the action. I don't see that this upsets the Republican program to any extent. Ever since Pearl Harbor we've been practically unanimous for all-out war. It is a rather conservative statement regarding possible post-war action."

Representative Fish (Republican), New York, a self-styled "pre-war non-interventionist," called on fellow Republicans to drop pre-war controversies.

"It is evident," the New Yorker said in a speech in the House, "that the Republican National Committee considers such pre-war controversies to be dead issues, and that any attempt to revive them, as was done against Senator Brooks in the recent Illinois primary, promotes disunity and impairs our all-out war effort. In the words of Senator Brooks, 'the issue of isolationism is dead—it was sunk at Pearl Harbor.'"

Inquest Slated On Fatal Shooting

A 53-year-old Negro will appear at a coroners inquest either Friday or Saturday in connection with the fatal shooting of John Norris, Negro, 32, of 409 K Street Southeast.

Norris died at Providence Hospital yesterday of gunshot wounds received Monday at the time of an altercation with Tip Gartley, Negro, 53, of 112 M Place Southeast, according to police. The latter was arrested shortly after hte shooting and was held last night at the Fifth Precinct station.

In a statement to police Gartley said he became enraged "because Norris was talking about me."

2 More Ships Are Torpedoed, Navy Reveals

By the Associated Press

Lewes, Del., April 21.—Nine half-clothed seamen, haggard and exhausted after drifting 10 days at sea, said a German submarine sank their medium-sized Norwegian tanker off Bermuda Easter Monday—and then tossed them food as they huddled in a lifeboat, the Fourth Naval District disclosed today.

Torpedoeing of the tanker and a small United States ship off the Atlantic Coast, was announced by the Navy. Survivors were landed at ports on the East Coast and the Gulf of Mexico.

Nine of the crew of 30 from the Norwegian ship were landed here from the Portuguese freighter Lobito.

Two men were killed outright when the U-boat's first torpedo struck, the survivors said. One man in their boat died last Tuesday and was buried at sea.

The Navy, guarding against reprisals against their relatives, did not release their names.

Argentine Ship Hit

Buenos Aires, April 21 (AP).—The 12,500-ton Argentine tanker Victoria has been damaged by a torpedo or mine and is continuing toward New York under difficult conditions, the Argentine government announced today.

The ship, completed last year at Albany, N. Y., at a cost of one million dollars, was on her first northward voyage.

Authoritative Argentine quarters said they believed the Victoria must have struck a mine, holding it unlikely that an Axis submarine would torpedo an Argentine ship in consideration of this country's policy of neutrality.

Presumably the Victoria was displaying the Argentine flag and showing lights at night, since such instructions have been issued to all Argentine merchantmen.

Rescue Ships Warned

New York, April 21 (AP).—Survivors of a torpedoed American merchant ship were permitted today to reveal that they warned off a possible rescue ship after an enemy submarine followed them in the Caribbean.

Their ship was sunk the afternoon of April 4 and a submarine came to the surface and passed close to their lifeboats. Shortly after they sighted a large United States passenger ship on the horizon "heading toward us." They warned the ship of the presence of the submarine and she changed her course and disappeared.

The men, who have reached New York from Puerto Rico, explained that the submarine officers did not understand the signal.

"Maybe they even liked it," Daniel F. Hegarty, of Brooklyn, N. Y., said. "They might have thought our signal would bring the ship to us."

3 Killed in Torpedoing

Three men were killed in the torpedo explosion but the remaining 39 men and officers all were saved after five days of rough weather in open rafts and a lifeboat they kept hooked together with lines.

Charleston, S. C., April 21 (AP).—A Panamanian registered merchant ship was torpedoed off the Atlantic Coast with the loss of three lives on April 12 after it crossed a nest of three enemy submarines, the Sixth Naval District here said today.

Forty-eight officers and men were saved and the ship, with a huge hole in its port side, was towed into a port.

U. S. to Call Youth For Farm Labor that 13 million women are employable. She declared she does not consider registration necessary to fit the worker to the job.

"A great many women, perhaps as many as two million have been or may be thrown out of work through conversion or curtailment of civilian production. They should be reemployed before new women are pressed into the labor force," she said.

Also, she declared, an additional group can be obtained easily by utilizing thousands of the million unemployed women already registered with the public employment agencies.

However, Mobilizer McNutt will have the last say and he is supposed to favor registration—and President Roosevelt has said it might be a good thing, as an inventory.

The American Council on Education in a survey bulletin released last night said fewer than 30 per cent of the 100,000 women who will be graduated from college this June have majored in subjects which will be directly useful to the war effort.

Pleading for more emphasis on courses of training in the fields where "personnel shortages are serious and the national needs great," the bulletin says:

"In the plans for the manufacture of synthetic rubber, to take but one example, 150,000 more persons than are now engaged in working for its products will be needed. . . . Besides direct research, the routine scientific tasks must be met by trained laboratory assistants."

Torpedo Boat Leaves Jap Cruiser Sinking Off Cebu

that "some damage" was done to the island citadel by the savage, nonstop shelling. Yesterday, however, the Army said reassuringly, that "the damage done was not great."

At the same time, the Army revealed that heavy Japanese attacks on American-Filipino positions on the island of Panay had forced the defenders to withdraw at two points.

The savage assaults were made on the latter's lines in Antique province, in the western part of the island, and although our outnumbered troops had to withdraw, they took heavy toll of the enemy.

In telling of the torpedo boat attack on the enemy fleet off Cebu, the Navy said that Lieut. Bulkeley was safe, having been aboard the boat that survived the action.

Previously the War Department had reported the sinking of an enemy light cruiser near Cebu by one of the little "PT boats" at about the same time and under somewhat similar circumstances. Army and Navy officials, however, could not say definitely whether this was a separate action or not.

Three Craft in Squadron

The squadron at Cebu, the communique disclosed, was composed of three of the 77-foot, 60-mile-an-hour craft. One, the PT-35, was out of action at the City of Cebu when the island was invaded and was destroyed to keep it from falling into enemy hands.

PT-34 and PT-41 made the night attack on the Japanese cruiser. Four enemy destroyers screened the warship, and the small "suicide boats" found themselves in the thick of heavy action.

"Enemy counteraction finally forced the retirement of the attacking PT boats," the Navy communique said, "after they had seriously damaged one enemy light cruiser and left it in a sinking condition . . . The PT-34 was forced ashore on the island of Cebu, but the PT-41 made good its escape."

Naval officials had no information about what happened to the PT-34 and its crew, but said that Lieut. Bulkeley "had gotten away to fight some more" with his other boat.

New Mexicans Escape

The National Guardsmen who escaped from Bataan to Corregidor were three officers and 104 men of the 200th Coast Artillery, a New Mexico regiment. It was reported to have had a strength of about 1400 men.

Other National Guard units fighting on Bataan until April 9, were the 192d and 194th Tank Battalions, composed of companies from Wisconsin, Illinois, Ohio, Kentucky, Minnesota, Missouri, California and Washington. Each company totaled 125 to 150 men.

The War Department reported that dive-bombers had attacked Fort Hughes and Fort Drum in Manila Bay Monday. Most of the bombs, however, missed their mark and fell harmlessly into the water. There was no damage or any casualties at either island fortress.

Public Willing To Raise Taxes

per cent were in favor, 36 per cent against and 5 per cent undecided.

Many experts see the time coming soon when it will no longer be possible to increase taxes on the upper one-third of the families because the point of diminishing returns will have been reached. They believe that, of necessity, income taxes will then have to be levied on the middle third. The question whether the groups now exempt are willing to make a contribution is, therefore, of vital importance in the whole tax program. Today's poll indicates that they are ready.

The Institute pointed out last year that people were ready to shoulder a heavier tax load to pay for the war. It was not surprising, therefore, that when Congress did raise tax rates and lower exemptions last year there was virtually no protest from the people.

Congress is said to be fearful of increasing taxes in an election year. The poll results would seem to indicate that much of this fear of public anger over taxes may be groundless.

Berlin Stocks Slump

Berlin (From German Broadcast), April 21 (AP).—Rumors regarding impending new taxes, which particularly affect shareholders, caused weakness in today's Bourse. There were declines up to 4 points and the close was weak.

President Orders All Enemy Patents Seized

sion of Crowley, Mr. Roosevelt said. Meanwhile, acting under his orders, Crowley is directing a survey to see what patents are wanted, or whether, by research, processes useful for the war effort can be developed.

Crowley declared examination is being made of synthetic fuel, food and fabric patents, drugs and biological patents and electrical equipment and Diesel engine patents.

The President stated that he no longer is concerned about the question of whether German-American patent pooling agreements have resulted in restricted production of war-vital materials, as charged before Senate committees. Patent seizures, he said, will be made regardless of whether patents are held by Americans or neutrals or are controlled directly by aliens. The subterfuge of neutral or American control no longer will operate to protect patents, he stated.

Hearing Touches on Black List

In response to a charge made before the Patents Committee by Special Assistant Attorney General Walter R. Hutchinson that his firm's agreements with German companies had the effect of preserving the German economic position in South America, S. C. Kelton, secretary of the Rhom & Haas Co., of Philadelphia, declared that his concern had anticipated the State Department's blacklisting of Axis companies in Latin America by dropping its relations with firms on the British blacklist.

Kelton said, however, he had been advised by Joseph C. Green, special assistant to Secretary of State Hull, that shipments to firms on the British blacklist were not objectionable in February, 1941.

Not an inch of shatter-proof plastic "glass" used in all American fighting planes would be available in this country had it not been for his company's agreement with the Rohm & Hass firm of Darmstadt, Germany, Kelton declared. The American firm was accused of exacting royalties, payable in Germany, on manufacture of the material for the Army and Navy.

Will You EVER Own Another Car?

RECAPPED TIRES? Rationed gas? No new cars? Aren't you worrying about the wrong things, Mr. Motorist? The thing to ask yourself now is . . . Will you ever own another car? Another radio? Another gleaming new refrigerator?

Those who live under dictators merely dream of such possessions. And even America could lose a war. You'll never know these peace-time luxuries again . . . unless we pay the full price of victory now!

Sacrifice? Who has asked you to wade to work through snowdrifts with your feet wrapped in rags? Who has asked you to work a 16-hour day for less than enough to eat? Has your wife stood in a bread line for hours . . . to be told that there was no more food? Have your children eaten grass because there was no milk?

No . . . you've only been asked to drive at 40 instead of 65 . . . so tires will last 2½ times as long. To have the common-sense mechanical adjustments made that will save you fuel and oil. To make certain—as you never have before—that every wearing part, every mile you drive, has the vital lubrication needed to prolong its life.

AMERICA MUST HAVE transportation. And must get it from its present cars. There'll be no more new ones for the duration. Long ago, the whole automobile industry rolled up its sleeves to make planes and tanks and shells and guns for freedom's armies.

That task must not be interrupted! Not interrupted, above all, to divert precious time and material to repair parts that only neglect made necessary!

Whatever kind of car or tires you own, care will keep them running longer than you think. Whatever kind of lubricants you prefer, really use them! These are no days to gamble the life of your priceless car to save pennies . . . by cheating a little on the mileage you drive between lubrications and oil changes.

Every repair part saved—every hour and ounce of metal freed for war production—is your share in bringing the day of peace closer . . . the day when we can again own new cars and tires—buy radios and refrigerators—live in a world of freedom—and have our sons and brothers back home again.

Do These Things to Safeguard Your Car

- Don't waste mileage! Limit your driving to essential transportation. If you must drive to work, take others—and rotate trips with them.
- Check tire pressure once a week—wheel alignment at regular intervals—to avoid needless tire wear. Drive at lower speeds—make tires, gas and oil go farther.
- Give your car ample lubrication. Whether you prefer Alemite lubricants or others—get them and get them regularly. Don't cheat on mileage between lubrications.
- Watch brake and clutch adjustment—steering gear play—head and tail lamps. Don't let your car become dangerous for lack of simple care.
- Fill battery—shock absorbers—radiator—brake fluid reservoir—as needed. Don't let lack of water or oil cause expensive damage.

This message is published solely in the interest of speeding American victory. We have no axe to grind . . . our machines have been converted to the making of essential materials for war and war production. We look forward to the day when we may serve civilian needs again. How soon that will be—if ever—depends upon how well we all do our job now. There must be no let-up short of victory.

OUR WAR

This advertisement is the first of a series to be published by Stewart-Warner in The Saturday Evening Post and Collier's. You'll find it in the issue of The Saturday Evening Post appearing on newsstands today. Its purpose is to stimulate our war effort—to hasten victory—to heighten the awareness of every citizen that this is our war. We at Stewart-Warner realize it. We started shipment of war material 29 months ago. When Pearl Harbor was attacked, our conversion to war production was already far advanced. Our plants and machines are dedicated to the one end of making America strong. . . . A brochure of advertisements planned for this series will be sent gladly to anyone requesting it. FBI 'Crashes' Hitler Parties, Nabs Aliens

Score Taken, Over 100 Questioned in New Jersey Raids

By the Associated Press

Newark, N. J., April 21.—E. E. Conroy, New Jersey head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said today the FBI celebrated Adolf Hitler's fifty-third birthday with the largest State-wide raid since Pearl Harbor, arresting a score of enemy aliens, questioning more than 100 persons and seizing much contraband.

More than 150 agents and local police struck at 62 places last night, Conroy said.

Of those detained as aliens, 11 were sent to Ellis Island and others were held pending action to be advised by the United States Attorney General.

Found at what Conroy called the largest Hitler celebration in the State, at the City Hall Tavern, Union City, were August Klapprott, Eastern leader of the disbanded German-American Bund, and the Rev. John C. Fitting, Hudson County bund official. Both are naturalized citizens and were released after questioning.

As the raiders entered the Union City Hall, celebrants continued singing to the last bar sons in praise of Nazism. Eight German nationals were found among the group, it was said, all of them without alien registration or Selective Service registration cards.

Agents seized much contraband, including a Storm Trooper's uniform, short wave radio receiving sets, guns and cameras.

Conroy said the raiders had "all leaders of German movements under scrutiny and were particularly alert for gatherings celebrating Hitler's birthday." In most cases, the searches were made in the vicinity of war plants.

Pennsylvania, Too

Lancaster, Pa., April 21 (AP).—Federal Bureau of Investigation agents raided homes of nearly 100 enemy aliens last night in what was described as the largest raid ever made in Lancaster County.

Eighty-three officers, led by John F. Sears, FBI chief in eastern Pennsylvania, took more than 30 persons in custody for questioning and held several for hearings before the enemy alien board in Philadelphia.

An 18-tube short-wave radio set, several smaller short-wave sets and a quantity of firearms were reported seized.

14 Arrested in Florida

Jacksonville, Fla., April 21 (AP).—In a series of swift raids in the upper Florida East Coast area, agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation last night and early today arrested 14 enemy aliens and sezied guns, ammunition, dynamite caps and fuses, FBI Agent R. G. Danner announced here.

The raids were staged at Jacksonville, Jacksonville Beach, St. Augustine, Orlando and Daytona Beach by the Federal agents, assisted by city and State officials.

Sixty-seven homes and buildings occupied by German and Italian nationals were searched, resulting in the 14 arrests and notice to other aliens to "appear for investigation," Danner said.

Chopowamsic

Army Takes Over Famous Boys' Camp

The Chopawamsic Recreation Demonstration Area, where summer camps for underprivileged Washington children have been conducted for several years, has been taken over by the Army.

Acquired and developed by the National Park Service, the 15,000-acre tract, with its cabins, mess halls and recreation halls, is near Quantico, Va.

At the same time a Government official confirmed that the Army is assuming control also for unrevealed purposes, of the High Catoctin Park above Frederick, Md. The area has been used as a Washington Boy Scout camp and as a low-priced vacation resort for small-salaried Federal employes.

Milo Christiansen, District recreation coordinator, yesterday expressed concern as to what will happen this summer to the more than 2500 boys and girls who would have gone to the free camps at Chopawamsic.

Last summer five camps were operated there simultaneously: Two by the Family Service Association, with 1600 youngsters; one by the Twelfth Street Y. M. C. A., 558; one by the Salvation Army, 160, and one by the Arlington Girl Scouts, 360.

All had planned to return this year, said Christiansen, and there might have been one or two more new applications.

Chopawamsic and High Catoctin have been turned over to the Army by the National Park Service, an Interior Department bureau, on a permit basis. The permits will expire in June, but can be renewed, and it is virtually certain they will be.

British Tars Find America Nice Place

Asked whether he would like to live in America, Stanley Carroll, petty officer, one of 14 British seamen visiting Washington yesterday as guests of the Francis Scott Key Red Cross Unit of Baltimore, looked at a couple of mates, smiled slowly and said:

"Td love it. As soon as the war is over I'm going to come back over here and settle down with a good shore job."

Although only two others would forsake the old country for the new, this love for the United States seemed to be prevalent among the visiting seamen, interviewed yesterday while viewing the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington.

One lad of about 18, who had been apprenticed to the Navy when 15, couldn't get over the good food available in this country. "Who wouldn't like to live 'ere," he exclaimed. "Why you've got more fruit, goodies, meat, bread and eggs than I thought was in the 'ole world!"

Another member of the group, Radio Officer MacLean Lang, who apparently had not as yet become so completely taken with "the American way," thought that even though the girls over here might by some standards be considered "a bit jauntier dressed," the girls back in England were for his money the more beautiful.

Among the other things that had greatly impressed or captured the fancy of these convoy-men were the profusion of lights, the "wonderfully light" bread, the abounding hospitality, the general living conditions, the ice ceram, and the Government buildings here.

New York was much too "'elter skelter" for them. Boston, however, they thought delightful because of the baked bean dinners and the city's similarity to London.

Directing the sightseeing tour which included 43 Red Cross workers and guests, was Mrs. James H. Dorsey, head of the unit in Baltimore.

Opequon Call Accepted

Winchester, Va., April 21.—The Rev. Carlyle McDonald, of Powhatan, Va., who will complete his work at Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Va., May 12, has accepted a call to the historic Opequon group of Presbyterian Churches, it was announced today.

cessive war profits, which is already standard practice in the War and Navy Departments and the Maritime Commission. Bill managers told the House it "merely legalizes existing practice" and excessive war gains will be more closely controlled by taxation.

The compromise, in which the House yielded to the Senate after originally demanding a 6 per cent of cost limitation, was a rider on the sixth supplemental defense bill, which now goes to the Senate for final action.

The enormous bill carried funds to expand the Army to 3,600,000 men by December 31, and to complete another 31,700 of war planes toward the President's 1943 goal of 185,000 airships.

The profits compromise met no major opposition, but Chairman Vinson of the House Naval Affairs Committee served notice that he will "shortly" lay before the House a bill providing "a real limitation on profits."

He referred to the Smith-Vinson bill, which links labor legislation with profits limitations. The Naval Committee has deferred action on the bill until Tuesday, the day following the President's message on control of all living cost factors, including profits, labor and prices. The committee is sharply split on the Smith-Vinson bill, but Vinson again predicted a bill will be reported.

The House Ways and Means Committee, after weeks of hearings on the tax program, meanwhile was scheduled to tackle the problem of war profits and corporation taxes ahead of other Treasury tax recommendations.

Chairman Doughton said today's session will be largely on procedure but he personally favors disposing first of the Treasury's request for three billion in corporate taxes. Next he would consider proposed steeply increased individual surtaxes, and taking up independent proposals for a sales tax "after we get rid of the rest."

Executive committee discussions of the entire tax program are expected to continue for at least a week before the committee gets down to even tentative voting on specific schedules, and it may be at least a month before a bill is reported.

Asked if the committee would first agree on an over-all goal, and then set the amount to be raised in each field before voting on specific taxes, Doughton said he hoped their action would "be just the reverse of that."

"Instead of saying how much we will arise, we are going to raise every dollar we can," he said.

Advocates of a sales tax, believed in the majority on the committee despite Administration opposition to consumer war levies, are expected to produce a plan for a graduated sales tax worked out at their request by Colin F. Stam, staff chief of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation. Despite committee strength for some form of a sales tax, there has been lack of agreement on any one plan.

Police Hold Maid In Theft of Ring

Myrtle Nettles, 30-year-old Negro maid, was held under $1000 bond for grand jury in Police Court yesterday on a charge of stealing a $230 diamond ring which police testified she swallowed in an attempt to escape involvement in the theft.

Owner of the ring and the maid's employer, Mrs. Karl Riemer, 3340 University Avenue Northwest, told of missing the ring from her jewel box. Detective C. T. Williams of Precinct Eight testified that the maid was on the point of leaving the house when he arrived to investigate.

He said he decided to place the maid under a fluoroscope at Freedmen's Hospital when he heard the defendant gulp and apparently swallow something as the two were on their way to the precinct station.

Dangerous Congestion

Washington's mushroom growth because of the war has proceeded to date with an incredible lack of foresight. Officials seem to have been concerned only with the construction of temporary buildings in the shortest possible time. Speed, of course, has been imperative. Yet there is an ever-present danger that the careless concentration of too many employes in already congested areas may hinder instead of helping the war effort.

There are a number of advantages in having warworkers situated close to the War and Navy Departments. But the disadvantages of locating more and more temporary buildings in the congested sections of the city tower above the convenience which that policy serves. Once more the National Capital Park and Planning Commission has directed attention to the "unnecessarily great danger from enemy attack and fire, to say nothing of the hazards of epidemic, and the inevitable effect on morale from this kind of concentration." A few well-placed explosive and incendiary bombs might wipe out most of the temporary Government office buildings located in the natural target area of downtown Washington.

Lack of transportation makes it particularly desirable to locate temporary buildings in the outskirts where adjacent land for housing of warworkers is available. Why has this good advice been ignored? Surely it will contribute nothing to the war effort to make the Capital City one gigantic bottleneck. The Park and Planning Commission urges that decentralization be hastened by moving more Federal agencies to other cities where office space and dwellings are not overcrowded. All that can be accomplished by this means, however, will not relieve the acute need for decentralization within the city. We hope that officials planning temporary buildings will not wait for an air raid, an epidemic or a breakdown in transportation to give tragic emphasis to the NCPPC's warning.

"Oh, Say, Can You See?"

One of our correspondents, Maj. George A. Soper of New York, calls our attention to what he considers an indifference to the display of the national emblem in the National Capital. Now that he mentions it, it does seem a bit extraordinary that Old Glory should be scarcely more in evidence now in wartime than it was in peacetime. For some reason, difficult to analyze, the flag has thus far been given minor emphasis in the present conflict—a rather curious contrast to the major emphasis given it in all previous wars.

For instance, Monday's communique told of the rescue under shellfire by two Americans and a Filipino of the colors over Corregidor after the flagpole halyard had been severed by a Japanese shot. This was an exploit quite as glorious as the similar exploit of Sergeant Jasper of Fort Moultrie 166 years ago, which is mentioned in almost every school textbook. And yet the rescue at Corregidor was given merely incidental mention in most of the news stories. An earlier generation would already have written the names of Captain Gallup, Technical Sergeant Smith and Honorio Punongbayen (rank unknown) in its pantheon.

Yet Americans have always held their flag in greater love and veneration than any other people. The reason for this is that for them it is their supreme, almost their only, symbol. For the Briton, it must be remembered, the symbol is not the Union Jack, but the King. For the Frenchman it is—or, alas, it was—not the Tricoleur but a concept, La Patrie. With us the national anthem and fully half our patriotic songs and poems have to do primarily with the flag, which for us has a mystical meaning. This is emphasized in the elaborate almost sacerdotal ritual governing the display and handling of the flag.

Captious foreigners have sometimes called this "fetishism," but this is not accurate. A foreigner can scarcely understand the whole congeries of emotions, ideas, aspirations and historical association which the flag evokes in an American. Probably the late Franklin K. Lane expressed as well as anybody the meaning the flag conveys to the American eye: "I am not the flag; not at all. I am but its shadow. I am whatever you make me, nothing more. I am your belief in yourself, your dream of what a People may become. . . . I am the clutch of an idea, and the reasoned purpose of a resolution. I am no more than you believe me to be and I am all that you believe I can be."

Alas! Poor Yorick

Wisdom, it has been said, means attention to realities. It is with this kind of wisdom that the Republican National Committee buried the issue of isolationism which has been the party line since 1920. The issue has been a corpse since last December 7, at least. Since then it has been putrefying, and if the committee had delayed the interment much longer, the party itself would soon have been in the death throes. Senator Taft, seemingly with a lingering nostalgia for the carcass, says that the National Committee does not bind the party. Individual members, he says, are still free to take their own line on international affairs. But, if we see the signs aright, the rank and file of the party ditched the issue when the bombs at Pearl Harbor gave it the coup de grace.

The resolution that marked the interment of isolationism, to be sure, is tentative, even coy. It merely acknowledges this Nation's responsibility after the war to contribute to some kind of world order. Prior to 1920 the Republican leaders, having that feeling for geography which is a basic element in statesmanship, were more positive and more explicit. The 1916 platform was forthrightly interventionist. Men like Taft and Root then helped to found the League to Enforce Peace while the war was still raging. The heart of this league, as the title bears out, was that force should be employed against any state which refused to submit a dispute to an international tribunal. Perhaps, after their return to the world-mindedness of Republican doctrine, the present leaders of the G. O. P. will be equally bold.

Sufficient for the present, however, that the National Committee is committed to world responsibility. There is no geographical limit in the wording of the Republican resolution, and there should be none in the national policy. Wherever this war takes us—and it has already taken us across the seven seas—will be a place for our concern in time of peace. Yet some Republicans—and some Democrats, too—have been toying with continentalism in place of nationalism. Specifically they foresee this country at the head of the Americas seeking to keep in equipoise with other regional groups. If that is all we were to strive for, we may be sure that we should simply be preparing for bigger and more terrible wars.

That kind of continentalism, in point of fact, would fly in the face of both geography and experience. Oceans, far from being barriers, are the routes for the thrusts of sea and air power as well as the highways of commerce. But, aside from that indubitable fact, any feeling for geography would show that distances are no friends of the regional idea. Buenos Aires is 6500 miles from Norfolk, but Brest is only 3800 miles away. Moreover, in a period of total war, as has been shown twice within a generation, the field of struggle coincides with the total earth's surface.

All this should have been obvious long before Pearl Harbor shattered the last lingering illusion. The truth of the matter is that the policy of reciprocal nonintervention based upon regional isolation was made to order for our enemies. They encouraged it. All their propaganda hammered home the note which bemused our isolationists. But did our enemies talk and practice for themselves what they preached for Americans? Of course not. They envisaged the world as their parish, and wanted us to remain sunk in seclusion till they were ready to make the final pounce. Hitler spoke of two worlds in conflict—his and ours. Matsuoka six months before Pearl Harbor published an outline of the Japanese world order which called for sovereignty over the entire Pacific area. We had eyes, but many of us read not. We did not even see the inconsistency of enemy propaganda as shown in Nazi Germany's struggle for hegemony over South America.

But the veil is now torn down. And after victory we must do our part in building up and maintaining a world organization which will insure progress and security for all the nations. On no other plank could the Republican Party be assured of a lease of life.

Waiting For Orders

Laval's address to the French people was like the sounding of an alert to the United Nations. It is quite clear that the armistice men in France are now in complete subordination. There were those who, led by Marshal Petain, sought to keep Nazi intervention in France within the limits of the armistice agreement. Laval is bound by no such scruples. Cooperation with Germany, as he says, is like an "obsession" with him. The French people must know that it is no two-way cooperation that Laval has in mind. Laval is merely waiting to hear his master's voice, and his very life may depend upon the zeal with which he interprets Hitler's bidding, no matter what it is.

What those orders will be can only be guessed. But they doubtless will be related to the opening of the spring offensive which the news from the Russian capital says is imminent. Our strategists must reckon on the possibility that Laval is to be the Nazi instrument for some coup or another. If we are committed to the initiative this year—and all the indications point that way—we must anticipate it.

In the meantime the maintenance of any further diplomatic relations with Vichy has been made hopeless by Laval's address. Now that Mrs. Leahy, alas, has passed away, our Ambassador will soon be coming home, and the closing of our mission to Vichy should be announced at the same time. But there should be an immediate effort from high quarters to combat any effect within France of Laval's address. Nothing would encourage the spirit of resistance in France more than to be assured in a heart-to-heart talk with the French people that we are on the offensive and will not sheathe the sword till we have struck down Hitler and his minions of Laval's stripe.

Victory In Burma

The recapture of Yenangyaung by Chinese troops is the first victory won by Allied forces in Burma in many weeks. It is a heartening development on that account. It is equally heartening in demonstrating the value of cooperative effort on the part of the nations battling the Axis.

Ever since the fall of Rangoon, which made it possible for the enemy to send a continuous flow of reinforcements to Burma by sea, the plight of the British in that sector has been desperate. Fighting every inch of the way, they have nonetheless been forced to retreat, and there seemed to be no way of preventing the Japanese from pressing on toward Mandalay. Thus, last week, the British found it necessary to destroy many oil wells in the Yenangyaung region. The possibility was real that this scorched earth policy would have to be carried out in other Burmese oil fields as well. Only in that way could the enemy be prevented from acquiring indispensable sources of fuel. We may now be thankful that further destruction was delayed. For it would have been a serious blow to China, which depends on this oil for its armies and air force. Moreover, the recapture of Yenangyaung by Chinese troops and the release of trapped British forces gives the Allies at least a little respite in which to reorganize their defenses and bring up more men and supplies to that vital front.

We cannot assume from this single victory that the tide in Burma has at last begun to turn. There is nothing to indicate, for instance, that the overwhelming Japanese superiority in the air, which more than anything else explains their recent progress in Burma, has been overcome or is about to be overcome. Nonetheless, the victory at Yenangyaung proves that the Japanese are not irresistible, that given the requisite military strength plus the addition of at least some air power they can be halted.

Normandie Report

The finding of the naval court of inquiry appointed to investigate the responsibility for the disastrous fire on the liner Normandie appears to bear out what was commonly suspected. That is that the fire was not due to sabotage but to unconscionable carelessness. The court makes this clear in a detailed report which reveals an utter disregard for safety precautions on the part of workmen employed by the Robins Dry Dock & Repair Co. A supplementary report of the court also charges two responsible naval officers with carelessness, though admitting mitigating circumstances. Having established responsibility for the fire, the court recommends proceedings to recover damages from the Robins company, pointing out, incidentally, that under contract company liability does not exceed $300,000.

This sum, of course, does not begin to cover the immediate material loss. Furthermore, there is no effective way of measuring the real loss suffered because of the fire and subsequent capsizing. The Normandie, or the Lafayette, as she was rechristened, was in the process of being converted into a troop transport—a process that was supposed to take less than two months. Now there is no telling when, if ever, the ship will be of use to us. It was unquestionably advisable to assign responsibility for so tragic and unnecessary a loss on the transportation front. But whether this will serve as a stimulus to 100 per cent observance of safety precautions elsewhere in the war effort—as it should—will be proved or disproved on the basis of the record in the critical months ahead.

SHOWER OF DEW

Stars are still bright in the spring
When, from the edge of dawn,
While the birds start to sing,
Comes the hesitant fawn,
Thirsting, but wondering anew
What starts each shower of dew . . .
Was it the stir of a wing?
Slowly the great eyes stare—
Watching the unseen thing,
Hiding in patterns there!
Soft ears, tufted and curled,
Lean to the sounds of the world.

Crimes Against U. S.

What procedure must be taken to enact such legislation that would amend the present law to provide that the death penalty be mandatory to all persons put on trial and found guilty of treason, selling or giving vital secret information to the enemy or enemies of this country or for persons found guilty of sabotage or other similar crimes that are committed to destroy or overthrow this Government?

It is only clear thinking to assume that a person found guilty of these crimes would have given or sold the necessary information to the enemies that would enable the complete destruction or overthrow of this Government, if they had all the data in their possession at the time they conveyed the information to the enemies.

During recent trials covering crimes of this nature the persons found guilty have been sentenced to mild prison terms, and in some cases an additional fine (to be paid with money they probably received for giving out the information). What will the attitude of these convicted persons be upon their release from prison? There is only one way they will feel and that will be to go after vengeance and work on this type of crime on a larger scale.

If the law is amended and calls for death penalty, this will not be too severe for a crime of this nature. What is so drastic about the death penalty for any major crime? It will not affect a person unless he commits the crime. Under the present law covering crimes of this nature, a person does not think so much of the consequences resulting from being found guilty of the crime, because he knows that they will only be subject to a prison term, whereas if the law were amended making the death penalty mandatory on these crimes, a person would give a little more thought before he committed the crime.

The law covering murder, kidnaping and other major crimes calls for the death penalty and in most cases it is effected. In other words a person found guilty of murder is sentenced to death, while a person found guilty of plotting to murder thousands of innocent people is sentenced to prison for a mild term.

I have heard that the Judiciary Committee of the House has this matter under study. I cannot understand why the action on this matter should be prolonged, as I personally think the law making the death penalty mandatory on these crimes would be the greatest asset the country could have under the present wartime conditions.

No true American will protest against a law of this nature, as he will know it will not affect him, and it would be one of the greatest protections the country could have at present. I think if a move were started to see that this law were enacted, the Judiciary Committee would put this legislation on their preferred list.

Bond Sales

Regarding the falling off in the sales of bonds there are several very good reasons. I will list them in their order as I observe the situation in my immediate neighborhood:

1. After Pearl Harbor there was a wave of patriotism. Everybody wanted to do something. Many took savings from the bank and invested in bonds.

2. Many people had to borrow to pay their income taxes in March and had no surplus to buy bonds.

3. A number I know have been completely disgusted because the Administration has made little or no attempt to economize. Its whole philosophy is a grand extravaganza, and until some real attempt is made to cut out nonessentials there will be little incentive for us to sacrifice. VIRGINIAN.

Importance Of Defense

"By offensives alone can we win" is not a fair statement of fact. It is not the lesson taught by the present war. The victorious offenses have succeeded only against nations having inadequate defenses. Hitler, chief advocate and beneficiary of offensive strategy, has not neglected to fortify Germany before pressing his campaigns abroad. Loudly praising the sure-fire conquering power of the offensive, we, nevertheless, rate down the defensive measures needed to meet its onslaught.

The backbone of any offensive operation is adequate defense preparations. They discourage enemy inclination to attack offensively. The stalemate between Britain and Germany is a demonstration of the respect paid to defense by even the strongest adversaries. The full lesson of the war is that ultimate victory is to be expected from a hard-hitting offensive backed by an impregnable defensive. When prudence is absent, courage is a gamble.

If Hitler should determine to bring Britain to terms without risking the great losses inevitable in crashing her formidable defense system, he will probably attempt to hold England and concentrate on invading the United States—a measure which he must take, in any event, if he is to achieve his purpose of final world mastery.

The doors we depend on to shut out an offensive invasion are latched, not locked, as we have heretofore believed. Chance and luck have ever been the great determining factors in all naval battles. The shores of Canada are tempting to our enemy. The century-old unfortified boundary line between us, in which both nations properly take great pride, is a beautiful ideal, but no protection to the heart of our munitions industry.

The activity of the Nazi fleet off Norway, poised for a roundhouse blow, may well be confirmation that Hitler, always delighting in surprises, senses the possibilities resident in these conditions. A hysterical, desperate, last-minute effort to tighten defenses is a fool's strategy. ALBERT L. VOLK.

The French People

In these cruel days of misunderstanding your editorial brings encouragement.

How right you are when you say that it is of great necessity for the French people to know that the Americans are still their friends.

We must do everything possible to keep up the confidence they have placed in us. We must remember also that they have suffered a great deal and should be treated with friendliness and tact, for bitterness springs up so easily in the heart of an invalid.

It is poor policy I think to close our relations with them, to stop shipments of food they need so badly to keep up their strength. In doing so we are doing exactly what the Germans wish us to do. Take strict measures if necessary but do not abandon the French people. Help them more than ever.

I cannot forget the statue of that American soldier erected on the shore of St. Nazaire, facing the United States. I hope he is still standing there, waiting for his brothers to come to the rescue.

Give Us Facts

I have just finished reading some news magazines, published prior to Pearl Harbor, and I am sick inside. Despite my anger and disgust, I can't seem to forget the amusing case of the American businessman who wandered up and down France and Belgium after the first World War futilely trying to locate the thousands of poor children whose hands, he had heard, had been cut off by the Huns. He planned to bring these mutilated children over to the United States to a home he had built for them somewhere in the West. Everywhere he went he found only puzzled natives. Pointing to their heads, after he had gone, they would invariably exclaim, "l'Americaine!" One word, but quite appropriate. For America and gullibility had become synonymous.

I, for one, refuse to agitate myself into a nervous breakdown because I was so gullible as to believe literally everything our so-called military and naval authorities said about our invincibility. Yes, I believed them when they assured us that America was in no danger of naval or bombing attack for a long time to come or that Japan would be too smart to commit hara-kiri in a vain assault upon such formidable bastions as Pearl Harbor or Singapore. But I am worried about our present reactions to the flood of jingoism and boasting printed in our periodicals and hurled at us constantly via the radio. I wonder if we are letting ourselves in for another Pearl Harbor, this time at Washington or New York City?

In a letter written to his wife immediately after Fredericksburg, Gen. Lee referred to the tendency of the Northern generals to boast about what they were going to do. It took a series of bloody defeats to restrain their bragging tongues. History may have to repeat itself.

Newspaper and radio trends are always reflected in the opinions voiced by the people. How can you expect the people of America to be really united when editors and radio commentators tell them one day that they have nothing to fear and the next day a catastrophe occurs? What do these molders of public opinion think the American masses are made of? Do they think we have to be mollycoddled and tucked in every night? For heaven's sake, give us the truth, no matter how discouraging it is. We want to see the whole tragic play, not the bright and butterfly scenes only. Give us more facts and less pap. We can take it! RALPH SCHULZE.

Advice to Tokyo

"This inhuman attack on cultural establishments is causing widespread indignation."—Japanese communique.

If a tenth of 1 per cent retaliation in terms of its own medicine is able to inspire such literature, the future holds possibilities that are boundless.

Therefore Tokyo should not again risk being caught short. It should begin preparing statements for release when the Chinese pilots now training in this country are ready to add themselves to the forces cooperating against the self-appointed "masters of Asia."

These Chinese barbarians may recall, with "widespread indignation" not unmixed with derision and restless bomb sights, the attacks against cultural strongholds waged for five years as part of Nippon's humanized war. WALTER BAHNSEN.

The Post Impressionist

Tangier, The Exotic

A few years ago when I was in Morocco, it was a protectorate of the Spanish and French governments, with the neutrality of Tangier guaranteed by these two nations and Great Britain. It was policed by Spain. Today, the status of Morocco is conjectural. Because of the phagomania of Adolf Hitler and his henchmen, many of these small peoples have gone to bed as free only to find the swastika flying on their citadels in the morning.

When nearing the Strait of Gibraltar, with the lure of strange lands ahead, the question, "Which way, captain?" presents itself. Turning to the left, toward Europe, you can take the train at Algeciras, travel through olive groves of Spain, see the Roman ruins and reach the Moorish city of Granada with its matchless Alhambra, at the foot of the Sierra Nevada Mountains.

But, if you have a flair for adventure and a taste for the bizarre and exotic, turn to the right toward Morocco and visit Tangier, but make it snappy. The northern cities along the Mediterranean are peopled by human beings very much like ourselves, especially so since the veil and the fez have been discarded in Turkey, and for a change of scenery, habitation and habilament, color and contrast, the coastal towns of Africa will supply you with all the thrills you longed for when studying your geography book.

The boats that convey the passengers to the dock are fraught with mal de mer jitters, but not the vendors, as they will sell you Moroccan silver jewelry, embellished with strange gods and precious stones, for thrice its value. There is pushing and clamoring and everybody wants to land first. There are automobiles, carriages and donkey trains. Whichever you choose you will be sorry.

Not believing in over-haste, three of us chose a carriage, but the horses were not those dashing Arab steeds we had read about, but just two worn-out plugs that nibbled the herbage while our dragoman dismounted from his perch, from time to time, argued about everything with everybody, almost coming to blows with our cruise director. He was as cocky as a hafiz—a Mohammedan who has learned the Koran—and with his white turban and long white garments his appearance was most intriguing. It seems he was intent on drawing out the time in our service by taking us in a roundabout way, where we saw natives engaged in such pastoral pastimes as the milking and feeding of goats.

The overhanging tops of the carriages were unbearably hot and the automobiles stopped functioning every third block. The donkey train seemed to be the only thing that kept moving and when we finally arrived at the citadel their riders were waiting for us. However, their feeling of glee was short-lived as they soon found the donkeys of their flashy train were covered with fleas.

Tangier has a fine residential section of foreign representatives, but these are of small interest compared with the native dwellings. Groups of white-robed Arabs sat flat on the sidewalk smoking and drinking. The Moroccans smoke keef, an overpowering narcotic taken from the hemp plant.

Wandering through the streets of Tangier is an exciting if not an altogether pleasing experience. We were warned by the ship's officers not to lose sight of our dragoman. This was not altogether easy when picking your way down strange, zigzag streets, shoulder to shoulder with donkeys, donkey boys and goats, and flanked on all sides by strange humanity and misery. But if you have never been escorted by a Tangier dragoman, you can scarcely understand what an important personage he is as he watched us like a hen hawk, driving off with threats and curses the vendors who approached us.

The spirit was willing to follow the leader, but the eye was weak. Even the trained eye of an astronomer would have been prone to wander, but not to the heavens. And, again, those weird beshrouded creatures with burning eyes, huddled at the side of the street, asking alms in the name af Allah, were a sharp incentive to quicken the step where the command of the dragoman had failed.

But all is not grotesque and shocking in Tangier as both beauty and charm are found in the delightful Moorish architecture of the homes and villas of the cultured class. There is a magnificient view from the Kasbah—the citadel of Tangier—white houses running down to meet the sea, picturesque walls, with here and there a stately minaret or palm tree. The soaring peaks of the Atlas Mountains are in the distance, and to the north Gibraltar, like a blue cloud on the horizon.

We entered the broad and beautiful courtyard of a former sultan's palace, wandered through spacious chambers and peered into those strange, little cubby holes where once wives were kept. This palace cannot compare with the seraglio at Istanbul. As we reached the courtyard, there came the muezzin's call to prayer which fell distinctly on the hushed walls of the city—"Come to prayer—prayer is better than sleep—La ilahah ila Allah—There is no other God than Allah.

When Columbus appeared at the Court of Granada, seeking aid for his first trip to the Western World, Ferdinand and Isabella were celebrating the expulsion of the Moors to Morocco. Although the Moors had evolved a higher civilization than did their Christian neighbors, when uprooted and expelled they lapsed into almost complete barbarism. Despite their eight centuries of culture they were unfitted to cope with the warring tribes of the desert.

The opulence of the Moorish governors in the Kingdom of Cordova vied with the sovereign himself in the magnificence of their palaces and gardens. Like him, they surrounded themselves with artists, poets, philosophers and scholars who were entertained in a most sumptuous manner. They developed commerce, accomplished engineering feats, and excelled in agriculture by introducing irrigation in Europe. JOHN FRANCIS STEELE.

Wages And Prices

By Ernest Lindley

Rising Pool Of Purchasing Power

WILLIAM GREEN, president of the A. F. of L., has opened a counterattack on Leon Henderson, Price Administrator. Henderson has always been friendly to organized labor, but he has had the temerity to urge a program for holding in check the rise in the cost of living—a program which includes ceilings on wages.

LINDLEY

Green denounces the rise in the cost of living during the last year and places the blame squarely on Henderson's "failure . . . to enforce effectively and vigorously price ceilings on consumer goods and to institute fair and democratic rationing." This attack illustrates the extremity into which many of the national chiefs of organized labor are leading themselves, and their followers, by narrow special pleading. Gradually they have been isolating themselves, cutting themselves off from the support of other groups and reasonable and sympathetic persons who have given labor invaluable support in beating off demands for severe war labor legislation.

Possibly the later verdict will be that Henderson and others should have insisted earlier on the Baruch plan for price ceilings on everything. But the Baruch plan also called for the freezing of wages. Henderson took the position that, within limits, wages should be allowed to go up: that this should be permitted, and even encouraged, as manufacturers moved toward full production. He called for a halt only when convinced that further rises would push up the cost of living.

GREEN ASSERTS that the evidence is "incontrovertible" that wage increases have not caused inflationary price rises. But certainly there is a point beyond which wages cannot be increased without pushing up prices. Some wage increases have been absorbed in an expanding volume of output. How much wage increases have contributed directly to the rising costs of goods is a matter for the economists to try to calculate in individual cases.

But the money going into the hands of the average wage earner has increased sharply in the last year. This is due partly to wage rises but mostly to full-time employment, often plus overtime work at higher rates of pay. And the number of wage earners also has increased substantially. There has been no corresponding expansion of the goods available for them to buy. On the contrary, the supply of goods and services for civilian use is diminishing, and will diminish rapidly during the next several months. This vast and rising pool of purchasing power on one side and the shrinking pool of goods and services on the other hold the threat of disaster.

GREEN SEEMS to think this rising pool of money can be kept from breaking through into the shrinking pool of goods and services by a wall with a number of slots in it. The wall would be fixed prices, and the slots the rationing system. But economic opinion is almost unanimous that a wall or dam powerful enough to hold back the rising pool of money cannot be built. The pressure must be relieved by draining off part of this pool into taxes and savings.

Green dodges the real question, as Philip Murray, C. I. O. president, also has done. Green says, in effect, that the standard of living of workers must go up—or at least not go down—or they won't be able to produce efficiently. Up to a certain level, a minimum level, this is true. But the living standards of better-paid wage earners must go down during the war for the same reason that the standard of living of other groups must: the goods and services for maintaining the customary standard of living will not be available.

GREEN SAYS that the British experience has shown that wage-freezing is not necessary to control the cost of living. But British workers have had a lower standard of living than ours. And their living standard today is pressed down, not only by severe rationing but by taxes. The British income-tax system reaches down much further than ours does, and the British also have a lot of consumer taxes. Even so, the British have had a marked rise in the price level, and they are still worried about the inflationary "gap"—the gap between buying power and the goods and services available for purchase.

Green denounces the Canadian over-all price and wage ceiling system put into effect last fall. Under this, no employer can raise wages or salaries without getting permission from the government. But wage earners are allowed a "cost of living bonus" a percentage increase according to rises in living costs above the base level. This Canadian system appears to have succeeded so far in halting inflation. Using August 1939, as 100, the Canadian cost of living had risen to 107 by December 1940. By November 1941, it had risen to 115.4. Then the wage-price ceiling went on. By February 1942, it had shaded off to 114.8.

One way or another, wages will have to be controlled if the cost of living is to be prevented from getting out of hand. If the national leaders of organized labor stand in the way, the Administration will have to go over their heads—or else lose the fight against inflation which it is just beginning and which, if lost, will hurt wage-earners as much as any working group in the Nation.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Private Purkey

Dear Harriet—Well, I can now drive right through a Dead End sign into a river without thinking it is nothing unusual. If I get a pass to see you and you find I don't enjoy myself none if I am not mostly under water don't think nothing of it. It is all on account of the Army has been concentrating on showing me how to travel in what is called an amphibian jeep-wagon. Also how to feel at home in a rubber boat.

* * * *

If there is any kind of war I have not never been trained for by this time it is something nobody has thought up yet. These amphibbian trucks can leave the main highway any time and take to a river, lake, swimming pool, ocean or swamp like they couldn't tell the difference. They can do everything a duck can do accept lay an egg and everything a goat can do accept swallow broken bottles.

* * * *

Sergent Mooney says mass production of these combernation taxicabs and duck boats has been ordered and I gess Uncle Sam is not planning on a dry war. I have been training in some of the experimental land, mud or sea jeep cars and I am so used to all kinds of touring condishuns that if I was home and you wanted to park some place where we wood not be disturbed I wood drive your jaloppy right out into mid-channel and just put out an anchor light.

* * * *

When I first got in one of them Fish Wagons and the skipper left terror firma and headed right out into a lake I figured there had been some confusion and he thought it was a submarine drill. But it was too late to jump and you can imagine my serprise when I found the truck was at home in the going. Nothing happened accept it slowed the old bus up a little from the land speed of 60 per hour. If you was ever in the shoot the shoots at Coney Island you got the same sensation I got after we hit the water. Only we kept going.

* * * *

So I guess maybe the Army and Navy is being consolidated or something. All we got to do now is make a battleship that can run through back alleys after witch a war vessel and a Army tank will be interchangeable. I bet all the sailors will be soar when they find the Army can spend as much time on the water as they do and not have to wear Navy pants.

* * * *

Anyhow no matter what I run up against in this war it looks like it could not come as no surprise. After the war we can get married and go on a honeymoon over Niagara Falls in a beachwagon. Leave everything to me. All my love, OSCAR.

P. S.—What's the matter lately? You got writers cramps.

The Labor Situation

By Mark Sullivan

Legislative And Administrative

THE LABOR situation, as it now lies between Congress and the President, is broader than labor. It involves wages and the possible "freezing" of them, profits of industry, cost of living inflation, sale of defense bonds, and mobilization of man power for industry.

SULLIVAN

All these are involved either in the so-called labor bills before Congress, or in the message President Roosevelt is to send Congress next Monday. The immediate legislative situation is that Congress intended to begin action on labor bills this week. They agreed to defer action until after the President sends his message.

The background of the present development began last November. A coal strike for a closed shop was being conducted by John L. Lewis. He proceeded in spite of public outcry that the strike slowed up defense industries dependent on coal. Congress was eager to pass legislation dealing with strikes, the closed shop and other aspects of labor. On November 24, the President, in a conference with Congressional leaders, assented to legislation. Thereupon the House passed a bill. It was very drastic, but the House in its irritation, gave it a majority of two to one. From the House, the bill went to the Senate Committee on Labor.

ABOUT MID-DECEMBER, representatives of the President asked the Senate Labor Committee to suspend action on the bill. They said the President wished to take steps of his own about labor. The Senate Committee suspended action. Since that day, neither this nor any other comprehensive labor measure has emerged on the floor of Congress for action. As conditions developed, and new complaints about labor matters arose, such as the one about the 40-hour week, bill after bill has been introduced. Many have had—and still have—strong support. Some have gone as far as the stage of hearings by committees. But always, with one unimportant exception, actual action by Congress has been deferred, mainly at the request of the President. The latest occasion was this week. Apparently now something must happen. Either Congress will be satisfied by the President's message to them next Monday—or Congress will proceed to act. Indeed, the important point in next Monday's message will be whether the President recommends legislation by Congress or suggests continuance of the existing course. Meanwhile, the steps taken by the President were mainly two. He set up an informal "labor cabinet" consisting of a group of high labor leaders who meet with him in a spirit in which, as the President has expressed it, all take down their hair and call each other by their first names. In addition he has appointed a War Labor Board composed of four representatives from each of labor, industry and the public. The board is not specifically authorized by Congress, nor are its decisions determined by any act of Congress. Its authority is derived from the general war powers of the President. It is apparent the President prefers that labor matters be kept within the hands of himself and his appointees, rather than be entrusted to Congress. Since some of the questions arising are deeply fundamental, this raises the constitutional issue of the division of powers between the executive and legislative branches of government. Many in Congress, and many outside, feel that in the existing condition, Congress is in effect, to this extent, abdicating. And many feel that Congress should be especially careful about living up to its function—at a time when government by legislative bodies is on trial, when in country after country legislative government has been superseded by one-man government, until only two important ones remain, the American Congress and the British Parliament.

AS LABOR matters are now handled, it is obviously important to know what are the relations between the President and the labor leaders Do they defer to him, or he to them? There is some evidence that the President puts pressure on the labor leaders by using Congress as a threat. When he was trying to persuade John Lewis to stop the coal strike last fall, he said, in a letter to Mr. Lewis: "The pressure on me to ask for legislation (on strikes) during the past couple of months . . . has been not only constant but it has been very heavy." Mr. Lewis was not moved.

There is also evidence that the labor leaders sometime resist the President. When last fall's coal strike was before a board appointed by the President and the board decided against the closed shop, two of the labor members of the board resigned, angrily and publicly, practically ending the board's existence.

At the same time, there is plain evidence that in some important matters the labor leaders have deferred to the President, against their own inclination and interest. An example is the undertaking of the labor leaders to have no strikes so long as the war lasts.

On this and other matters the attitude of Congress and the atmosphere of Washington are blurred by an underlying condition. This is, the common assumption that the President regards labor as an important body of his personal following, and of the New Deal as a political force.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

Jack Greenway

Ajo, Ariz.

ON A LITTLE PROMONTORY overlooking the vast, infernal pit of the New Garnelia copper mine there is a small green plot marked by a bronze plate as the grave of Jack Greenway, who was a great Yaler in the heydey of the Ivy League when Yale, Harvard and Princeton monopolized the All-America football teams as selected by Walter Camp. Greenway played football along with Frank Hinkey and was a star catcher on the baseball team. He was a Rough Rider with Teddy Roosevelt and was a daring, patriotic and spectacular man, but the most sensational exploit in which he participated in a life of considerable action was one of the bitterest episodes in the history of labor relations in the United States. This was the Bisbee deportation of 1917 in which a posse of mine executives, foremen and the like rounded up 1140 Communists, then operating as the I. W. W., or Industrial Workers of the World, and known commonly as the Wobblies, and other workers; herded them into a train of box cars and shipped them over to Columbus, N. Mex. From there they dispersed and a strike was broken which was curtailing the output of copper necessary for the American Army and the Allies in the first World War.

Bisbee was a tough, mixed town dominated by the companies. There were Turks, Armenians, Mexicans, Cornishmen, Welshmen, Irish and those middle Europeans who were commonly called Bohunks or Hunkies, and a lot of native Americans. The Wobblies, like the Browder Communists up to the hour of Hitler attack on Russia, were pro-Russian and anti-American and were trying to sabotage American war industry, knife the A. E. F. in the back and extend the Russian revolution to the whole world. They had agents all over the Northwest and all the bums and itinerants in the hobo jungles had to carry Wobbly cards. They were very dangerous men and their mission in Bisbee was hostile to a country involved in war with the most powerful military nation the world had ever seen up to that time.

THE STRIKE which the Wobs fomented lasted a month until such men as Greenway, who were pretty tough babies, themselves, put their heads together and simply decided to run the Wobbly leaders out of town. Men who took part in the roundup and deportation admit now that they made a very bad mistake in failing to discriminate between Wobblies and others and they marvel that they got away with the deportation as planned instead of kicking up a first-class civil war. They made enemies of many good men who will not forgive a shoving around and they would have had a terrible problem on their hands if the men in the ball park had just sat tight and refused to budge.

Greenway had a machine gun on a roof commanding the park and some of the vigilantes were armed, but some relied only on their fists or clubs. The situation dissolved, however, when a boss singled out a big foreigner who seemed to be one of the leading Communists and roared at him to get going. The Wobbly obeyed and this set the procession in motion, but the bitterness which was engendered that day will not die until the last of the deportees is gone. The Germans might have had a hand in the strike, although the Wobs were pro-Russian.

WHEN GREENWAY was called to Washington and Newton Baker, who was Secretary of War, bawled him out for his part in the outrage, he said he would be very glad to send out and bring all the men back if Mr. Baker desired. But he added that if this was done Mr. Baker would have to go without copper from Bisbee. They were not brought back.

Shortly thereafter Greenway went back into the Army to fight in his second war for the United States and went to France as a combat officer. He was hit twice and came back to Arizona, where he lies in a grave which is strangely similar in outlook over the mountains and desert to Boot Hill at Tombstone.

Mrs. Greenway, known all over the State as Isabella, was in Congress a few years ago and you may recall that in the early days of the New Deal her close friendship with Mrs. Roosevelt was the subject of much mention. Mrs. Roosevelt had been her maid of honor, or vice versa, I forget just which. She is now Mrs. King and one night I met a miner from Bisbee in a little sandwich joint 'way up the mountains where the air is better who said Mrs. King got him a steady job up there for his health when he developed T. B. and allowed that the widow of Jack Greenway was the finest woman in the world, bar none.

France On The Eve

By Barnet Nover

A Quisling Speaks His Piece

"MY RETURN to power," said Pierre Laval in a broadcast to the French people this week, "has a significance which escapes nobody."

NOVER

Only this once in the course of his remarks did the French Quisling tell the truth. The rest of his speech was a tissue of bald-faced lies, some so monstrous on their face that one wonders how even Laval had the effrontery to utter them.

Thus, on the very day that the Nazi authorities in Occupied France were slaughtering 30 hostages and threatening to slaughter 80 more, the swarthy traitor took occasion to praise Hitler to the skies as a generous conqueror, one who had never sought to humiliate France, one who had offered that country a "place worthy of her history in the new Europe."

IT IS EXTREMELY doubtful whether Laval fooled the French people by such balderdash. It is unlikely that he believes it himself. He is a man who has been on every side of every fence, who has made a principle of being unprincipled, whose sole criterion of every policy has been whether it meant power and pelf for Laval. If it did he was for it. If it did not he was against it.

To assume that Laval, the very embodiment of cynicism, has fallen in love with Hitler, actually regards him as the architect of a future heaven on earth is to assume the impossible.

The man is incapable of no such metamorphosis. His genuflections before the Fuehrer can only be explained on the ground that it suits Laval's interests to do so. That the "new order" of which he would make France an integral part would mean the complete destruction of everything fine and noble and decent that France has stood for does not concern the Auvergnat Quisling.

He is for Laval first, last and all the time. And being for Laval he is for Hitler for Hitler is the source of the power he, Laval, now exercises. Without the protecting shield that Hitler can throw around him Laval's life expectancy would rapidly be reduced to nothing. As a traitor Laval can expect no mercy from the decent elements that some day will again come into possession of France. And realizing that Laval is determined to do everything possible to prevent those elements from ever again coming into power.

LAVAL'S speech was thus intended to serve a double purpose. The first was to persuade Hitler that he had made no mistake in entrusting him with power. The second was to convince the French people that the course which Vichy was planning to pursue was in their interest.

Laval said everything Hitler wanted to hear. He said everything which, because the very opposite had been said at Riom, made the Fuehrer furious with Petain for having permitted that trial to take place.

France's declaration of war on Germany, said Laval, was a "crime." The shortage of food is not due to the systematic looting carried out by the Reich but the consequence of "egoism and lust for money." The "new order" will mean "new cities" where "labor will be protected, honored and magnified." Farmers have nothing to fear but everything to hope from the regime now being born." Hitler is a magnanimous conqueror. Germany is keeping bolshevism from France. The choice of France is that between joining Germany or resigning herself "to disappearing from the civilized world." France was betrayed by Britain. The policy of "entente and reconciliation with Germany must be practiced with loyalty." And so on.

LAVAL spoke in French. But his words had a German accent, the same accent that is so noticeable in the Norwegian employed by Quisling, the Rumanian spoken by Antonescu and all the other languages prostituted by the other traitors of occupied Europe.

What he said does not matter. What he now attempts to do matters a great deal, not only to the French, but to all the peoples of the United Nations as well. For there can be no doubt whatever that if Laval has his way the final betrayal of France to Hitler will take place. His return to power has in words already quoted "a significance which escapes nobody."

It must not be allowed to escape us. We cannot wait until the traitorous triumvirate of Laval, Darlan and Petain present us and the world with an accomplished fact. We cannot wait to have Hitler's French accomplices turn Madagascar over to the Japanese as previously they turned over Indo-China, give bases to Hitler at Dakar and Casablanca, convoy Nazi troops to Libya, attempt to recapture Syria. These moves must be anticipated and prevented.

The people of France are our friends, our allies in spirit. The fact that Laval was careful to avoid more than a casual mention of the United States even while bitterly castigating Great Britain shows that he senses this fact, and fears it. But we must make it clear to all the world that the Vichy regime has become an enemy regime and must be treated as such. There is no time to lose.

Beat Hitler First, Chinese Advise

W. Alsop, jr., former newspaper commentator, whose column appeared locally in The Washington Post. Clapper said that he was told that Alsop was being held by the Japanese in Stanley Prison in Hongkong.

"People who had come out of Hongkong told me," Clapper said, "that the food was none too good—a little rice and an occasional green vegetable. Apparently the Japs have not allowed the Red Cross agents to get anything into Hongkong."

Alsop, who had resigned his commission in the Navy to become administrative adviser to Col. Claire Chennault, head of the American Volunteer Air Force in China, failed to catch the last plane out of Hongkong before the Japs entered.

When Alsop first came to Washington, he weighed 240 pounds. He underwent a reducing treatment at Johns Hopkins University Hospital, and got down to 170 pounds. He managed to keep himself at that weight, notwithstanding the fact that he was something of a gourmet.

Rangoon Loss A Disaster

Clapper, in telling about his flight to the Far East, said he had never before realized the enormous difficulties involved in getting war weapons and equipment to the Middle East, India and China. A ship, he learned, could take three times as much stuff across the North Atlantic as it could to India in the same length of time.

The Chinese, he said, considered the loss of Rangoon to be much more of a disaster than the fall of Singapore, since it cut off their chief route for supplies.

This, together with several other difficulties connected with the Burma Road, the Scripps-Howard writer said, had caused the Chinese to revise somewhat their ideas on global strategy.

"When they come to figuring on any decisive operation," he said, "they are driven back to a realization of the extreme difficulty of getting material into China. Bottoms are scarce and Japan has air and naval superiority in vital areas. If Germany could be knocked out, the navies of both the United States and Britain would be released to concentrate on Japan."

Chinese Undefeated

Clapper said that every American who visited China came away with a profound admiration of the country.

"There is no defeatism in China," he said. "You can't find anybody who doesn't think that Japan will be beaten. They realize that the short-run picture may be tough, but they havent any doubt about what's going to happen in the long run.

"Wherever I went, I found agreement on one thing: We have to concentrate our strength instead of spreading it out too thin. To achieve victory we must strike at the heart of Germany and Japan, and not bother so much about nipping off the tentacles. The best chance of victory right now lies in Russia."

German Worker Who Fled Prison Camp Tells Of Refined Tortures at Hands of Gestapo

By Kurt Kokorniak

(Distributed by International News Service with Special Permission of "London Calling." Copyright, 1942.)

This is the first article in a series by a German aircraft worker who escaped to London from Nazi Germany's dreaded Gestapo prison camp at Sueplingen.

London, April 21.—I am a German. I was born in Halberstadt on the ninth of October, 1905. I was educated at the secondary school there, and then went as an apprentice to the Halberstadt Metalwarenfabrik. From 1923 to 1931 I worked as an airplane fitter at Junkers in Dassaut, and from 1931 to 1936 at the Gruson works in Magdeburg. In 1936 I got into trouble with the Gestapo for the first time.

Why? That can be told in a word. I had grown up in the misery of the postwar period and, though I didn't bother about politics, I knew one thing: A new war would be Germany's ruin. As a fitter in the armament industry I had plenty of opportunities of seeing what was going on. Hitler talked about peace and was arming for war.

I did not join any political party, but I said openly what I thought on two occasions. Also, I helped voluntarily to distribute leaflets protesting against the Nazis' suicidal conquest policy. Then I was denounced by an informer.

Got Over Frontier

Friends warned me in time, and I succeeded in getting over the frontier into France; I was followed by the warrant for my arrest. That was in 1936.

I wandered through France looking for work and then went to Spain. Hardly had I set foot there when the Spanish civil war broke out. I had to watch German junker planes bombing the village near Madrid where I lived, and I had helped to build these machines.

After the defeat of the republic I became a fitter on the airdrome at Logrono, near Saragossa. I married a Spanish girl and thought I had found peace at last. For two years everything went well. Then, for the second time I became the victim of that epidemic which has ravaged the German character since Hitler appeared: the denunciation pest. A German Nazi named Franz Luebs, who worked on the same airdrome at Logrono, denounced me to the Spanish branch of the Gestapo.

The Gestapo arranged for my extradition to Germany by the Spanish authorities. On April 26, 1941, I was arrested while at my job. I was kept in prison in Barcelona for three weeks; on May 16 I was deported to Germany in a Lufthansa transport plane.

Planned to Leap

In the same plane there were four other German prisoners that the Gestapo was carrying off from Spain. Three had been volunteers in the republican army. The fourth was a school teacher named Martin Fassbender. When he heard that he was being taken to Germany he cut his arteries. He was saved, against his will; but as he had cut right through the tendons both his hands were half paralyzed. I myself had hoped that we would be fitted with parachutes and that I would be able to jump out over Spain or France. But we didn't get any. . . .

So I was back again in Germany, five years after my first flight. We were given the first taste of homecoming immediately on landing at the airdrome. We were put into a section of the customs barracks—and there the SS went to work on us. I won't forget those first kicks and punches. They were the first steps on that hellish journey we had started.

From the airport we were taken in a lorry to the head office of the Gestapo in Stuttgart—in Buchsanstrasse. There we had to wait several hours and then were sent, again in a lorry, to the Gestapo transit camp for Germans from abroad in Welzheim.

"Dust Inspection" Torture

The camp is about 20 kilometers from Stuttgart. It is popularly called the Welzheim Camp for Grumblers. You probably don't know much about the conditions in the camp; these things may not be talked about in Germany.

For example, have you ever heard of the so-called "dust inspection?"

This is a discovery which sounds harmless but which is one of the most refined methods of torture. In the morning, and at any time of the day they liked, the SS came into the room wearing white gloves and carrying torches. The room was dark and neglected. The SS shone their torches and went over the floorboards and shelves with their white gloves, after first throwing our mattresses about—of course the mattresses, the straw of which was never renewed, threw out clouds of dust. By this method the SS people found dust on their white gloves at every inspection.

For 18 hours of the day we dusted. If anyone was caught sitting down or stopping for a moment to catch his breath he was taken outside by the SS. There SS men held down his hands and feet and proceeded to thrash him.

Examined for a Week

I spent 13 days in Welzheim. Then I was taken with a consignment of prisoners to Magdeburg, where I was placed in solitary confinement for 14 days to break my spirit. Then I was examined for a week, almost without interruption.

There is a limit to a man's power of resistance; after three weeks they had me where they wanted me—that is to say, I signed the protocol they put before me without reading it. I thought it didn't matter any more, they'd finish me off anyway.

When I had signed I was told that I would appear before the People's Court in Berlin. Meantime the war with Russia broke out and the cells in the Magdeburg Gestapo office became filled with workers accused of sympathy with the Soviet Union.

Because of this I was transferred on June 26 to the Gestapo camp at Sueplingen, where I was to wait until the day I was to appear at the People's Court.

(Tomorrow: Kurt Kokorniak tells how he made a hair-raising get-away from the Gestapo prison camp at Sueplingen.)

Not One Bomber Delivered, Navy Seizes Brewster Plant

Special Dispatch to The Post

New York, April 21.—The Navy took over three plants of the Brewster Aeronautical Corporation because the management had failed to deliver a single one of the latest type dive bombers it was scheduled to produce, it was revealed today by Capt. George C. Westervelt, U. S. N., retired, appointed last Monday to take command of the plants.

In an interview, Capt. Westervelt said he did not know why the company had failed to produce, nor how long ago the first deliveries had been promised.

Retooling was begun at the Brewster plant last October. At that time company officials announced that deliveries were to begin in six weeks. Charles Kerrigan, regional director of the United Automobile Workers of America, an affiliate of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, which has a contract with the management, said that a test plane had been completed two months ago and normal production would have started in two weeks under private management.

The three plants are located at Long Island City, Newark, N. J., and Johnsville, Pa. The Long Island City plant has two buildings, and as a result, was sometimes referred to as two plants. Captain Westervelt said this was an error and the two buildings were part of one plant.

The first action of the Navy on taking over, Captain Westervelt said, was to suspend the board of directors, including James Work, chairman, but to retain all other company officers.

Capt. Westervelt after a conference with Kerrigan and other union officials, said that labor was in no way responsible for the situation, and that present labor conditions would continue. Similarly, he said, he had no information that enemy aliens or "pro-Nazis" had obtained positions either among management or labor. If investigation discloses there are any pro-Nazis, he said, "the Navy will take appropriate steps."

Pressed for the real reason, for the company's failure, Captain Westervelt said: "I don't know yet. I intend to investigate and try to correct the situation." He indicated that the Government hoped to turn the plant back to its private owners as quickly as possible.

Pine Hawkers Coming to Folk Festival

THE Pine Hawkers are coming to the ninth annual National Folk Festival at Constitution Hall May 6, 7, 8 and 9 under sponsorship of The Washington Post Folk Festival Association.

The trio of young men from the Pine Barrens—as they call that part of New Jersey around Mount Holly and Tom's River—made a decided hit with audiences that heard them last year, in their first appearance here, when they were presented by Dorothea Lawrence, well-known concert and opera singer.

The Pine Hawkers consist of Bill Britton, who plays the fiddle; Merce Ridgway, who swings a guitar; and Walt Pritton, who relies on an old-fashioned banjo to supplement his tones in singing songs that had never been heard outside the Pine Barrens till Miss Lawrence happened to spend a summer vacation down their way and heard some of this little-known folk music while following her favorite sport of searching out folk music for her book, "Primer of American Music."

The boys call themselves The Pine Hawkers because they live in the New Jersey "Pines" and "hawk" berries from the luxuriant cranberry bogs of the New Jersey flats. But there's nothing flat about their music. It runs the colorful gamut from a "Constitution Hornpipe" and impudent "Fandangos" brought to Barnegat Bay by Spanish pirates 300 years ago (or so they say), to quaint and humorous tunes such as "Broom Waltz" and the raucous jail song —"When You Go to Mount Holly."

The Pine Hawkers are among the original settlers' families of the Pine Barrens—sturdy Anglo-Saxon stock with a slight tinge of Delaware Indian. It was their ancestors who made the first glass manufactured in America—famous with all glass collectors as Lebanon Glass.

Bill Britton does dances reminiscent of old "Windjammer Days;" he goes so fast his heels never touch the ground. Merte Ridgway specializes in songs of the cranberry bogs and a few ditties so dismal they aren't to be outstripped by the most plaintive cowboy songs. The hornpipes that the trio do are different from the usual songs of that type and these particular tunes have been handed down by ear from generation to generation of the Britton family to which both Bill and Walt belong, being double cousins.

The National Folk Festival this year will offer four matinees at which students of public, private and parochial schools may attend for a special student's admittance price of 25 cents. All that is necessary is for a student to identify himself or herself as such in applying for tickets at the Folk Festival box office in The Post Building.

Trim Coiffure Supplants Frothy Bob

The not-so-trim glamour bob (shown above) is believed by some coiffeurs not the best hair-do for the times. They recommend the trim, short hair that can be brushed briskly and easily pushed into place

Lovely to look at, easy to keep, is the coiffure pictured below, styled by M. De Laet, exponent of short, healthy, lustrous hair. This arrangement is appropriate to wear with tiny flower-laden or wide-brimmed hats, uniform cap or formal frocks

Streamlined Hair Reflects Trend of Times

By Carolyn Abbott.

The Post Beauty Editor

STREAMLINING of hair to a length of about 2 inches is the present trend in smart coiffures, which are reflecting the brisk efficiency of the times. An advocate of short, shining and healthy hear is M. DeLaet, stylist and consultant of permanent waving, now at the beauty salon of a local store to advise patrons on hair problems.

"Hair is only as pretty as it is healthy," says M. DeLaet, who has advised Claudette Colbert and the late Jean Harlow, both known for their lovely hair. "And hair cannot be radiantly beautiful if it is mistreated."

Brush Hair Well

Good care, says this authority, means brushing the hair, having it properly permanented—not burned, and seeing that it is cut by the right technique, not chopped. Since the heat of apartments and offices dries out the hair in the winter months, it needs extra care to combat this drying.

To condition the hair for permanenting M. DeLaet advises cream packs scientifically prepared by hair and scalp specialists. A soft permanent is especially desired when the hair is cut short so it will fall into a natural wave. The cream pack helps the natural wave to show up. After the hair has been put into good condition, individually styled and permanented, then the woman should see to it that it is kept that way until the hair grows out and another permanent is needed. Cutting and shaping is needed at least every two weeks.

Advocates Naturalness

M. DeLaet is an advocate of naturalness in hair. Simplicity he thinks is smart—not a lot of curls—and that it is shape and line that counts most in a head of healthy hair. Mangy locks, he believes, are outmoded for the well-coiffured woman.

He gives the following advice about the following types of hair:

Baby hair—This type of hair is silky, fine and usually lifeless. Often the condition results from lack of care, cheap permanents and not being cut properly. It should be cut in a graduated manner and always should be conditioned with the cream pack before permanent is given.

Luxuriant hair—Bulky hair should be shaped properly, a reliable permanent given, be cut short to start with and kept trimmed. The bulk and weight of heavy hair spoils the hair dress. If allowed to remain in its thick, long condition it can never be properly dressed at home.

Tinted hair—Should always be tinted to go with the person's natural coloring. When going to the salon for new permanent the client should always advise the operator of the natural coloring of the hair.

The Gentler Sex

The Silver Lining

(What war restrictions will mean on the credit side of the ledger.)

No more big patch pockets on "hippy" women (or men) to add further bulges to their figures.

No pleats in the back of skirts for the girl in the hall bedroom to press in every night in her sessions over the ironing board.

An end of ante-bellum belles in crinoline and 20-yard skirts trying to appear naive and fluttery while drinking machine age cocktails; an end to the seasonal scares that dreadnought corsets and 6-yard, beruffled petticoats are returning.

No more—let us hope—throngs of "armless" women (minus only the tin cups) on the streets with "extra" coats draped about their shoulders.

No more double breasted suits on chubby men who are neglecting their Indian clubs.

No more top-heavy women in long torso jackets with about one foot of skirt showing.

No more feminine heartbreaks over failure to get a new model refrigerator such as Mrs. X across the street has.

No more worry because your kitchen range, your vacuum cleaner or your washing machine lacks the gadget that some other woman's has. ("After all, these priorities. . . .")

No more paying for fancy wrappings and elegant jars and boxes for cosmetics rather than for the ingredients inside of them.

No more having brain fatigue trying to decide which of a dozen powder shades you should take and then worrying over whether you should have decided on Mornin Whisper Blush Rose, or Evening Dusk Appte Blossom.

No more being told when you take your last year's rouge container back for a refill that the container size and style has changed and that the refills won't fit your old model and you'll have to buy an entirely new container. (The scarcity of metal will stop that racket.)

No more feeling gauche and inferior because your bag and shoes don't match, because your gloves aren't the exact shade to blend with your ensemble, because your blouse is an off color that kills your suit, because the flower in your hat doesn't harmonize with the one in your lapel ("Of course it's simply impossible now to get the right colors anywhere.")

No more seeing husky women hail taxis to ride two blocks; no more debating whether to save yourself by hailing a taxi or save your money by riding home on the street car (you may even have to walk); no more having to be on time anywhere because no one will expect you to be. ("My dear you know what transportation is these days!")

An end to the pursuit of the never-attained right stocking shade—and the comforting assurance that the next woman you see on the streets won't have found it.

The satisfaction of knowing that even though you didn't get the right blouse or the right suit or the right dress, no one else will be able to find them.

No more feeling apologetic for slightly outdated clothes and down at the heels furniture (It can always be blamed on priorities); no more listening at bridge parties to tales of the new rugs, electric gadgets, dishes, dinner rings, mink coats, etc., that successful husbands have given their wives; no more trying to keep up with the Joneses' in automobiles, bathrooms parties, vacations, etc.; no more frittering away of time and money on the underbrush of trivia that has cluttered feminine pathways.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Well-Financed Young Couple Boost Army Morale By Asking Soldiers to Sunday Night Suppers, To Meet Charming Girls; Urge Plan on Others

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband is in his early thirties and I in my late twenties. Our combined salaries afford us a very comfortable living. For some time, we have wanted to help bring together, in an acceptable way, some of the soldiers who are stationed near Washington and some of the girls who have come here recently to do war work.

We had worked out an excellent plan, easily put into practice and far-reaching in scope, which we presented to the U. S. O. and the affiliated District organization, asking their help and advice. But I cannot overemphasize their lack of cooperation. It could be, of course, that I presented the idea badly, but so many of our friends have had similar unsympathetic treatment at the hands of such organizations that we are inclined to take an unfavorable view of the local set-up.

Our plan, briefly, is this: We have a list of attractive young women of our acquaintance who have agreed to accept last-minute invitations from us for Sunday evenings, unless previously engaged. We call two girls each Sunday, to have supper with us and a couple of soldier guests. It is agreed that when a girl accepts the first "blind date," she will give her supper partner another date the following Sunday, asking him to bring a friend along. During the week, she finds another girl to share that double date; and this girl, in turn, agrees to go through the same procedure. It makes a chain of dates, with the young people formally introduced, and you can see how it spreads.

We meet our soldiers by talking with them as we give them a lift, to and from camp, occasionally. When we meet a boy we like, we ask him to telephone us when he comes to town; and we explain that we will get him a date with a nice, attractive girl. The response is most enthusiastic! The first two boys who call us each Sunday are our guest for the evening.

We have a not-too-small apartment and a fair-sized kitchen, in which we turn our two soldiers loose on Sunday night.. They are free to use their imagination as chefs and planners; and believe me, they turn out some really good meals! The girls and I are the "helpers." We do the "dirty work" of setting the table, preparing the vegetables, etc. (We don't wash the dishes afterwards, although one evening there was a homesick lad who wanted to do the dishes so badly we let him.) After supper, we play the piano and sing; or we talk or play cards, etc.—all simple entertainment which saves the soldier's money. We take it upon ourselves to get the girls home safely.

My purpose in writing is to ask if you will give the plan a boost, by publishing this letter in your column—in the hope that other young married couples of comfortable means will follow our example and start a similar program of Sunday night suppers for soldiers. The plan is so simple it runs by itself. And besides, it's great fun for the hosts. We have made some very good friends.

There must be many nice girls in Washington, who are newly arrived here and lonesome and who have no "proper way" of meeting young men. Would you help us in adding their names to our list? Any girls who are interested could write me a note, in care of your column, and you could forward the message to me. What do you say? In case you would want a personal reference, I am enclosing the name of our minister; but please keep it confidential. It is for your information only. Sincerely, M. D. M.

Cynical May Object, But Idea Has Merit

DEAR M. D. M.: It seems to me that more widespread hospitality of this spontaneous and genuine "good neighbor" sort would work wonders in boosting the morale (and safeguarding the morals) of the tens of thousands of lonely young persons now congregated in and near Washington to support the war effort. It is to be regretted, I think, that the USO and affiliated groups are too burdened down with the intricacies of mass recreation planning to take this modest individualistic idea under their collective wing and nurse it along.

I realize, of course, that cynical minds can easily find fault with your program; and the first objection to be raised probably will be that (1) you are naively bringing together, and thereafter turning loose to their own brash devices, unvouched-for youngsters who are as much strangers to you as they are to each other; and that (2) you are guilty, therefore, of a thoughtlessly (or recklessly) irresponsible attitude toward the very persons you desire to befriend.

However, when one considers, first, that the best of our breed is enrolled in the military and civil service; second, that each individual thus employed is drilled in a sense of responsibility (indeed, of patriotic duty) to measure up to a high standard of moral, as well as mental and physical, fitness; and, third, that all are sufficiently intelligent or socially educated to know something of the nasty consequences unleashed by profligate or lawless behavior,—consequences that tend to be doubly disastrous to a person holding a position of public trust,—it is reasonable to hope that your ingenuous faith in your stranger-guests' trustworthiness is not foolishly misplaced; and will not be arrantly abused.

We must face the fact that, with youth everywhere abandoning home ties to find a place in the front line of the "total war" engagement with the enemy, it becomes virtually an impossible proposition to provide them close chaperonage in all their recreational activities. And this being so, your warm hearted gesture of (1) collecting as many as you can reach, in order to give them friendships conventionally sponsored, and (2) thereafter putting them, by implication, on their honor to justify your benevolent endorsement, seems to me to be potentially as helpful, in a supplementary way, as the subsidized bureaucratic efforts to provide and police more impersonal, large-scale entertainment projects. M. H.

Mint Jelly

Mint or currant jelly in lemon cases (halves of lemons reserved after juice and pulp have been used) lend a gay note and give extra flavor to a platter of hot or cold lamb, veal or ham.

Average Woman Walker May Aim at Four Miles an Hour

By Ida Jean Kain

SOMETIME ago when I wrote breezily that you should be able to walk 5 miles an hour, a gentleman living in Philadelphia expressed his doubts. He announced that he was a veteran walker and that he didn't think any woman—meaning me, too—could walk that fast. Nothing daunted by his array of figures to the contrary, I set out to prove him wrong. He is right!

So, I am now backing down—about a mile. In a test sprint I did manage to get my speed up to 4.6 miles per hour, but it was only by going so fast that a small boy who watched me streak past was moved to shout, "Hiyo, Silver!"

Walking Speed

Until then I had been so sure it would be easy that I had called Alice Marble, our United States assistant director of physical fitness, to come along with me on this little 5 m. p. m. jaunt. She took me right up on the invitation. Then, thank goodness, we had a rainstorm and it was while we were waiting for the weather to clear that I decided to try it out for practice.

I corralled a reluctant companion and we started off with brisk enthusiasm. For the first 3 miles we stepped right along. But at that point she dropped out with a pleasant "Carry on! Have a nice walk!" and hopped a bus home.

I kept on going at what I believed was top speed. But by the end of the hour I had walked only 4 miles—and I hadn't been loitering! After waiting a day to catch my breath, I tried again. The second time I succeeded in stepping up my speed to 4.6 miles per hour in spite of two hills. But I am ready to admit that the pace is much too fast.

Instead of carrying out my intention of walking with Miss Marble, I've called her up and called it off. Frankly, I wouldn't be surprised if she could do it—her elegs are a bit longer than mine.

Good Pace

But having timed myself, I am quite willing to admit the gentleman dissenter is right when he says that "probably 99 people out of 100, both men and women, very much underestimate the time required to walk a definite distance and very much overestimate their power to walk that distance. They would all find out if walking against a definite time with a watch."

As he pointed our further, the marching time of our troops is 3.4 miles per hour and they do not, under ordinary circumstances, march continuously. They rest for 10 minutes out of each hour, which makes the rate 2.84 miles per hour. What is good enough for the Army is certainly good enough for the average woman.

Just to make your walking more interesting, you might try timing yourself. Anyone in the pink of condition could even aim at 4 m. p. h. But, as a rule, set yourself a good pace, not too brisk for comfort, and stick to it. Exercise does not have to be strenuous to be beneficial. Don't strain.

Surface Oven Improves Top of Stove Cookery

DO YOU have trouble with chops, sausages and chicken browning unevenly and perhaps sticking to pan? That condition can be eliminated if one of the new surface cookers built on the convection method is used.

This new type of surface cooker furnishes an even temperature to all points. Less fuel is required because the heat is applied where needed, without waste. Not only are foods cooked thoroughly, but the under side is not over cooked.

So versatile is this equipment that potatoes can be baked, corn bread done to a golden crispness, ice box cookies baked and even a roast can be cooked to a delicious tenderness right on top of the stove. When the hot days come it will be satisfying to know that oven meals are possible without benefit of the oven, because this cooker will do the job adequately.

Mashed potatoes and cream gravy, those two "musts" with fried chicken, can be kept hot without drying out on this cooker. Beans and apples can be baked in it, and it is just the thing to use to make toasted cheese sandwiches to a turn. Following are directions for achieving a tender, juicy beef roast cooked on the surface oven:

Roast Beef

Heat surface oven and roaster pot on high heat. When it feels hot to your hand remove the lid and place roast in container. Take fork and push roast around a few times to get grease started. (There is always a little fat on a roast.) Then place lid on roaster and turn heat low. The hot container will force juices of the meat to the top and it will become very rare for a while. In a short time it will become nice and brown where it was rare. After it becomes brown, salt and pepper and add vegetables if so desired. Give roast same time per pound on top burner, using surface oven, that you would in oven. This is waterless baking and the meat has a delicious flavor because it bakes in its own juice. And if the heat is turned low as soon as the roast is nicely started there is absolutely no danger of sticking or burning.

Royal Couple Arriving Here Tomorrow; Official Dinner Friday Evening

COMING TO Washington this weekend at the invitation of President and Mrs. Roosevelt are Crown Princess Juliana of the Netherlands and Prince Bernhard, who are expected to arrive tomorrow. Their visit will be brief—only three days—and Saturday night will find them out of the Capital once more.

While their forthcoming trip to Washington is listed as "private," the dinner to be given in their honor at the Netherlands Legation on Friday evening will have only high-ranking officials on the guest list. On other visits to Washington, Crown Princess Juliana has been entertained at large receptions to which several hundred guests, representing a cross-section of the Capital's social and official life, have been invited. This time, the party will be much smaller; a different type; and strictly a state affair.

I understand that the Crown Princess and her husband will return to America later in the season for a longer sojourn; will visit a number of other cities, and then will spend some time with friends in the nearby country, before returning to Canada once more.

CASTING A PALL over Washington society yesterday was the news that Mrs. William D. Leahy, wife of the American Ambassador at Vichy, had died following an operation a few days ago.

I don't think I'm exaggerating when I say there never was an official hostess more popular in this city than was Mrs. Leahy during the many years she and her husband lived in Washington. There's always good reason when anybody in the hustle and bustle of this Nation's capital manages to collect scores of friends during a tour of official duty.

I don't know of any woman who had more than Mrs. Leahy.

First time I ever saw her was exactly four years ago tomorrow. The party itself, I don't remember. But I'll never forget Mrs. Leahy's warm smile, nor the twinkle in her eyes when I asked her exactly how her name was pronounced. "I've an idea I'll be referring frequently to the Chief of Naval Operations, and his wife," I said. "But I'm not sure how to pronounce the name. Everybody seems to call it Lay-Hee. Is that right?"

"Well, no, it really isn't," she replied. "But it doesn't make much difference. If you just call it 'Lay' it's more nearly correct."

After that, I felt there was a kind of bond between us; and when I happened to be standing nearby, and somebody coasted up to greet her effusively with a "And-how-are-you Mrs. Lay-Hee?" I used to catch her eye and glimpse that same twinkle.

• • • •

THERE WERE TIMES, too, at many a party when her sister, Mrs. Albert Niblack, used to find herself being greeted as "Mrs. Lay-Hee," and Mrs. Leahy, "Mrs. Niblack" although the resemblance between the two was not so marked that a close observer would get the two confused. But each took it in her stride; smiled sweetly, and said something to the effect that "Yes, we're sisters," . . . and let it go at that.

I talked to Mrs. Leahy at some length the day her husband received his appointment as Governor of Puerto Rico.

"Well that means I've got to learn Spanish," she said, "Or at least brush up on it . . . You know I've had visions of spending my declining years in this country; seeing my son and daughter-in-law and grandchildren as often as possible. This is the beginning of a new life for me, and I don't know whether I'll like it or not." Then she added that having established many homes in more than 30 years as a naval officer's wife, she wasn't too perturbed over possibilities of the new experience. Later she confided to intimates that she found the life as "the Governor's Lady" in Puerto Rico much more fascinating than she had expected. "But I'm still looking forward to spending my final years in America," she added.

If her husband had been a less successful diplomat that wish might have been granted. Instead, she soon found herself en route to Vichy, the most difficult post in the foreign service.

• • • •

EVER SINCE the Leahys have been in France, Mrs. Niblack has been continuously besieged by friends for news of them. A few days ago she said she had just received a letter from Vichy and that Mrs. Leahy said she was quite well. News that she had just been subjected to an operation came on the heels of the announcement that Ambassador Leahy had been asked to return here for consultation. . . .

The former Louise Tennent Harrington, daughter of a San Francisco banker, Mrs. Leahy came to Washington with her husband in 1931, and soon thereafter established herself as a popular hostess in the service set.

Tall, handsome, with blue eyes, a clear complexion and reddish brown hair that in more recent years was threaded with silver, Mrs. Leahy was invariably well dressed. In her unassuming and gracious way she made friends wherever she went . . . and she seemed to go everywhere. Her chief interests, however, centered in her home and family; her sister; work for the Navy Relief Society and the Red Cross, and numerous civic activities.

Like many another person in Washington, I felt that the Leahys were being temporarily "lent" to foreign service, and that one of these days, before long, both would be back to resume the place in Washington that nobody else can fill. Certainly, Mrs. Leahy will be missed by scores of close friends who had promised themselves that she would return "before long."

Everywhere I went yesterday I seemed to meet somebody who mentioned her passing. And yesterday afternoon, because of her death, there was at least one party that went on without benefit of the hostess who had planned it. The person in question was Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner, who had arranged the fete in honor of her niece and house guest, Mrs. Sayre Macneal, of California. But Mrs. Miner turned over the duties as hostess to Miss Carolyn Nash and Mrs. Macneal and spent the afternoon with Mrs. Niblack. Like both the latter and Mrs. Leahy, Mrs. Miner hails from California and has been a close friend of "the Harrington girls" for years. "Entertaining on the very day Mrs. Leahy died was something I would not dream of doing," she said.

Mrs. Macneal and her son, James, arrived here a couple of days ago for a brief visit and are being widely entertained. On the calendar last evening was the dinner given for Mrs. Macneal by Mrs. McCeney Werlich at her home on Sixteenth Street.

• • • •

Peru's Chief Of Protocol Is Honored

Making preparations for the arrival of the President of Peru is the mission of Gonzalo Narcissus Aramburu, Chief of Protocol of the Peruvian Foreign Office, but the adage about "all work and no play" is believed in south of the border as well as here.

On the "play" side of his calendar was the cocktail party Monday given in his honor by the Assistant Commercial Counselor of the Peruvian Embassy and Senora de Pardo de Zela, jr. The latter is the former Miss Patricia Gill of Westchester, N. Y.

The Minister at Large in charge of the Consulate General of Peru in New York, Francisco Pardo de Zela, was among the guests at the party.

Others among the guests at the fete, which took place at the Takoma Park residence of Senor and Senora Pardo de Zela, were the Peruvian Naval Commissioner, Admiral Carlos Rotalde; Felipe Rotalde and Senora de Rotalde; the Air Attache to the Peruvian Embassy in London, Commander Pedro Griva, and the Air Attache at the embassy here, Col. Armando Revoredo.

Also the former Mayor of Lima, Eduardo Dibos Dammert; Commissioner Augusto Maurer of the Ministry of Finance of Peru and Senora de Maurer; Luis Ortiz de Zevallos; the Counselor of the Peruvian Embassy and Senora de Elguera; the Naval Attache and Senora de Labarthe and Senorita Teresa Labarthe; the Military Attache and Senora de Sarmiento; the Commercial Counselor and Senora de Chavez; Mrs. E. Y. Close; Capt. G. de Rossi and many others.

Bolivian Envoy Issues Invitations To Color Film

Invitations have been issued by the Ambassador of Bolivia, Dr. Luis Guachalla, for a showing of a motion picture in color of Bolivia at the Pan American Union tomorrow at 6 p. m.

Taken under the direction of Dr. Mauricio Hochschild, this documentary film vividly portrays the exquisite beauty of this land so often called the "Switzerland of South America." The film reveals the interesting life in the altiplano, or plateau, region of Bolivia, which ranks with Tibet as among the highest inhabited sectors in the world. La Paz and Sucre, the two leading cities, are located in this region.

Aside from the scenic and architectural splendor of the country, the colorful costumes of the natives are highlighted in the film.

The Ambassador and Dr. L. S. Rowe, director general of the Pan American Union, will be on hand to receive members of the Diplomatic Corps, Government officials and ranking society who are expected to be in attendance.

Plans are being made for the wedding to take place soon.

Mrs. Disque Is Hostess at Large Tea

Mrs. Dave Satterfield, jr., wife of Representative Satterfield, of Virginia, was the honored guest at a large reception yesterday afternoon given by Mrs. William A. Disque at the Club of Colonial Dames.

Spring flowers were used and on the table pink sweetheart roses filled a low bowl between the silver tea and coffee services. Mrs. Disque received the guests wearing a dark blue afternoon gown. Fashioned of lace, it featured pink roses with applique of leaves down the front.

Assisting the hostess were Mrs. Carter Glass, Mrs. Beverley Robinson, Mrs. Walter Wyatt, Miss Minnie Mae Fleming, Mrs. Allan R. Price, Miss Sarah Whitcomb, Mrs. Frank R. Keefer, Mrs. Herbert Smith, Mrs. Marcellus Woodard, Miss Jane Wyatt, Miss Mary-Stuart Montague Price, Miss Anne Gibson, Miss Lillian Moss and Mrs. Harry Scarborough of Cornwall, N. Y. Mrs. Scarborough is in Washington as the houseguest of Mrs. Disque.

At the tea and coffee table were Mrs. Edward Gibson, Mrs. Joseph Wall, Mrs. Golden Bell, Miss Katherine Dougherty, Mrs. James Souby, Mrs. Burnett Olmstead, Mrs. James H. Hughes, Mrs. Harry Kent of Richmond, and Miss Emma Ward of Baltimore. The latter two named are also visiting the hostess. Also assisting at the table were Mrs. David H. Spindle, Mrs. Norman Anderson and Mrs. Bruce Smith.

Mrs. Paul V. McNutt Entertains Group at Chinese Luncheon

Mrs. Paul V. McNutt entertained yesterday at a Chinese luncheon at the Chinese Lantern. A feature of the event was that all guests were required to use their chopsticks, and those who were not adept at the use of them fared very scantily.

Among the guests were Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson, Mrs. Bruce Smith, Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim, Mrs. William Dodge, Mrs. Weldon Jones and Mrs. Harold Starr.

Mrs. McNutt is chairman of the women's division of the United China Relief Campaign and her party yesterday was one of a number being given this week to focus local interest in the campaign.

Making Home On West Coast

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Neumeier are making their home on the West Coast. They were married last month at the First Presbyterian Church in Berkeley, Calif.

Mrs. Neumeier is the former Miss Mary Katherine Gurley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gurley, of Washington.

Foreign Minister Gives Luncheon

At a small and informal luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel yesterday the Minister of Foreign Affairs of Nicaragua, Dr. Marino Arguello Vargas, entertained for several of his countrymen.

Among the guests were the Minister of Nicaragua and Senora de De Bayle, who entertained at a brilliant reception for Dr. Vargas and his daughter shortly after they arrived in this country.

The Nicaraguan Minister and Senora de De Bayle will soon be in the throes of moving, for their Legation, now located at 1321 New Hampshire Avenue, will move on May 15, to 1627 New Hampshire Avenue, to the house just purchased by their government from Mr. and Mrs. George Angus Garrett.

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

A LONG LIST of notables have reserved tables for the Northern Virginia Naval Relief Ball to be held at the Army and Navy Country Club this evening. Scheduled to begin at 10 o'clock, the affair promises to be a gala one from beginning to end, and a host of celebrities are expected to be on hand for the event.

Among those who have made reservations are the Venezuelan Ambassador and Senora de Escalante; Justice and Mrs. Hugo Black, Justice and Mrs. Robert H. Jackson, the Australian Minister of External Affairs and Mrs. Herbert Vere Evatt, Sir Anthony and Lady Rumbold, Col. and Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim, Judge and Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin, who will entertain at a supper party before the ball; Miss Jane Culbertson, Miss Emily Meyers.

Still others expected to be there are Mr. and Mrs. J. Rixey Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Howrey, Mr. and Mrs. Prew Savoy, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Herbert Bryant, William Herbert, Mrs. Frank Mason Dillard, Mrs. Donald McNeale, and many, many more. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick D. Richardson and their daughters, the Misses Randolph and Phyllis Richardson, will entertain a party of 12 young ladies and their escorts at dinner before the ball, and then the entire party will go on to the Army and Navy Club. Many other large dinner parties also are scheduled to take place as gala preludes to the relief event.

MRS. Gordon Pickett Peyton, of Alexandria, is another who will entertain this evening and will take her guests on to the ball.

Among the guests will be Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Miller, Col. and Mrs. Rees Barkalow, Mr. and Mrs. C. Irwin Dunn, Dr. and Mrs. E. H. Cushing, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Coker, Mr. and Mrs. George Love, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred McCord Hurt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henry Ross, from Winetka, Ill.; Capt. and Mrs. Howard Arbuckle, from Charlotte, N. C., and Lieut. Beverly Randolph, from Richmond, Va.

Parties Dot Calendar

Prenuptial parties are beginning already to dot the calendar for Miss Rachel Horak, who will become the bride of Charles Stanley White, jr., May 16, at Washington Cathedral.

Last night Mrs. J. Clay Adams was hostess at her home in honor of the bride-elect. For the fete, which was a miscellaneous shower, a color scheme of yellow, green and white was carried out. Tall tapers on the table cast their light upon a centerpiece of snapdragons, bridal wreath and narcissus.

Mrs. Adams' guest list included Mrs. Joseph Horak, mother of the bride-to-be; Miss Bettie Horak, her sister; Mrs. John Breckinridge, Mrs. Paul Treynham, Mrs. John Martin, Miss Margaret Breed, Mrs. Kenneth Foley, Miss Nell Alexander, Miss Doris Blackwell, Mrs. George Baulsir, Miss Caroline I. T. Wadden, Miss Alice Pagan, Mrs. John Southmoyd and Miss Mary Lou Nash.

Also Mrs. Archie P. Burgess, Miss Anne Veihmeyer, Miss Doris Thompson, Miss Eleanor Sherburne, Miss Betty Bartelt, Miss Marie Jeroloman, Mrs. Edward Boyle, Mrs. John S. Jacobsen, Miss Ruth Crouch, Miss Nancy Gordon and Mrs. John Twombly 3d and Mrs. Fred B. Squires, the hostess' mother.

Miss Bartelt is planning to entertain in Miss Horak's honor next Tuesday.

Service Wives Have Monthly Luncheon

"The Customs and Fiestas of Old Mexico" held the floor and the attention of the guests yesterday at the monthly luncheon of the wives of the Selective Service officers, which took place at the Little Tea House. Mrs. V. J. O'Kelliher, wife of Col. O'Kelliher, was the speaker and regaled the company with a number of interesting incidents. Mrs. J. B. Mitchell, wife of Major Mitchell, made the arrangements for the event.

Among those attending were Mrs. Albert Baggs, Mrs. George H. Baker, Mrs. Robert Bier, Mrs. George A. Bonnet, Mrs. Gareth H. Brainard, Mrs. Henry T. Brian, Mrs. Siegfried Coblentz, Mrs. Robert B. Coons, Mrs. Carlston S. Dargush, Mrs. Richard Porter Davidson, Mrs. Ernest B. Erickson, Mrs. Robert B. Fentress and Mrs. Oliver H. Folk.

Still others were Mrs. Raymond T. Higgins, Mrs. Benjamin R. Howell, Mrs. George A. Irvin, Mrs. Donald T. Winder, Mrs. Patrick H. Winston and Mrs. Sherrow Parker.

Service Men to Be Entertained At "Boy Meets Girl" Event

Ten thousand lonesome lads and lassies—service men and Government girls who have converged on Washington from all and sundry directions—will meet and dance Saturday night at a mammoth "Boy Meets Girl" party at the Uline Arena.

The immense party is the first in a series of monthly fetes being arranged under the auspices of a representative group of Washington women, with Mrs. Roosevelt as honorary chairman, which is working with the metropolitan defense recreation service. Mrs. Morris Cafritz heads the "special events" committee in charge of the fetes.

Near the end of May the second party will come up, for which Clark Griffith has donated the stadium, probably for a ball game or perhaps a mixed entertainment. June's party will be at the Water Gate, for which Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe has promised the National Symphony Orchestra.

Not only dancing, which will be to the rhythms of Sidney's Orchestra, but stage acts sent over from a local theater will be among the attractions for Saturday's party. Mrs. Cafritz has been busy meeting with the morale officers of the camps and Government departmental organizations, who will work with her in gathering the boys and girls all in one place at one time.

Working with her as vice chairman of the committee is Mrs. Lionel Atwill. "This arrangement works out on a "turn about's fair play basis" for Mrs. Cafritz acts as vice chairman for Mrs. Atwill's Union Station committee.

Patronesses and women who are working on the parties include Mrs. Jesse Jones, Mrs. Claude Pepper, Mrs. Laurence F. Arnold, Mrs. Jack Dempsey, Mrs. William Batt, Mrs. Thurman Arnold, Mrs. Leon Henderson, Mrs. Paul McNutt, Mrs. Lawrence Houghteling, Mrs. Howe, Mrs. George Garrett, Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, Mrs. Robert Guggenheim, Mrs. Randall Hagner, Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson, Mrs. Jouett Shouse, Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, Miss Paulette Guffey, Mrs. Irene Caldwell, Mrs. Wilson Compton, Mrs. Charles Carroll Glover, jr., and Mrs. Keeney Phillips.

Miss McGraw Is Engaged

Mrs. Helen Tate McGraw announces the engagement of her daughter, Marjorie Jean, to Arthur R. Heckerman, son of Mr.

MISS MARJORIE JEAN McGRAW

and Mrs. Arthur W. Heckerman, of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Miss McGraw was graduated from Wilson Teachers' College of this city, where she was a member of the Twenty Club, and the Sigma Sigma Sigma and Beta Sigma Sigma sororities.

Mr. Heckerman, who was graduated from the University of Cincinnati where he was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Omicron Delta Kappa and Beta Theta Pi fraternities, is a member of the Ohio bar.

The wedding will take place the latter part of June.

Nine Beautiful Homes to Open For Benefit Tour on May 9

Uplands, the home of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, the former United States Minister to Norway, will be on the itinerary of a tour of nine of Washington's loveliest houses in the Foxhall Road neighborhood May 9 from 2 to 6 o'clock in the afternoon.

Old houses, new houses and all nine of them beautiful houses, are listed on the tour, which will wind up with tea on the terrace of Mrs. Anne Archbold's home on Reservoir Road.

Mrs. Duncan Phillips will open her Foxhall Road house to the public for the first time for the tour, which is for the benefit of the Washington Home for Incurables. "Tourists" will be able to admire the many fine paintings collected by Mr. and Mrs. Phillips, who are the founders of the Phillips Gallery.

Mrs. James Spear Taylor will show guests through Mrs. Phillips' house and will be assisted by Mrs. Lawrence M. C. Smith, Mrs. Isaac Newton Phelps Stokes, Mrs. Thomas Swann, Mrs. William Machold, Mrs. Henry S. Villard, Mrs. Francis Johnston, Mrs. Henry S. Butler and Mrs. John R. Summerscale, of the British Embassy.

At Uplands, 1800 Foxhall Road, Mrs. William F. Newton will be in charge of showing guests through Mrs. Harriman's house and will be assisted by Mrs. Frederick Richards, Mrs. Paul Homan, Mrs. Edward Sturdevant and Miss Marian Townley.

At the interesting modernistic house of the Raymond Clappers on Chain Bridge Road Mrs. Hoffman Philip will look after the guests. She will be assisted by Mrs. Spencer Cosby, Mrs. Frederick R. Solger and Mrs. William F. M. Sowers.

Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury will open her stately eighteenth-century French house at 2300 Foxhall Road for the benefit tour, and Mrs. Wayne Chatfield-Taylor, wife of the Undersecretary of Commerce, will show guests through the house. Among those assisting her will be Mrs. Adlai Stevenson and Mrs. Dean Jay.

Mrs. Eugene B. Roberts will show guests through Mrs. Howard Cushing's house at 2510 Foxhall Road, and Mrs. Reeve Hoover will be aide at Mrs. Walter Chappell's home at 2646 Garfield Street. Mrs. David Edward Finley will be in charge of showing visitors through Mrs. Morris Cafritz's modernistic house at 2301 Foxhall Road, while Mrs. Laurence Lombard will be in charge of Mrs. James Clement Dunn's house at 1714 Hoban Road.

Tickets will be on sale at the doors of all the houses.

Fresh, luscious strawberries—just up from the sunny South—crushed and streamlined all through Breyers famous Vanilla Ice Cream. Remember Breyers Ice Cream is full of nourishment and energy.

"BIGGEST PIE NEWS EVER TOLD!

Now you can be SURE of FLAKY PIE CRUST!"

NOW—NO MORE WORRY ABOUT TOUGH PASTRY!

SUNDAY SUPPER PIE . . . Fill individual casseroles or large baking dish with creamed fish and vegetables. Top with flaky Crisco crust. See recipe below.

Just change to Crisco and its own New Pastry Method!

EASY! No guesswork now—just follow Crisco's method exactly!

Imagine . . . never again need you worry about tough pie crust. For here at last is the winning combination for getting flaky pastry time after time—Crisco and its New Pastry Method. Right in Crisco is a pastry success secret found in no other shortening. And Crisco's new method ends the two chief causes of tough pie crust—using too much water and over-handling your dough.

DOUBLE-CRUST MEASUREMENTS: Mix 2 cups of sifted flour and 1 teaspoon salt in a bowl. Take out ⅓ cup of this flour and mix it with ¼ cup of water to make a paste.

TELLS EXACT AMOUNT OF WATER! Notice—you don't have to guess about the water as you do with cook-book recipes. Too much water is the first big cause of tough pastry.

To remaining flour (1⅔ cups) add ⅔ cup Crisco; cut in until pieces are size of small peas.

WITH CRISCO, BLENDING'S EASY! Just notice how easily creamy Crisco cuts in—and blends!

Next, add flour-paste to Crisco-flour mixture. Mix thoroughly until the dough comes together and can be shaped into a ball. Divide dough—roll out 2 crusts about ⅛ inch thick.

NEW WAY TO MIX DOUGH! Your Crisco dough isn't sticky—it's easy to roll out. No danger of over-handling—the other big cause of toughness.

ONE-CRUST MEASUREMENTS: Use 1½ cups flour, ½ teaspoon salt and ½ cup Crisco. Take out ¼ cup flour and blend with 3 tablespoons water.

SUNDAY SUPPER PIE—Mix 2 cups salmon or other cooked fish, 1 cup cooked celery, ½ cup cooked peas. Add 2 cups medium white sauce. Use 1-crust pastry measurements for quart casserole. (For 4 to 6 small casseroles, use 2-crust measurements.) Bake at 425° F. 20 minutes. (All Measurements Level.)

Digging Into the Tax Problem

League Advised U. S. to Avert Big Price Rise

TAKE heart American housewives. The Government is going to prevent tremendous price increases in foods and other living essentials. This is the assurance given by Senator Prentiss M. Brown of Michigan, guest speaker, yesterday at the one day taxation school held by the Voteless D. C. League of Women Voters.

In discussing "The War and Your Pocketbook" at the league's morning session at the Washington Hotel, Senator Brown said: "We can prevent inflation by controlling prices, buying more War Bonds and increasing taxes."

Unless voluntary buying of bonds increased, the Senator warned that compulsory buying of bonds be inaugurated. Pointing out that war creates artificial economics, Senator Brown, maintained that the price control bill he is advocating would take care of the war situation.

"Unless we reduce the purchasing power of the public," he said, "the demands will be greater than the supply and inflation will be the result." Senator Brown predicted that an announcement would be made soon that "overall price control," with the exception of a few agricultural commodities, would be put into effect.

Out to Avert Depression

By reducing the purchasing power of the public, by controlling prices and by a large investment in war bonds, the speaker pointed out that a major depression could be alleviated in the postwar era. "The money," he declared, "that had been put into war bonds would sustain the purchasing power of the people until normalcy could be returned."

To prevent inflation, Senator Brown approves of taxing to the limit. He pointed out that taxes increased from 20 to 30 per cent in 1942 and would be still greater in 1943.

Bonds issued in too great a quantity, he warned, also can cause inflation. While the Government can sell bonds to banks and other large corporations, it is more effective to sell them to individuals (thus preventing corporations from making big profits) he pointed out.

Paul Discusses Taxation

Randolph E. Paul, Assistant to the Secretary of the Treasury, discussed taxation in wartime from the viewpoint of the family. He referred to the pro and cons of the Treasury's proposed mandatory joint income tax of husband and wife.

"The proposed bill," he said, "sought to attain the following objectives: (1) mandatory joint returns by husband and wife on aggregate income, (2) a credit for dependent children between the ages of 18 and 21 who are still in school, (3) a deduction for extraordinary medical expenses, subject to specified limitations."

"Contrary to popular belief," said Mr. Paul, "the Treasury joint proposal no more affects the rights of women than it affects those of men. Both spouses are treated upon a plane of equality, as they should be. The joint return requirement would not give a husband any more control over his wife's property than he might otherwise have . . . there is no abrogation of property rights."

Dexter Keezer, assistant administrator of the Office of Price Administration, who was the third speaker on the league's program, talked on "The Consumer Faces Inflation."

"One way to relieve the upward pressure on prices," explained Mr. Keezer, president of Reed College, now on leave with the OPA, "is to have larger supplies of goods and services made available to civilians. This possibility has not, I think, been sufficiently emphasized in thinking about the war effort . . . at this exact moment we have potentialities for producing more goods and services for civilians which are lying idle."

Mrs. Callaghan Presides

Mrs. Eugene Callaghan, president of the D. C. Voteless League of Women Voters, presided and introduced the three speakers at the morning session. Mrs. Paul H. Appleby was general chairman of the one-day taxation school.

The afternoon session of the program took the form of a panel discussion. Mrs. Richard Hogue, chairman of the panel, presided and introduced the following speakers: Howard R. Tolley, chief, Bureau of Agricultural Economics, United States Department of Agriculture; Marion H. Hedges, director of research, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers; Thomas Tarleau, legislative counsel, United States Treasury Department, and Don D. Humphrey, chief, Price Analysis Control Section, Office of Price Administration.

In discussing methods of preventing inflation, Humphrey declared, "It's the not spending and not buying of consumer goods."

Mr. Hedges pointed out "that war is won by morale of people and the freezing of wages lowers morale."

All members of the panel declared that living standards will be cut. Also, they agreed unanimously that sales taxes were the most unfair yet conceived. They definitely preferred income tax as the fairer method.

Navy Reports Death of Adm. Arthur Bristol

The Navy Department yesterday announced the death Monday of Vice Admiral Arthur LeRoy Bristol, jr., 55, commander of a task force in the North Atlantic.

Death was from natural causes, the Navy said. It was not stated whether the admiral died at sea or ashore.

On duty with the Atlantic fleet since February, 1941, the officer was advanced to the rank of vice admiral last February 28.

Born in Charleston, S. C., Admiral Bristol was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1906, and during the first World War served as aide and flag secretary of the commander cruiser and transport force, Atlantic fleet. For that service he was awarded the Navy Cross by the Navy and the Distinguished Service Medal by the War Department.

He was on duty at the Office of Naval Operations here in 1918, with the Navy's General Board in 1921 and with the Secretary of Commerce in 1922.

He served as a member of the naval mission to Brazil in 1925 and 1926 before qualifying as a naval aviator in 1928, when he was appointed commander of aircraft squadrons, Asiatic fleet. From 1931 to 1934 he was naval attache at the American Embassy in London. When the aircraft carrier Ranger was commissioned in 1934 he was placed in command of it.

While commander of the naval air station at San Diego, Calif., from 1936 to 1939, Admiral Bristol served as a member of the Hepburn board which investigated the need of bases on the coasts of the United States and in its Territories and possessions.

Subsequently he was commander of Patrol Wing 2, Aircraft Scouting Force; commander of Carrier Division 1, Aircraft Battle Force, and commander of the Aircraft Scouting Force.

Dr. Hu Shih Tells Of China's Unity In Long Warfare

China has been fighting the Japs for 39 months, longer than either the American Civil War or the first World War, Dr. Hu Shih, Chinese Ambassador, said yesterday, declaring that the belief in ultimate victory has kept his people's spirit alive through this period of "unbelievable hardship and horror."

He spoke in the Hotel Washington at a luncheon meeting of the Washington Trade Association Executives tracing the course of China's long period of warfare, which he stated, had further unified a people already distinguished by 21 centuries of unity under empire law.

Following the Ambassador's address an appeal was made for United China Relief by Pyke Johnson, chairman of the solicitation group of the local campaign. Henry Bahr, president of the association, presided. Dr. Wilson Compton, chairman of the Washington United China Relief campaign, was present at the meeting.

Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt and Liu Chieh, Counselor of the Chinese Embassy, will speak for the United China Relief drive over Station WINX at 8:15 o'clock tonight, (Wednesday), it was announced.

'Milk Trusts' Blast Lewis, Says U.M.W.

Officials of the United Mine Workers declared last night that "milk trusts" fathered recent charges that U. M. W. President John L. Lewis is attempting to control the Nation's food supplies through organization of three million dairy farmers.

At a meeting called to lay plans for the unionization drive, 33 regional directors of the U. M. W.'s District 50 said the milk trusts, through newspaper advertisements and other means, were directly responsible for the "tirades of strikes, lawlessness and racketeering" against Lewis and the U. M. W.

District President Ora E. Gasaway, Miss Kathryn Lewis, daughter of the U. M. W. president and secretary-treasurer of District 50, and Charles H. Fell, vice president, authorized the following statement: "We are not going to burn barns or shoot cows. That's absurb."

Volunteers of America Discuss War Tasks

Plans for obtaining a maximum war usefulness out of the Girls Club and Hospice of the Volunteers of America at 1526 Sixteenth Street Northwest, were discussed by the advisory board of the organization last night at a dinner at the Taft House.

At the suggestion of Senator Arthur Capper, a member of the board, a committee was appointed to confer with Mrs. Roosevelt and receive her suggestions. The committee consists of Mrs. Vernon Cleever, Mrs. Charles P. Keyser, Mrs. Ernest W. Howard and Mrs. Lillian Ulrey.

Allies, Japs Lose Destroyer Each InBengalBayFight

Melbourne (Wednesday), April 22. The Australian destroyer Vampire has been sunk in recent operations in the Bay of Bengal during which she and a British destroyer, attacking a superior Japanese force, sank one Japanese destroyer and damaged another, Prime Minister Curtin announced today.

A communique issued by the prime minister did not make clear whether the Japanese vessel was sunk during the action in which the Vampire, a 1090-ton ship built in 1917, was lost.

The Vampire carried a normal crew of 134 men and most of them were saved.

Six men were killed, one died of wounds and two, including the skipper, Commander W. T. A. Moran, were missing and believed lost, the communique said.

British Women Still 'Keep Up Appearances,' Says Inez Robb

By Genevieve Reynolds

DESPITE the fact that women in England are wearing their wardrobes of the past (there's no such things as new clothes), they still have their hair coiffed once a week, according to Miss Inez Robb, guest speaker at the Women's National Press Club's weekly luncheon yesterday.

"On their day off, girls working in garages, war plants and in other dirty work go to the beauty parlor to have their hair and faces done, also their nails," said Miss Robb, who has just returned from London.

However, the sprightly International News Service correspondent pointed out that feminine hands were too calloused from hard work to benefit greatly from manicures.

Expressing great admiration for the people of England in general and the women in particular, Miss Robb said, "Regardless of position or age, every woman is active. In fact, the British government considers every woman a pair of hands. This is based on the useful work to be done."

In her on and off the record speech, Miss Robb told of visiting Lady Sea Dog (head of the Women's Auxiliary Navy) and other outstanding women engaged in wartime work. Also, she had a chat with Winston Churchill.

Emphasizing the fact that women are doing important war work, she pointed out that air-raid spotting is one thing that they do exceptionally well.

"People in England are living right down to the bone," said Miss Robb. "Nothing is wasted. No one would think of throwing away a piece of paper or anything."

The Irish, she maintained, aren't one bit pleased over the American soldiers landing there. Still wishing to remain neutral, they (the Irish) think that the Yanks will attract Nazi bombings, she said.

Guests at the luncheon besides the members were Mrs. Florence Kerr, assistant WPA commissioner; Mrs. Ellen S. Woodward, member of the Social Security Board; Mrs. Frederick Sterling, whose husband was the former Minister to Sweden; Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Walker, of the British Press Service, and David Nichols, foreign correspondent.

Doings of the Day

KAPPA Gamma Sorority—Alpha and Zeta chapters hear lecture by Dr. J. Lowrey Fendrich at 8 p. m. . . . Representatives of the Government, the clergy, education, science, business, medical professions as well as the press, labor and civic life are luncheon guests of RUSSIAN WAR RELIEF, Inc., 12:30 o'clock at the Hay-Adams House. Purpose of the luncheon is to elect a committee to plan fund raising activities to aid our Russian allies. Mrs. Edwin Watson presides as chairman of the luncheon.

Defense Buffet Dinner

TO RAISE $250 needed to pay for shovels, hoes, buckets, stirrup pumps and other material necessary to safeguard the Truesdell School against air-raid damages, the Truesdell Parent-Teacher Association will give a defense buffet dinner tomorrow night, 5 to 8:30 o'clock, at the Brightwood Park Methodist Church.

The dinner is being arranged under the direction of Mrs. Anna Mae Turner, chairman of the ways and means committee. Mrs. George Jelinek, regular chairman, has been ill.

Subchairmen assisting Mrs. Turner are Mrs. Pauline Miller, president of the P.T. A.; Mrs. Raymond Magruder, Mrs. George Vaughn, Mrs. Sidney Ehrlich, Mrs. Paul Marks, Mrs. H. C. Travis, Mrs. Donald Hambright, Mrs. C. R. Dennis and Mrs. William Fletcher. Already the P.-T. A. has paid out $100 for defense equipment, but the equipment purchased is not sufficient to meet the minimum requirements for a school housing the number of pupils now attending.

To Hold Open House

LOUIS A. HERTLE, owner of the famous Gunston Hall, home of George Mason, of Virginia, will hold open house there on Saturday afternoon for members and friends of All Souls' Memorial Episcopal Church. The Rev. H. H. D. Sterrett is the rector of the church.

The tour is sponsored by Miss Genevieve L. Porter, Mrs. Thomas L. Howerton and Miss Ethyl Clark, of Unit No. 2, assisted by Mrs. Wayne Wirgman, president of the Rector's Aid, and Mrs. Louis S. Gree-, president of the woman's auxiliary. Mrs. Llewellyn C. Thomas, president of the evening section, woman's auxiliary, will also participate.

Friends of the parish and members of patriotic societies wishing to join in the pilgrimage to this historic mansion and see its rare gardens at their best, are invited to meet at the Church on Cathedral Avenue (near Connecticut Avenue) at 1:50 p. m., April 25.

The tour will start at 2 o'clock under a police escort to the District Line. Reservations may be made and arrangements to join the cavalcade at old Pohick Church, Va., by calling Miss Clark, Col. 7702, before noon Friday.

Flynns to Be Honored

MEMBERS of the Woman's National Democratic Club will honor the chairman of the Democratic National Committee, Edward J. Flynn, and Mrs. Flynn with a dinner tomorrow night, 7:30, at 1526 New Hampshire Avenue Northwest.

Mrs. Curtis Shears, president of the club, will preside, and Mrs. Edward B. Meigs will introduce Mr. Flynn, the guest speaker. Mrs. Charles W. Tillett, vice chairman of Democratic National Committee, director of the woman's division, will be a guest of the club.

Mrs. Paul M. Linebarger is chairman of the dinner committee. Assisting her are: Mrs. Claude Orchard, Mrs. Herbert Dorsey, Mrs. Clinton Tribby, Mrs. Charles Brand and Mrs. Albert Black.

Owner Entitled To Sell Auto Tags With Car

District car owners who have to sell their cars after paying for their new license tags do not have to lose all of the money thus spent, even though the District does not refund any of the amount, Corporation Counsel Richard B. Keech explained last night.

The purchaser of the car gets the benefit of the personal property tax just paid—as a purchaser of real estate does—and therefore the seller should include that amount in the asking price of the car.

The personal property tax on automobiles is based on a rate of $1.75 per $100 valuation of the car. A 50-cent inspection fee is also transferrable with the car.

What the seller does lose is the registration fee, which is based on the car's weight and which includes the actual price of the tags. This fee is $5 for cars of 3500 pounds or less, $8 up to 4500 pounds and $12 for cars weighing anything over that. This fee must be paid by every new registrant.

Persons called into military service as officers, going to posts where they can take their cars, have always been allowed to use their cars with the license tags already on them so long as they are current. Keech said there has never been any ruling on that, but that the District never demanded transferrence for military men, and he didn't know of any auto authority that did.

Defense Chiefs Cautioned to Act on Janeway's Warning of Retaliatory Raid by 'Japan's Ally'

Chiefs of all District civilian defense services were summoned in emergency meeting late yesterday by Defense Coordinator John Russell Young to act upon the warning given by Col. Augustine S. Janeway, chief of staff of the Third Defense Area, that the East Coast might expect retaliatory raids by "an ally of Japan."

Immediate speeding up of the defense program for the District was urged, with special emphasis on the completion of personnel and the efficient functioning of the communications service.

Fingerprinting of every person in the protective service was ordered, with each chief of service to see that fingerprints of workers are placed with the greatest of dispatch in the hands of the FBI. Police Chief Edward J. Kelly was ordered to get instructions on procedure to the chiefs as quickly as possible.

While Civilian Defense Executive Lemuel Bolles told the meeting that little could be done about necessary equipment on order which has not been delivered, he was forcible in insisting that gaps in personnel be filled.

"The sector posts are the key spots of the whole organization," he said. "The sector wardens are the troops upon whom the safety of the women and children of Washington will be dependent in case of a raid. No matter how efficiently the top is organized, the civilian defense cannot operate without complete organization at the bottom.

"The neighborhood that is unorganized is the one that will suffer the most during a raid," he warned.

Improvement of the communications system, which has been the weakest point of all civilian defense organization, will be expedited at the demonstration of the Edgewood Arsenal model control center, scheduled for the Interdepartmental Auditorium at 3 and 8 p. m., April 30.

More satisfactory and "physical" means of identifying emergency vehicles was brought up at the meeting by J. Allyn Brown, chief of the transportation service. He reported that some vehicles were stopped more than 18 times during the last blackout, and that some overzealous wardens halted other cars on the way to calls.

It was decided that the 1000 red stickers issued for emergency vehicles were too many. They will probably be recalled and a more restrictive method of issuance employed for the new signs.

Possibility of another blackout before May 1 was stated to be slight, unless the Third Defense Command regional office before then should order one involving Virginia, Maryland and the District.

Attending the meeting were Fire Chief Stephen Porter, chief of the fire-fighting service; Dr. J. C. O'Keefe, representing the medical service, William F. Downing of the industrial establishment organization; P. F. Bailey of public works; George Strong, chief of rescue squads; Lieut. B. F. McAlister, representing Police Chief Kelly; Brown of the transportation service; Roy L. Hunt of Government buildings; J. V. Marean of the communications center, and Chief Air Raid Warden Clement Murphy.

All the reports which these men had submitted were read aloud so that the chiefs of all services could hear what other divisions were doing.

Steam Horn Heard Mile Away in Test

District officials yesterday pronounced themselves "very satisfied" with the test of the steam air-raid horn installed on the District Building. The horn, designed for a sound radius of a half mile, was heard by a spotter on the Social Security Building almost a mile distant when it was tested at 10 a. m.

A second horn, scheduled to be sounded from the War Department in the afternoon, was removed to the central heating plant, Twelfth and D Streets Southwest, when Army officials "couldn't make up their minds whether they wanted the horn on the War building," according to Porter Lumpkins, chief clerk of the District Engineer Department.

The horn on the heating plant is expected to be tested some time today.

Lumpkins said these tests are not for audibility, but for mechanical defects. There are 20 of them ordered for the District, and two others have been installed at Bolling Field.

Although the steam horns do not raise the question of priorities, they cannot be used as the major warning system until they are hooked up with the Central Control board, and this cannot be done until priorities are obtained on copper wire for the electrical connections.

Until this is done, the steam horns, which will be placed on public buildings maintaining 24-hour steam pressure, will have to be operated manually, and will be subordinate as a warning system to the 38 electric sirens, whose feeble squeaks have been a source of concern to civilian defense officials.

Army Eases Physical Rules For Selectees

The Army yesterday modified its physical standards for induction of selectees and acceptance of voluntary recruits.

A new classification was adopted for registrants to cover men with disqualifying physical defects which can be corrected. In addition to Class 1-A, physically fit for general service, Class 1-B, physically unfit for general military service but fit for limited military service, and Class 4, physically unfit for any military service, there is the new designation—"Class 1-A (suspended)."

The Army said that common examples of remediable defects, the possession of which would put men in the new class, are dental defects, correctible nasal obstruction, simple goiter, repairable hernia and remediable nutritional defects.

Men rejected for such defects are subject to reexamination by Army medical boards when the defects have been corrected and may then be reclassified and inducted into the Army.

The new regulations do not change the height, weight and chest measurement requirements, but provide that men whose weight is greater than the standard prescribed may be classified 1-A if the overweight is not so excessive as to interfere with military training.

Vision and dental standards are changed slightly. Under the eye change, men previously classified as 1-B will be placed in 1-A, but for service with noncombatant branches of the Army only.

The minimum requirement—now 20-100 in each eye without glasses if corrected by glasses to 20-40—is reduced for noncombatant service to 20-200 without glasses if corrected to 20-40 with glasses.

British 'Wrens' in Capital

WOMEN SAILORS—Two British "wrens," members of the Women's Royal Naval Service, stroll down Constitution Avenue in their natty blue uniforms. They have found themselves the object of considerable feminine interest since the House passed a bill setting up a women's auxiliary reserve in the United States Navy to release men for sea duty. Change Seen In Raid Aide Call Set-up

Drastic changes in the method of getting air-raid wardens, auxiliary policemen and other volunteer defense officers to their posts for an air raid was predicted last night by Maj. D. W. Paulette, of the Third Defense Area headquarters.

These volunteers will probably be called to duty by the air raid sirens upon the receipt of the red warning light at control centers, he said. At present, OCD rules call for them to assume their posts upon receipt of the "yellow" alert signal, usually flashed a half-hour before a blackout is expected.

Paulette, stationed in Washington for a week's survey of the civilian defense organization, said that the difficulty of getting in touch with these persons by any system of telephoning has slowed down blackout tests in many places.

Furthermore, it is essential to have the control center concentrate on getting the chiefs of all services, and the most essential branches, such as the medical and fire departments ready for the blackout.

"After all," he said, "the zone and sector wardens do not really begin to function until the time the populace is warned."

When he was asked why it would not be as feasible to have the sirens sound on the yellow signal, warning chiefs of services, wardens and civilians alike, he said that situation had been avoided purposely.

"If a siren meant that the bombers were half an hour away," he said, "people would try to utilize that time and only succeed in creating the worst sorts of jams and confusion. Mothers would rush to schools to fetch children home, everyone would try to get away somewhere and the town would be a chaos when the enemy arrived.

"If the siren means business, people will take cover immediately and stay put, and the handling of the situation will be infinitely easier."

Display Shows How to Save Soldier's Life

Showing how almost any one between the ages of 21 and 60 may save the life of a soldier on a distant battlefield through the donation of blood to the Red Cross, an unusual display has been placed in the window of Jelleff's, 1214 F Street Northwest.

The scene is sponsored by the Midcity civilian defense organization in cooperation with the Army, Navy and Red Cross. It shows a stricken soldier lying on a cot about to receive an injection of life-saving blood plasma.

A poster in the window informs the public that volunteers may call the Red Cross at REpublic 8300, extension 212 for an appointment at the donor center, Twenty-third and C Streets Northwest.

Deputy Air Raid Warden William J. Mileham, of the Midcity group, said that his organization carries on this work through a Victory Blood Bank Committee. This committee investigates the possibilities of getting volunteers in large groups from all parts of the area.

Meetings are arranged with apartment house tenants, neighborhood clubs, churches, fraternities and sororities, he said, and speakers are sent to these meetings to explain the nature of the campaign.

Last Friday a group of wardens from the Midcity area went to the Naval Hospital and donated blood as an example for others, Mileham said.

Similar committees are being formed in other civilian defense groups such as Dupont Circle and Brentwood, he said.

Civilian Status Emphasized by D. C. Defense

Civilian defense is still "civilian" and not under the Army, District defense officials declared yesterday when they learned a few air-raid wardens recently have been telling volunteers, "You're in the Army now."

The executive order which last week placed Secretary of War Stimson and Secretary of Navy Knox on the Civilian Defense Board brought no change in the Office of Civilian Defense status, other than to strengthen it, they pointed out.

Close cooperation between the military services and OCD has been in existence from the beginning of civilian defense, grown necessarily closer since war began. Blackouts are ordered by the Army and civilian defense equipment is being bought by its procurement division. But volunteer workers in feeding and housing units, etc., give voluntary service and keep their civil standing.

Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech declared amendments proposed to the District's blackout law Monday by Representative Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia, will give the volunteer service a legal status, even if he does not have a military one.

Except for the right of forcible entry, to extinguish lights during an air raid, the volunteer has had little real power to date, he said. "Someday somebody might raise a squawk about some warden or volunteer fireman doing something in line of duty that displeases the citizen," he declared. "Without the present amendment, the citizen would be upheld, as the volunteer fireman could not drag a length of hose across the front lawn."

The section of the bill on conscription of District employes is designed to permit defense officials to make use of necessary District personnel in an emergency, such as having fire and police surgeons treat volunteer workers who suffer injuries during a real or test raid.

There is no idea, Keech said, of making District clerks put in overtime as fire watchers or such. The bill does not in any sense supersede the Civil Service regulations under which they work ordinarily, he declared.

Rug Weaver Donates Work To War Effort

A handsome Persian rug with "Remember Pearl Harbor" woven into it in red letters, hanging in a Washington auction house, silently bespeaks the gratefulness of an Armenian immigrant for the "tolerance and freedom" he found in America.

The immigrant sent it to President Roosevelt as his anonymous donation to the war effort, and the C. G. Sloan & Co. auctioneers at 715 Thirteenth Street Northwest will auction it off Friday afternoon. The money it brings, including the auctioneers' commission, will go to the Treasury for use in the war effort.

The 15 by 10½-foot rug, which Mark Sloan said probably cost $1000, was "the best among the few rugs I own," the donor wrote to Mr. Roosevelt. Recalling that he had come to the United States with $25 in his pocket, he went on:

"I have prospered here, although in a modest way. Above all I have enjoyed a way of life which I had never known before. I found tolerance and freedom.

"It is my gratitude for these blessings which makes me want to do something toward the winning of our war. I have only a limited amount of cash but I hope that the rug which I am donating can be offered for sale for what it will bring under the circumstances and the proceeds turned over to the Nation's war chest."

Victory Sidelights

Dupont Defense Area Draws Up Plans for Fund Raising

Thomas J. Sandoz, new deputy air-raid warden for the Dupont Circle civilian defense area, last night said his group is "living from day to day" financially, but that a plan is being organized to raise funds.

He spoke at a meeting of the Connecticut Avenue Businessmen's Association in the Hay-Adams House, Sixteenth and H Streets Northwest.

Sandoz was appointed to the job following the resignation of F. Moran McConihe, who moved from the city. He said at present each of the 11 zone wardens in the area is appointing chairmen of finance to handle the raising of funds through subscriptions in each zone. They will be responsible to the chairman of the Dupont Circle civilian defense committee, he said, emphasizing that the air-raid warden service is not taking part in the drive.

Sandoz said, "We don't believe that is our job." When the collection gets under way "we hope to live a little easier," he added. Both the Dupont Circle Citizens Association and the businessmen's association have donated funds for the civilian defense group.

Assisting Sandoz are Max Tendeler, George Cox and E. H. Threadgill. Arthur W. Tilley, president of the Connecticut Avenue Businessmen's Association, presided at the meeting.

Still More Beds Needed For Men on Leave

Private homes may be asked to take in soldier guests on weekends unless more churches and clubs provide beds for service men visiting Washington.

The District Recreation Committee studied this possibility—without reaching a conclusion—yesterday as it went over reports showing 712 soldiers, sailors, and marines for d beds here last weekend but that 500 were turned away.

Glover Park Training Program to Be Set Up

Defense workers in the Glover Park area are to meet tonight at the Stoddert School, Fortieth and Calvert Streets Northwest, to organize a civilian defense training program in that area. Deputy Air Raid Warden Hobart H. Hobbes will be in charge of the meeting, at which the movie "Ready on the Home Front" will be shown. All Glover Park residents are urged to attend, in view of the Commissioners' "full steam ahead order" for defense preparations.

Brightwood Will Open $7500 Drive Today

A campaign to raise $7500 for air raid equipment in the Brightwood area will be launched today by the citizens committee of civilian defense, it was announced last night.

The campaign is headed by Charles W. Ray, president of the Brightwood Citizens Association, and Thomas F. Ferry, principal of the Paul Junior High School. The 2500 family units in the Brightwood area will be asked to contribute $3 each to reach the goal.

Parade for 100,000th Selectee Set Today

Fort Meade, Md., troops will pass in review at 4:30 p. m. today in honor of a selectee from Washington, Scott L. Moonahan, of Company C, 1302d Service Unit.

The reason: Moonahan was the 100,000th selectee to pass through the Reception Center at Fort Meade. He was among a group of inductees who became regular soldiers yesterday.

Mason Lauds Women For Salvage Work

Women's all-out effort in the salvage for victory plan received a vigorous pat on the back last night by Guy Mason, District Commissioner, and other speakers who spoke before a meeting of the Women's Division of the District of Columbia Salvage Committee at the United States Chamber of Commerce auditorium.

In his commendation Commissioner Mason revealed that thousands of women volunteers are now employed in auxiliary police and warden work, emergency transportation, emergency medical personnel, food and housing corps, etc. Of the 32,638 persons who have volunteered their services to civilian defense through the Civilian Defense Volunteer Bureau, 15,940 have been women, the Commissioner pointed out.

THIS IS THE STORY OF CARBOLOY

How a Most Strategic Material of the War—Invented in Germany—Was Made Available to the United Nations

More Precious Than Diamonds In War Production . . . Carboloy is an American trademark for cemented tungsten-carbide, an alloy second only to diamonds in hardness, more precious than diamonds as a vital material in America's war program. It is used for the tips of cutting tools, and for wear-resistant dies. Carboloy is used in small quantities; it is difficult to make and difficult to use—but it has never been scarce in modern times. There is no scarcity now.

Invented in Germany—Krupp Protected by U. S. Patents . . . Cemented carbide was invented in Germany—it belonged to Krupp of Germany, and this made all the rest of the world Krupp's customer. In this country, Krupp was protected by patent grants from the United States.

General Electric Creates Independent Production . . . The General Electric Company two years before this had begun research on tungsten-carbide and foresaw its importance in industrial production. For immediate use in its own plants and for easier availability to others, General Electric undertook the long and arduous negotiations for the American rights. Limited rights were obtained in 1928 with Krupp continuing to export the material to its United States customers, a business which languished, however, as General Electric painstakingly developed its own Carboloy technique. This paved the way for General Electric to make the United States entirely independent of Germany for its cemented tungsten-carbide supply as early as 1936.

American Tool Costs Half That of German . . . From the start, two totally different businesses were involved. Krupp originally exported cemented carbides in chunks—and was unsuccessful. General Electric—and its subsidiary, Carboloy Co., Inc. found it necessary to develop a complete engineering and manufacturing service, making various types of Carboloy-equipped tools, training men in their use, and offering to its customers a specialized and successful production technique. For purposes of fair comparison, a typical German cemented carbide tool, in 1928 cost $22.26 in the United States, while a comparable American Carboloy tool cost $11.11.

Loss to General Electric for Many Years—Art Taught to Industry . . . In times of peace—and 1928 was such a time—the measure of success of industrial adventure is to be found in profit to the adventurer. By such a measure, Carboloy could not be called successful. Initial expenses were great. For a time the Company lost at the rate of $1000 a day, and once had an operating deficit of more than a million dollars.* One of the major contributing reasons was the continuing high cost of development, standardization, and training. In 1936-37 alone, training courses were given to 10,000 men in industry. Moreover, six major price reductions were made in the face of operating losses, until the standard tool blank had been reduced in price 90 per cent.

Faith and Perseverance . . . Depression was still another reason—labor-saving tools could not be sold to industry or labor at any price. But General Electric, with determination that now seems providential, kept on—increasing its capacity, granting new licenses, condoning instances of unlicensed production, staying ahead of its market.

Production Multiplied Forty-Five Times In Four Years . . . Cemented tungsten-carbide could easily have been a source of weakness here, as it was in England, had it not been for General Electric's policy of continued expansion. In 1939, the production of the Carboloy Company was less than 20,000 lbs.; in 1940, it was 55,000 lbs.; in 1941, it was 163,000—and in December came Pearl Harbor. Now, in 1942, the Company's production is going at a rate that is 45 times that of only four years ago.

Britain Dependent Upon Us . . . By contrast, British companies, which had been content to continue as customers of Krupp, found themselves cut off from the vital material when Poland was invaded. But the General Electric Company was able to supply substantial quantities to British industry immediately and since then has continuously filled British orders. It has, in like manner, filled Canada's requirements since 1936. It is currently supplying Canada, Russia and other United Nations. All this in addition to supplying the greatly expanded needs of American industry.

An Inspirational Story of American Industry . . . Thus, the story of Carboloy does not end in "too little and too late". Like many previously untold stories of American industry, it continues, a sturdy and inspiring example of public service born of private enterprise, and characterized by hard work, ingenuity, investment, research, risk, and courage—a familiar pattern on this side of the Atlantic. General Electric Company, Schenectady, New York.

GENERAL ELECTRIC

Over the entire period of its existence up to January 1st, 1942 the total net profit of the Carboloy Company was 2.5 per cent of sales.

Nonwar Agencies 'Volunteer' Workers

Nonwar agencies are now being called on to turn over some of their personnel to war agencies. It's all being done on a voluntary basis now, but the Civil Service Commission is in a position to get tough if any of the agencies balk. The commission has a good idea, if not the actual figures, on the budget and personnel cuts inflicted on the nonwar agencies by the Budget Bureau and it's using this information as a guide in making the less essential agencies give up employes. Social Security, Agriculture, and Interior are among many other agencies that have been ordered to reduce their personnel. It's all a hopeful sign for the conversion of Government to an all-out war footing.

Wayne Coy is slated to be appointed deputy director of the Budget Bureau in charge of war activities. He would continue as the President's liaison with the Office of Emergency Management . . . National Parks Service and Fish and Wildlife Service are expected to be located in Chicago's huge Merchandise Mart, Office of Indian Affairs is scheduled for Chicago but it may go to Denver instead . . . Civil Service's National Roster of Scientific and Specialized Personnel has been transferred to the new manpower commission but it must be preserved as an "organizational entity" under the President's order. No changes in its operations are anticipated as the organization has done a grand job.

Farm Credit has hired more than 300 people here who want to accompany the agency to Kansas City. The move will start May 18. FCA will take people away from Washington at a time when war agencies are crying for many new workers . . . UFWA has sent 908 blood donors to the Red Cross within the past 12 weeks, a notable accomplishment. The 1000th donor will be singled out for an award . . . The President has changed the name of the Office for Agricultural Defense Relations to the Office for Agricultural War Relations . . . WPB's Labor Supply Division has lost four of its press agents recently to the CIO.

Only God Makes 'E'

An employe of the Library of Congress laments over the new efficiency rating system with this parody:

I think that I shall never see
A "G" as lovely as an "E."
An "E" that looks as if to say
I'll mean a boost to you in pay.
"G's" are made by folks like me
But only God can make an "E."

Strange to say, personnel directors in most of the old-line agencies complained when the Civil Service Commission simplified the efficiency rating system. But they protested about it before, too, so apparently they all can't be satisfied.

At a time when the Civil Service Commission can't fill all its orders for typists and stenographers it has raised its requirements for the two classes of workers. That doesn't seem consistent but it's an attempt to get better employes, and if it works fewer new workers will be needed. Stenographer standards are now back to 96 words a minute on dictation plus a general intelligence test. Formerly no intelligence test was given and only 80 words were required. Fewer errors are now allowed on typing tests.

Too many young people have been brought here who haven't been able to make the grade. War agencies have assured the commission that they won't order stenos and typists in groups of hundreds at a time if they are supplied with competent people. Many of the stenos and typists recently haven't been able to spell, they don't know how to file, or the first thing about an office. Navy and other war agencies are planning to fire some of the underpar stenos and typists but others will be compelled to attend classes after work if they wish to retain their jobs.

The Weather Bureau at the Washington National Airport is hiring women as observers . . . E. R. Ballinger reports for duty Friday as personnel director of General Accounting. Comptroller General Lindsey Warren promises him complete cooperation from Warren's subordinates, something no other personnel director has been able to do. GAO employes are being given overdue pay raises in an effort to keep them in the organization. Hundreds are trying to get out.

No Time for Locked Jaws

Food, especially gummy caramels, has been banned for men and women on duty in the air-raid-warning center in Richmond, Va. Recently, one of the telephone watchers saw the red signal flash, picked up the phone to give the alarm but couldn't say a word. A piece of caramel was between his teeth. The alarm was only a test but now officials are not taking any chances.

Police Are Quick; Thieves Quicker

Fairfax County police yesterday did some quick work in recovering an automobile within 30 minutes after it had been reported stolen. And some tire thieves were equally as fast. Charles E. Kellogg, 109 George Mason Drive, Arlington, Va., reported his automobile was stolen. Policemen R. F. Utz and Cecil E. Brown located it in a wooded section near Annandale—minus five tires.

Citizens Urge Food 'Czar' For District

Appointment of a Federal food administrator for the District to regulate and control prices of food here during the war was urged last night in a resolution adopted by the Columbia Heights Citizens Association. The association moved to send a copy of the resolution to President Roosevelt.

In drafting the resolution, the association called attention to unfair prices here during the first World War and that, toward combatting the practice, President Wilson appointed a food administrator. It also pointed out that drug stores, restaurants and grocery stores have advanced prices here. The resolution was introduced by George H. Brown, president.

The unit also nominated officers for the ensuing year. Brown was renominated for the third successive time as president. Other officers renominated were: Vice president, Dr. A. V. Smith; second vice president, Mrs. Earnest W. Howard; secretary, Richard K. Brown; treasurer, John M. Boteler. The annual election will be held May 4.

Columbia Heights Forum

Establishment of a bus stop at Park Road and Hiatt Place for the convenience of Powell Junior High School students was urged last night by the Columbia Heights Citizens Forum at its last meeting until October.

The association, meeting at Powell Junior High School, also heard W. W. Couliette, vice chairman of the Columbia Heights Civilian Defense Executive Committee, urges cooperation in a forthcoming house-to-house campaign to raise funds for civilian defense equipment.

Guest speaker was Howard Wentworth, public relations officer of the Bureau of Vehicles and Traffic, who discussed Washington's traffic safety problems.

Petworth Citizens

A campaign to sell as many victory bonds as possible was launched last night by the Petworth Citizens Association at its monthly meeting although it was reported that several members had "jumped the gun" and sold $25 worth in the two previous days.

Raymond E. Gable is chairman of the committee in charge of this and has 50 persons serving with him. The group was appointed an issuing agent for the bonds last week by the Federal Reserve Bank in Richmond, Va.

J. Fred Johnson, jr., of the Federal Communications Commission, was main speaker for the meeting which was held in the Petworth Library, Georgia Avenue and Upshur Street Northwest. He urged members to buy bonds for their own good as well as for the good of the country.

A resolution was adopted favoring the re-ceding of Arlington County to the District. George W. Potter presided.

Hearing Set On 50 Million D. C. Fund

House Group Will Take Testimony On Housing Needs Starting Tomorrow

The House Appropriations deficiency subcommittee will begin hearings tomorrow at 10 a. m. on a bill to appropriate 50 million dollars for the erection of homes and extension of public works for Federal war workers in the District area.

Chairman Cannon (Democrat) of Missouri, said last night that officials of the Federal Works Agency and the National Housing Agency will be called before the subcommittee to discuss the projects already authorized by Congress.

As authorized, 30 million dollars will be expended for single and dormitory unit dwellings and 20 millions for public works, including schools, hospitals, streets and extension of existing water and sewer facilities.

Witnesses scheduled to testify before the subcommittee include John B. Blandford, jr., chief of the recently created National Housing Agency, and, from the Federal Works Agency, Baird Snyder, acting administrator; John N. Ely, executive assistant and budget officer; Alan Johnstone, counsel; W. E. Reynolds, commissioner of public buildings, and W. E. Carey, chief engineer.

Meanwhile, another House Appropriations subcommittee is busy marking up the District's 1943 appropriations bill now totaling about $56,500,000. Representative Mahon (Democrat), of Texas, the subcommittee chairman, said the subcommittee plans to report the measure next week.

Yesterday the House accepted the conference report granting the District Government $388,817 to carry out the activities of several departments during the current fiscal year which ends July 1. The sum was included in the sixth supplemental national defense appropriation bill.

Among the chief items included in the conference report for the District were $45,000 to complete six classrooms at the Lafayette School and $129,373 for repairs and maintenance expenses at Gallinger Hospital and Glenn Dale Sanitoria.

Other items included salaries and expenses of the Rent Control Administrator's office, $5400; general contingent expenses, $7200; general printing and binding, $6500; street cleaning, $20,000; postage, $4000; Community Center Department, $15,000.

Bethesda Woman, 3 D. C. Residents Hurt in Traffic

A Bethesda (Md.) woman was run down by her own automobile and three Washingtonians were hurt in traffic accidents yesterday.

Mrs. Allethia B. Stapleton, 50, of 7201 Hampden Lane, Bethesda, was knocked down by her car when it rolled backward while she was putting some bundles in the rear on a parking lot at Wisconsin Avenue and Old Georgetown Road. She was taken to Georgetown Hospital suffering from severe body injuries.

A 16-year-old cyclist, Raymond Ritchey of 301 Massachusetts Avenue Northeast, suffered rib fractures and internal injuries when he was struck by an automobile at Twelfth and K Streets Northwest. Ritchey was in serious condition at Casualty Hospital.

Sergt. William R. Lutes, 42, of 1628 Bay Street Southeast and Private William Horowitz, 25, of 646 Newton Place Northwest, both of the Park Police, suffered minor injuries when their cruiser struck a tree in the 1700 block of Potomac Avenue Southeast. Police Sergt. Lutes, the driver, was ill and lost consciousness. Both men were treated at Gallinger Hospital.

Marrying Man of Choice Costs Woman $50,000, Not $25,000

By the Associated Press

Elizabeth, N. J., April 21.—Virginia Cocalis lost $50,000 instead of $25,000 when she married George McMillan, now of Alexandria, Va., in Newark, July 5, 1940.

She forfeited the larger amount because her father, Soteros A. Cocalis, Greek immigrant who climbed from flower peddling to ownership of 35 movie houses, left an estate of $1,109,157. Virginia would have renounced only $25,000 had the estate been less than $500,000.

The condition for each of four daughters, Virginia among them, receiving either amount was that they marry "according to the church a person who was born in the Greek Orthodox faith." McMillan, who has a Government publicity post in Washington, is of English descent.

Accounting of Cocalis' estate was filed yesterday with Union County Surrogate Charles A. Otto, jr., after a suit by another daughter, Mrs. Ethel C. Andrikakos of Wilmington, N. C., to require the accounting. Mrs. Andrikakos married after her father's death on April 22, 1939, and seeks a $50,000 share.

A third daughter, Betty, 17, lives with the theater-owner's widow, Mrs. Chrysanthe Cocalis, and the fourth daughter, Mrs. Marya Cabouris, resides in Jackson Heights, N. Y.

Virginia and McMillan met when both worked on the Long Branch (N. J.) Daily Record, soon after her graduation from Wellesley. Both got jobs in Washington and married.

MRS. GEORGE McMILLAN

In 1939, the residuary estate will go to three sons, James, 23, now in the Army Air Corps; George, 18, and Alexander, 8.

The widow receives $20 a week and use for life of the Cocalis house.

PUC Plans to Put All Taxis In D. C. in Pickup Service

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday moved to bring all taxicabs into the emergency pickup service.

A PUC order gave all nonparticipating drivers and companies 10 days in which to submit reasons why they should not operate under the pickup system. Only half the cabs in the city are participating, it was said.

Companies and drivers who submit reasons for their opposition in compliance with the PUC order will be given public hearings.

Ringgold Hart, attorney for the Diamond Cab Co., whose 1000 cabs have never entered the pick-up service said last night: "I cannot say what the position of the Diamond company will be as far as this order is concerned, but I do know that its policy has always been that there is no objection to picking up a capacity load at the point of origin. The only objection it has to the pick-up service as defined by the PUC is that the first passenger does not have the right of consent about picking up other passengers. If the order were so amended as to give the first passenger right of consent, the Diamond would be willing to go along."

Gregory Hankin, chairman of the PUC said that the order was made because less than half the taxi seating capacity in the District is now being used. He reported that many members of the companies participating in the service stayed off the streets during rush hours because they felt discrimination in the fact that other cabs could charge full fare.

Citing the dislike of rush hour driving as another major cause of drivers going off duty at these hours, Rankin said that the Commission would find some way to force the industry to give service when it is most needed, if such service is not drastically improved.

The pick-up service, he said, would be enforced also during the rush hours of 7-9 a. m. and 4:30-6:30 p. m. at Union Station, which has the most noticeable shortage of cabs in town, but into which pick-up cabs have not been allowed to go because of the concession held there by the Diamond association.

National Housing Authority Backs 'War Guest' Program

To bring more "living space into circulation," the National Housing Agency has quit talking in terms of defense homes registration and now is promoting a "home utilization and war guest program."

"We thought those words would have more popular appeal right now, maybe," an NHA official said last night, explaining the work being carried on under the program is already practiced by 280 homes registration headquarters scattered over the Nation.

Linked with this popularizing of the idea every room should be filled every night, NHA is encouraging the conversion, repair and improvement of existing dwellings in communities with war housing problems.

Speaking in New York last night, Administrator John B. Blandford, jr., declared that in new building for all types of housing, "it is intended that every ingenuity be exercised to minimize the use of critical materials."

Also, he declared, all care is being taken to place war housing projects so as to conserve to the maximum rubber and gasoline and materials for utilities and transportation equipment.

NHA now has the "total approach" to housing, the administrator said, describing the new decentralization plan of the agency as "a democratic policy of widening and increasing participation through a passing down of responsibility."

Welfare Unit Told Effect Of the War

Work Stimulated As Result of Bombing In Britain, Dr. Cullis Reports to Council

In England the war has stimulated, rather than obstructed, social services, Dr. Winifred Clara Cullis, prominent British educator and welfare worker, told the Council of Social Agencies yesterday.

Addressing the council's annual meeting, at the Cosmos Club, Dr. Cullis said early fears that bombings would play havoc with public welfare planning have long since disappeared.

Feeding, recreational and other programs for both the young and the old have been developed which are far beyond expectations, she asserted. Their success is due in part to contributions made and cooperation given by the United States and its people, she added.

Describing social welfare work as "an essential part of defense," Dr. Cullis said the two main tasks are evacuation of children from the cities and care for homeless air-raid victims.

Government-operated camps and nursery centers, free school lunches, provision of milk for small children, nursing mothers and invalids, communal feeding, recreational facilities, adequate old-age pensions—these are a few of the wartime services which are progressing satisfactorily in England, said the speaker.

Council elections were held for the board of directors yesterday, and appointments to advisory posts were announced by James V. Bennett, president.

The following were elected as members-at-large:

C. E. Batschelet, Dr. Clara Mortensen Beyer, Miss Josephine Brown, Judge Nathan Cayton, Miss Elizabeth Christman, Dr. Ernest S. Griffith, Richard Johnson, Mrs. William Kittle, William H. Sardo, Mrs. Ernest G. Warren, Dr. Carl Wells and Mrs. Prentiss Willson.

Dr. Griffith, Dr. Beyer, Johnson and Judge Cayton also were elected to the board of directors, along with Mrs. Gilbert Hahn, Miss Elizabeth Houghton, Woodson Houghton and Dr. Philip Marshall Brown.

Announcement was made of the election of the following by the Community Chest executive council to serve as advisors to the C. S. A. board of directors:

Genevieve Jenks, child welfare; William Savin, family welfare; Miss Flaxie Pinkett, settlements; Charles Fyfe, other group work agencies, and Dr. Rex E. Buxton, health.

Selected by the council as general advisors during the ensuing year were Capt. Rhoda Milliken, Judge Fay Bentley, Conrad Van Hyning, Dr. George C. Rhuland and Milo Christiansen.

WAR PLACES NEW DEMANDS ON ALL OF US

At the beginning of the war we were prepared to absorb the increases of passenger traffic.
But with tire rationing and gasoline shortages, the picture has changed. We are now carrying additional traffic formerly moving over the streets of Virginia and the District of Columbia. We are required to move this traffic.
Despite our best efforts, buses are crowded. So we ask your cooperation. We suggest that whenever possible you plan to travel between 10 A. M. and 3 P. M., when travel is the lightest. Plan visiting and shopping trips to avoid peak rush periods.

Beauty Chorus of Starlets Added to Caravan Revue

Bob Hope to M. C. Army-Navy Benefit Bill; Keith's Celebrates World Premiere Tonight; Items of News and Gossip of the Theater

NOW IT BEGINS TO COME OUT what all those 21-plus stars will be doing on the stage when the Hollywood Victory Cavaran opens its tour of 14 cities, for the benefit of Army and Navy relief, at Loew's Capitol Theater on Thursday night, April 30, at 8:30.

ELEANOR POWELL

Although not mentioned before, "the most beautiful chorus in the world," a scrupulously selected group of Hollywood's most glamorous starlets, already is in rehearsal for the event. Pulchritude, en masse, we got now!

Bob Hope has completed arrangements to air his network radio shows en route for the two weeks of the trip and will act as m. c. for the show.

Eleanor Powell has been busy for a fortnight on special dance routines. Claudette Colbert will "double," appearing first in a dramatic sketch and then in a comedy routine with Bob Hope. Laurel and Hardy have had two skits written especially for the Caravan tour, and Hollywood's foremost "gag" writers are preparing exclusive material for Bert Lahr, Frank McHugh, Charlotte Greenwood, Joan Blondell and Jerry Colonna.

Charles Boyer, Spencer Tracy, Pat O'Brien, Merle Oberon and Joan Bennett will appear in a series of dramatic numbers, while the vocal portions of the revue will be handled by Ray Middleton and Desi Arnaz.

Among the special songs, being written for the Caravan's junket by Jerome Kern, Johnny Mercer and other famous composers, will be a new one, "The Moon Is Down," by Arthur Schwartz and Frank Loesser, inspired by the John Steinbeck best-seller, recently dramatized and now on Broadway. It will be introduced by Rise Stevens, of the Metropolitan Opera, costarred not so long ago with Nelson Eddy in the screen version of "The Chocolate Soldier."

And another thing. If Groucho Marx can remodel his schedule in time, and locate that grease-paint mustache he threw away months ago, he, too, will be on hand to make it 22 stars instead of the 21 now assured.

And now about that world premiere of Alfred Hitchcock's "Saboteur," at RKO-Keith's tonight. Those who haven't seen "All That Money Can Buy"—and everybody should—will have to hurry. The last screening of this unique picturization of Stephen Vincent Benet's "The Devil and Daniel Webster," costarring Walter Huston and Edward Arnold, will go on at 4:45 p. m., immediately preceded by the new March of Time, "America's New Army," at 4:25. After these showings the house will be closed, reopening only in time for the invitational premiere at 8:45. Norman Lloyd, the villain of "Saboteur," and Mrs. Lloyd arrived in Washington yesterday at 5:30 from New York, to be present at tonight's gala, which also will be attended by Director Alfred Hitchcock. A supper party in honor of Mr. Hitchcock and visiting celebrities will follow the premiere at 11:15, in the Carlton.

Maurice "Red" Silverstein, formerly Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer division manager for Singapore, Malaya, Dutch East Indies and French Indo-China, has arrived in Washington to take up new duties in the local territory, with headquarters at 1009 New Jersey Avenue Northwest. It should interest Capital filmgoers that Mrs. Silverstein is the beauteous Betty Bryant, Australian film star, who scored so handsome a hit with American audiences in "Forty Thousand Horsemen," the most noteworthy picture that ever came up from Down Under.

Dots and Dashes

The rebuilt and refurbished Olney Theater and Restaurant—housed in adjoining structures—is now completed to a point that enables Impresario Stephen E. Cochran to announce the definite opening of his summer theater on Monday, May 18 . . . The redesigned restaurant, incidentally, will comfortably accommodate more than 400 patrons . . . Having sold out last Friday and Saturday nights, the Cue and Curtain production of the George S. Kaufman-Edna Ferber "The Land Is Bright" will be repeated tonight, at 8:30, in Western Presbyterian Church Auditorium, Nineteenth and H Streets . . . Rose Robison Cohen's Children's School of Drama will present Aurania Rouverel's "Growing Pains" as its annual spring production, on May 9, in Roosevelt High School Auditorium . . . Personal aside to Frances Starr and Paul Hartman: Thanks enormously for the cordial notes.

In-Acknowledgment-of-Prompt-Service Note

HEDDA HOPPER

Lens-Lease, No Doubt!

Hollywood, Calif., April 21.—So far, in our preoccupation with the war, pictures and picture plots have overlooked that brave and colorful group of noncombatants, the press photographers, with roving commissions wherever our forces are engaged with the enemy. However, on the recent visit of Bob Landry, ace cameraman for Life magazine, who got those marvelous action shots of Pearl Harbor and the Task Force in their blasting of the Japanese held islands in the Pacific, RKO's producer, David Hempstead, huddled with Bob and the result will be "War Assignment"—a story built on Landry's actual experiences during the past months. Michele Morgan, star of "Joan of Paris," is already set for the love interest.

CLARK GABLE

Jean Gabin becomes his own landlord for the first time in his life with purchase of new home in Hollywood hills. He'd just bought a house in France when Germans moved in and took over. Says he'd have got one here immediately except he wanted to wait and see what critics did to his first picture, "Moontide," before investing.

Clark Gable may join Maj. Frank Capra in making defense shorts for Uncle Sam.

Betty Hutton's sister, Marian who's been with Glenn Miller's band four years, makes her screen debut in "Orchestra Wife." In this, Glenn will play five originals by Mack Gordon and Harry Warren (authors of "Chattanooga Choo-Choo"), with Marian warbling.

Remember those thrilling pictures of the sound track in "Fantasia"? Well, sound man Al Bruslin, on "Thunderbirds," got the idea of a textile design from looking at them. He's patented it, and an eastern manufacturer is getting out the first pattern, which, if you can read a sound recording by sight, you'll recognize as Gene Tierney's love scene from the picture. By this summer, no doubt, our youngsters will be swishing about in dresses depicting the sound tracks of their favorite stars.

The family-acting championship in Hollywood, held for years by the Watsons (six kids in pictures) now goes to the Severnes, who have seven. Three of them, Clifford, Yvonne and Ernest, are working together in "SOS Iceland."

When a gigantic dog trotted on "George Washington Slept Here" set, cast began to speculate on its breed. "Well," said Jack Benny, "it's either a St. Bernard or one whale of a Pekingese."

Bill Tracy, for his part in that same picture, has to carry around a new automobile tire, which is the apple of his eye; and it's no gag, 'cause the studio didn't even have a new tire, and Bill's using the white-wall spare from his own car!

Words to the Wise

New York, April 21.

KATHARINE CORNELL: George Bernard Shaw has a Clipper reservation which will bring him to this country in June. He will be accompanied by his wife . . . REPRESENTATIVE LELAND FORD: The motion picture campaign against you. They'll throw their full support to Will Rogers, jr., who is expected to win the Democratic nomination and oppose you.

ANN CORIO

ARCHIBALD MACLEISH: Sidney Bernstein of Britain's Ministry of Information will arrive here soon for some coordination work. He was able to get a Clipper reservation—although he has a high priority rating—only by enlisting the aid of a New York friend, whom he telephoned on Friday . . . SENATOR O'DANIEL: Lieut. Comdr. Lyndon Johnson, the Texas Congressman, is in line for promotion because of his assistance to the President . . . SUMNER WELLES: Henri Torres, the French lawyer who recently wrote the revealing book, "Laval," told this story the other night: Some of his friends tried to convert Laval. They reminded Laval that he was staking his future on a Nazi victory. "Suppose the Nazis lose?" they suggested. Laval answered: "They can't do that to me."

GEN. MARSHALL: Isn't it true that Col. "Wild Bill" Donovan is going to become a member of the General Staff . . . MARGIE HART: Ann Corio, the strip-teaser, is in town now. When an admirer, who liked the aroma of her perfume, said: "You smell good. What are you wearing?" Ann answered, "Plenty" . . . DONALD NELSON: Investigators of a reported slowdown at the Bethlehem and Fairchild Shipyards instead found signs there: "A Guy Who Relaxes Helps the Axis."

JOHN STEINBECK: Claire Luce, who was featured in your play, "Of Mice and Men," is writing a book about England and the war and of her exciting voyage here. Her literary agent will be Annie Laurie Williams, your representative . . . CHARLES LINDBERGH: Didn't you have a disappointing conference with Donald Nelson? . . . W. W.: At a preview of the Russian film, "Guerrilla Brigade," the photographer wanted a picture of Mrs. Maxim Litvinoff and Elsa Maxwell, who were engaged in conversation. Miss Maxwell said: "It's perfectly all right with me," but Mrs. Litvinoff turned away and begged off. "I love Elsa," she explained, "but I hate gossip columns."

W. AVERELL HARRIMAN: Virginia Pine, who recently became the bride of Quentin Reynolds, won't be permitted to accompany him when he returns to England. "I know I'm lucky, and won't be hit in any of the air raids," said Reynolds, "but I don't think my luck is big enough to cover both of us" . . . TONY CANZONERI: Barney Ross, who won the lightweight championship from you, will leave for San Diego on Tuesday, to become a private in the United States Marine Corps . . . SECRETARY MORGENTHAU: To date, by entertaining for an aggregate of four hours, Danny Kaye, star of "Let's Face It," has sold a total of $400,000 in War Bonds. He made that record in only two attempts.

PHIL BARRY: Katharine Hepburn will costar with Spencer Tracy in the new MGM movie, "Keeper of the Flame," the story which alleged[illegible] is based upon the Lindbergh career . . . ELMER DAVIS: Raymond Rubicam of the advertising agency of Young & Rubicam now is being mentioned as a possibility to head the new information post . . . OVERSEAS PRESS CLUB: On December 7 Bob Low of Liberty magazine and Ken Downes of United Press were in a shell-hole in Libya. They heard of the attack on Pearl Harbor. That day they left the desert and managed to make the long trip home. Low was offered a 100 per cent increase in salary by Liberty. He rejected it, and this week becomes an Army captain in Air Intelligence. Downes also has joined he Army.

WARNER BROS.: Maxie Rosenbloom, whose biography has been screened and is being shown under the title "Darwin Was Right," was asked by an eager lawyer at Leon & Eddie's whether he had signed a release. "No, I signed no release," Maxie told him, "only signed a receipt for money paid me" . . . CARTOONISTS GUILD: The comic-strip market soon will be flooded by cartoons whose principal characters are Russian guerrilla fighters . . . ATTY. GEN. BIDDLE: The people of New Mexico are determined not to permit the interned Japs to be moved there—because the 200th Coast Artillery Anti-Aircraft unit, in Bataan and Corregidor, is from Deming, New Mexico.

If Workers Like, Star Sits Pretty

For 16 days on location in the Santa Cruz mountains for Paramount's "The Forest Rangers," Paulette Goddard found red roses in her portable dressing room. Miles from town, out at the Monterey Bay Redwood Company's soquel mill, or up at the State Redwool park in Big Basin, the star found the same flowers—or rather a fresh bouquet—each morning. But she was never able to find out who sent them.

When she returned to work at the studio, for the first time, her admirers admitted their identity. They comprise the electrical crew of the picture, and, knowing that flowers would be difficult to obtain on location, they had a standing order with a Santa Cruz florist. And the first man on the set each morning had the job of arranging them and placing them on her dressing table.

Up From Chorus

Barbara Stanwyck, who plays one of the most dramatic roles in screen history in "The Great Man's Lady," started her theatrical career as a chorus girl in Ziegfeld musical shows.

Stage Stars Hired For 'Mrs. Wiggs'

Ethel Griffies and Betty Farrington checked in recently at Paramount for roles in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch."

They play the social workers who try to take Mrs. Wiggs' children away from her. Fay Bainter is Mrs Wiggs and the children in question are played by Carolyn Lee, Betty Brewer, Mary Thomas, Billy Lee and Carl "Alfalfa" Switzer, respectively.

Saboteur
Here's the exciting story of a boy and girl who outwit and outfight a sinister ring of American traitors. You'll see them in a thrilling escape from California to New York . . . how they are trapped and how they heroically win against odds. And the strange thing is they are just a boy and girl like you and you . . . loving their country more than each other. You might wonder how it could happen to them. You'll have a rare movie thrill when you find out. It's made by the master of the unexpected, Alfred Hitchcock, who gave you "Rebecca," "Foreign Correspondent" and "Suspicion." You'll agree "Saboteur" is Hitchcock at his best.

"SONG OF THE ISLANDS." This Technicolor musical finds the roving Twentieth Century stars at play in Hawaii; Betty Grable, Victor Mature, Jack Oakie, Thomas Mitchell, George Barbier, Billy Gilbert, Hal K. Dawson and Hilo Hattie are the principals. Harry Owens and his Royal Hawaiians play music by Owens and Mack Gordon. Comedian Al Trahan headlines the stage revue with Songstress Lois Andrew, in private life the wife of the National's star, George Jessel. Opens tomorrow morning.

Palace

"TO THE SHORES OF TRIPOLI." Continuing for a second week on F Street, this Technicolor salute to the Marine Corps costars John Payne, Maureen O'Hara and Randolph Scott. Payne plays the young playboy who doesn't appreciate the Marine traditions until he gets into a good scrap.

Metropolitan

"THE FLEET'S IN." Dorothy Lamour, William Holden, Eddie Bracken and Jimmy Dorsey's orchestra return in this nautical musical comedy of the shy gob with oomph. Supporting roles feature Betty Hutton, Bob Eberly, Helen O'Connell, Cass Daley, Gil Lamb, Leif Erickson and Lorraine and Rognan. Opens Friday morning.

Columbia

"THE COURTSHIP OF ANDY HARDY." With Mickey Rooney making a shy waif into a popular glamour girl, the latest of the Hardy Family comedies returns after two weeks at the Palace. Donna Reed is the newcomer in a cast that includes Lewis Stone, Fay Holden, Cecilia Parker, Sara Haden and Ann Rutherford. Opens tomorrow morning.

Little

"MAYERLING" Back for its sixth engagement on the Little screen comes this pre-Vichy triumph costarring Charles Boyer and Danielle Darrieux. The story, of course, is that of the Austrian heir's love for a beautiful commoner which led to their double suicide at Mayerling. Opens this morning.

Pix

"WHAT'S COOKIN'?" This Universal musical boasts a cast that includes the Andrews Sisters, Woody Herman's Orchestra, Jane Frazee, Gloria Jean, Grace McDonald, Robert Paige, Leo Carrillo, Billie Burke and Charles Butterworth. Musical numbers dominate this yarn of radio life. Opens Saturday afternoon.

Trans-Lux

"THE ARGENTINE QUESTION." The "March of Time" release concerning the South American nation and its relations with the Axis headlines the short subject program of the newsreel theater. Also on the bill is Walt Disney's "Old McDonald's Farm" and Tex McCrary and Kaltenborn's special editions of the news. Opens Friday morning.

Gayety

Open Air

"WILD GEESE CALLING" shares the bill with "South of Tahiti" for the three nights beginning tomorrow at the drive-in theater on the Richmond Highway. Henry Fonda and Joan Bennett are the stars of the film version of the popular novel. Tonight's the last for "Sun Valley Serenade" and "Mobtown."

Glen Echo

MOTOR BOATS that are self-operating are one of the early season favorites at the amusement park, docking at a newly enlarged landing. Two adults or three children may be seated in each boat. Among the other amusements at the park is the Spanish Garden ballroom, with music by Paul Kain's orchestra.

Uline's Arena

Symphony Drive Reaches 46% of Goal

The National Symphony Orchestra's 10-day sustaining fund drive at the halfway point yesterday had netted $52,696.85, representing 46.2 per cent of the $114,000 goal, 160 volunteer workers heard yesterday at the campaign's second report luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel.

Campaign Chairman E. R. Finkenstaedt, announcing progress of the drive for funds necessary to carry the symphony through its 1942-43 season, said $18,799.30 had been raised since the first report luncheon last Friday.

As at the previous luncheon, David B. Karrick's Metropolitan Committee, which solicits all of metropolitan Washington, turned in the largest amount yesterday. Contributions of $13,064.50 brought its total to $37,437.50, or 63.3 per cent of its quota.

Amounts raised to date by other committees and the percentage of their quotas reached: Business and professional, Mark Lansburgh, chairman, $4,654.50, 33.2 per cent; Army, Mrs. William Ayres Borden, chairman; Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, vice chairman, $1,080.55, 54 per cent; associations, Mrs. Eugene Byrnes and Mrs. Reeve Lewis, cochairmen, $2,122, 30.3 per cent; education, Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith, chairman, $302.50, 6.7 per cent; Government, Postmaster General Frank C. Walker, chairman, $1,335.50, 14.8 per cent; Navy, Mrs. Emory Scott Land, chairman, $1,404.25, 41.3 per cent; Orchestra Guild, Mrs. Charles Bittinger, chairman, $3,630.05, 33 per cent; suburban, Mrs. Edwin B. Parker and Mrs. Robert LeFevre, cochairmen, $730, 18.2 per cent.

O'Connor Takes Seat On Jobless Pay Board

George H. O'Connor, president of the District Lawyers-Title Insurance Company, was sworn in yesterday as a member of the District Unemployment Compensation Board.

O'Connor, widely known in Washington as a singer of after-dinner ballads, succeeds the late Daniel J. Callahan as employers' representative on the five-man board. His term will expire in August, 1944.

Britain's Princess Elizabeth Takes Station in Public Life

CELEBRATES 16TH BIRTHDAY—Princess Elizabeth shakes the hand of an officer of the Grenadier Guards as she reviews the regiment

By the Associated Press

London, April 21.—Looking more than ever a Windsor, Princess Elizabeth entered public life today on her sixteenth birthday, receiving as "Her Royal Highness the Colonel" the famed Grenadier Guards on the grounds of Windsor Castle.

The tall girl who may some day be Britain's sovereign took the salute, smiling and self-possessed, with her mother and father and her little sister, 11-year-old Margaret Rose, in the background. Then she walked away, holding Margaret's hand.

Even in low shoes, Elizabeth stood an inch taller than the Queen, in high-heeled slippers. Both daughters and mother wore blue wool "utility suits" of plain cut.

Officially Elizabeth's girlhood is over, for the King and Queen have decided that she must assume the responsibilities of her station.

There will be a small private dance soon in honor of Elizabeth's coming out and other engagements will follow, although they will be restricted by wartime conditions.

Appointment of ladies-in-waiting to the prinhess is expected shortly.

6 D. C. Groups Will Pass Upon Sugar Appeals

Six administrative committees to take care of all questions on sugar rationing following the registrations for commercial and domestic users were appointed last night by Commissioner Guy Mason.

Because it was felt that the original sugar board, headed by L. P. Steuart, would not be able to handle the thousands of inquiries and adjustments rationing will occasion, the District was divided into six zones, with the following committees:

Zone 1. (Downtown area, east of Rock Creek Park, south of Florida Avenue, west of Union Station, north of Pennsylvania Avenue to the White House, and then south to the river.) Clarence Dodge, chairman; Horace Dolin and Frank Davis.

Zone 2. (Georgetown, all District land west o fRock Creek Park.) Reuban A. Bogley, chairman; Frank M. Shull and Charles M. Boteler.

Zone 3. (East of Rock Creek Park, north of Florida Avenue, west of Rhode Island Avenue.) Ara M. Daniels, chairman; L. W. Sanderson and Jesse Mitchell, Negro.

Zone 4. (East of Rhode Island Avenue, west of Anacostia River, north of South Capitol Street.) J. Frank Campbell, chairman; George T. Longcope, William J. McNamara.

Zone 5. (All of the Southwest area.) Thomas P. Brown, Joseph B. Murphy and John T. Rhines, Negro.

Zone 6. (All sections east of the Anacostia River.) C. Bayne Marbury, chairman; Marcus Schwartzman and Frank D. Klimkiewicz.

Mason said it was hoped that schools would be used for housing these committees, which would have two paid clerks as well as the volunteer members. Mason, Steuart and District Rationing Administrator are to meet with Superintendent of Schools Frank W. Ballou today at noon to discuss the availability of schools for these boards.

These boards will have full power to act on complaints and appeals on both kinds of sugar rationing; persons not satisfied with the decisions must appeal to Steuart or Leary.

Registration of commercial users of sugar will be on April 28 and 29.

A.F.L. Unionizing D.C. Pinboys

A drive to unionize bowling alley pinboys in Metropolitan Washington under an American Federation of Labor charter has been started in what was described as an effort to "stabilize" employment and obtain higher type employes, it was learned yesterday.

Hugh W. Arbaugh, president of the Metropolitan Washington Bowling Operators Association, told a Post reporter that a contract had been signed with the American Federation of Labor under which the unionized pinboys will operate.

The contract, which went into effect Monday and terminates in three years, provides payment of 4½ cents a game to pinboys, a half cent increase over what pinboys have been getting. In addition, a half cent a game bonus, or a total of 5 cents a game, is provided for boys who work a full week.

Arbaugh estimated that there are about 500 pinboys working in 23 Metropolitan Washington alleys. Under the contract an average day's pay will be about $6.50, he said.

Great Strides Stressed at Last Session of AP Convention

By the Associated Press

New York, April 21.—Editors and publishers of Associated Press member newspapers concluded their annual meeting today after approving changes in the bylaws of the nonprofit, cooperative news-gathering organization which Robert McLean, president, said marked a tremendous stride forward in the affairs of the Associated Press.

"I think the AP is a far stronger organization today than ever in the past," said McLean, publisher of the Philadelphia Bulletin. "The AP is in a better position to fulfill more fully its responsibilities."

Bylaws Provisions

Among the most important changes approved were liberalization of provisions relating to the election of new members and a limitation on the tenure of office of members of the board of directors to three consecutive three-year terms, beginning next year.

New officers will be named tomorrow by the board of directors which was elected yesterday.

The following six directors were reelected:

W. H. Cowles, Spokane (Wash.) Spokesman-Review; George B. Longan, Kansas City (Mo.) Star; Col. Robert R. McCormick, Chicago Tribune; L. K. Nicholson, New Orleans Times-Picayune; E. Lansing Ray, St. Louis Globe-Democrat, and Stuart H. Perry, Adrian (Mich.) Telegram.

Chicago Paper Refused

Operating under the revised bylaws which require only a majority vote for election, the Associated Press members voted down an application for membership from the Chicago Sun, which is published by Marshall Field. The vote was 684 to 287.

Ballots still were being tabulated on the application from the Washington Times Herald, published by Mrs. Eleanor Medill Patterson.

The application of the Chicago Sun was sponsored by Silliman Evans, of the Nashville Tennessean, and an associate of Field's in the Sun organization. Arch Ward, sports editor of the Chicago Tribune, spoke in behalf of Tribune employes in opposition to a membership for the Sun.

Mrs. Patterson spoke in behalf of her application for membership which was opposed by Eugene Meyer, of The Washington Post, and S. H. Kauffman and Fleming Newbold, of the Washington Star.

Funeral Services Set Today for Vernon Bailey

Funeral services for Vernon Bailey, 77, retired chief field naturalist of the former Bureau of Biological Survey, now the Fish and Wildlife Service, will be held at 2 p. m. today at his home, 1834 Kalorama Road Northwest.

Burial will be private. Mr. Bailey died at his home Monday. He had lived in this city for the past 50 years.

Born in Manchester, Mich., Mr. Bailey attended the University of Michigan and Columbian University, now George Washington. He was well known, particularly in the West and Southwest, for the many field trips which he made for the bureau.

He was the author of several books on mammals, birds and plants. These include "Wild Animals of Glacier National Park," "Animal Life of Yellowstone National Park," Mammals of the District of Columbia," and "Animal Life of Carlsbad Cavern."

He was a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, a member of the American Ornithologists Union, Cooper Ornithological Club, the District Biological Society, of which he was president in 1922, and the American Society of Mammalogists, of which he was founder and president in 1933.

In 1933 Mr. Bailey retired from the Biological Survey. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Florence Merriam Bailey, and two brothers and one sister living in the West.

U. S. Can Take It

Print Truth, Good or Bad, Press Urged

By the Associated Press

New York, April 21.—Frank S. Hoy, of the Lewiston (Me.) Sun and Journal, today urged the Nation's newspaper publishers "to give the people of America the truth of the war, good or bad"—and not give them "Pollyanna talk of victories won when we have actually lost."

"To help accomplish this, the newspapers must be left free to do their own independent reporting and their own thinking," he said at the opening of the fifty-sixth annual convention of the American Newspaper Publishers Association. "We are not going to win this war by deceiving the people, by withholding casualty lists, by making war seem easy when we know that it is going to require 'blood, sweat and tears.'"

Hoy, chairman of the American Newspaper Publishers Association's first session, said that the newspapers were telling the truth now and that it was their responsibility to see that the public continued to get the truth.

"Amazingly Complete Picture"

"The newspapers of this country are cooperating under a voluntary censorship and they are careful not to publish any information that would be of value to our enemies," he said. "Through correspondents in all strategic battle zones and by means of all modern methods of communication, the newspapers are presenting amazingly complete, accurate and colorful accounts as well as timely news pictures of this world-wide conflict."

Scoring what he termed "wasteful propaganda," Hoy said that newspaper offices were being flooded with wasteful and silly publicity stories emanating from Army and Naval services, and from innumerable Government bureaus.

"The waste of time, money and of materials is positively shocking to those of us who are being forced to save paper, to save labor, and to reduce costs wherever possible," he said.

"Long Publicity Stories"

"We are urged to publish long publicity stories about how the Federal Housing Administration can help our people build homes, when, at the same time, we are told by other Government agencies that private homes cannot be built except in defense areas."

Hoy added that the force of newspapers and their great influence upon public opinion was never more evident than at present.

"In the national field the power of newspapers and the influence which they wield over public opinion has been strikingly illustrated during recent months," he said. "Take for instance, the reorganization of the Office of Civilian Defenses, or the pensions voted by members of Congress to be paid to themselves; consider the public reaction to the tactics of C. I. O. and A. F. L. labor leaders; consider the double time rate for holiday and Sunday work in war industries; all of these have felt the solid punch of a public opinion aroused by the newspapers presenting the true facts."

Hyattsville Bank Theft Verdict Upheld

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., April 21.—The United States Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals declined to disturb today the judgment of the Federal District Court at Baltimore sentencing Hilliard Sanders and William Leo Keefe to terms of 20 years each for robbing two Hyattsville, Md., bank messengers of $52,616.95 last September 25.

After listening to arguments of James J. Laughlin, of Washington, and John J. Henderson, of Burlington N. C., in behalf of the appellants, and of Assistant District Attorney T. Barton Harrington, of Baltimore, against the appeal, Judge John J. Parker announced that it was perfectly clear there was no reversible error in the trial and said that an opinion would be filed affirming the lower court's verdict.

The appeal on the part of Sanders was based chiefly on an alibi, which Laughlin said was supported by affidavits, that he was in Florida on the day of the robbery, on statements of Trial Judge W. Calvin Chesnut before the jury and on the denial of a motion for a new trial. The principal point in Keefe's appeal related to remarks by Harrington in argument which Henderson claimed were improper.

The bank messengers, Jack Dameron and Van Gordon Stauber, were robbed a few blocks from the Prince Georges Bank & Trust Co. at Hyattsville as they were driving toward Washington to deliver $15,616.95 to the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission and transfer $37,000 to a Washington depository.

Another automobile blocked their path and a man, identified by witnesses at the trial as Keefe, took the money from the unarmed messengers' car at pistol point. Eyewitnesses said Sanders was the driver of the car and that a third man remained in the machine. He has not been apprehended.

Sanders, with $2280 on his person, was arrested October 25 in Charlotte, N. C., and Keefe was taken into custody three days later in New York.

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

PRIMPING FOR SUMMER. Steve Cochran tells us that the big restaurant adjoining his Olney Theater is being decorated by Billy Barrington, temperamental and amusing architect who's designed big night spots all over the country. (The Madrillon is Billy's Washington masterpiece.)

Manager Roy Risk of Hotel 2400 Sixteenth Street and a flock of contractors are doing a lot of measuring and figuring around the Lounge Riviera where redecoration is due to start any minute. Additional air conditioning equipment will be installed, too, for the summer crowds . . . Jules James, owner of Restaurant "400," has just set $10,000 worth of almost brand-new equipment out in the alley—to make room for 60 extra diners in his overcrowded spot . . . 'Ja notice that the waitresses' costumes in the new Willard Room repeat the wine tones of the carpet?

Earline King, off-stage soprane for Magico Blackstone at the Earle Theater, is also singing at the King Cole Room. She's replacing Evie Knight, who's off to Florida for a highly significant vacation.

RED HEAD AND HOT. Red-headed Terry Lawlor returns to the Troika tomorrow eve and come Monday Sophie Tucker, greatest of the "red-hot mammas" of the '20's, will be singing at the Troika every night after she finishes her stunt at the National in "High Kickers."

TIGERISH GIFT. When Lauretta and Clymas, now at the Shoreham, danced at the court of an Indian prince, the delighted potentate presented them with a 12-foot tiger skin. They're going to cut it up for adagio costumes one of these days.

PAN-AM PUMMELING. The little brass-sided twin drums played by Caney, Del Rio's rumba king, are called timbales. He does some especially fancy "rim shots" on 'em . . . Rodriguez, of the Copocabana, gets wildly varied rhythms when he bangs his maracas on the sides and top of his conga drum.

Iris O'Brien shows every indication of becoming the most popular singer ever to appear at Glen Echo. She has both "that swing" and "that certain something."

NEW YORK'S ART BROWN is Arlo, now organing at the Neptune Room. Arlo has played at many Manhattan theaters in the manner made so popular in Washington by Art. Incidentally, Arlo and Art exchange those hilarious old-fashioned slides they use in their "illustrated songs."

Manager Russell A. Conn of the Ambasssador Hotel says the present conflict is the first "all-out war" he's witnessed since he participated in an earnest undergrad fracas at Randolph-Macon.

IN THE CAUSE OF FUN. Bill Strickland's introduction of "China Boy" Joe Wong at the Lotus—proving that Joe is strictly kosher. . . . Maestro Milton Davis' ah—unconventional greetings to Baseball Umpires Charlie Pipgrass and Lew Sommers who show up in the Rainbow Room as regularly as the ball team hits Washington. . . . The customer participation polka at the Balalaika. Such bouncing and prancing! . . . Turk of Paul Young's bragging about his success. "I've never laid an egg. Just a few medicine balls." . . . "Ha Cha" Gardner's terrific but friendly imersonation of President Roosevelt in the Mayflower Lounge. . . . Those midnight song festivals in Restaurant "823." People who never knew they had voices find themselves singing like Lawrence Tibbett—well, something like him.

PALATE PLEASERS. Most diverting dessert in town is the "Victory Surprise" served in the Victory Room. It's in layers, each a separate astonishment. . . . You can get a fine country style chicken dinner without going to the country. Just roll up Potomac Drive to Lee's Stables. . . . While the Cafe Caprice is primarily a cocktail lounge, you can also have your dinner served there. And the Roger Smith Hotel food is always both delicious and interesting. . . . . The Burlington Hotel menu is studded with the most intriguing items. Such as red cabbage cooked with wine. And strawberry meringue glace. . . . While Burt's Trans-Lux is not a seafood restaurant, they do mightily well by themselves on seafood platters and shrimp Creole.

The Nightingale is a-booming with its heaviest business thus far in 1942. Spring evenings and the brightly diversified "sweet 'n swing" of Jack Maggio's band are sure-fire crowd lures.

Without Painful Backache
Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.
The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.
When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

A METAMORPHOSIS AT BOSTON

Boston, April 21.—The evolution of the Boston baseball fan has been going on for nine years now. The Fenway Park customer, who used to be kindly uncritical of Red Sox in the pre-Yawkey days when the club was never supposed to win a pennant, now gets up on his hind legs and screams when he doesn't like the goings-on.

POVICH

It was never like that in the wonderfully futile days of the Red Sox when there was always a doubt if the owners could meet the payroll and any game the Red Sox won was an upset. Tolerance was the keynote of the Boston fan. He was inured to the horrible spectacles of Red Sox baseball and year by year he became more merciful. He thundered encouragement to his bums but never got mad at 'em.

He knew good baseball when he saw it, because he remembered the great Red Sox teams of 1918 and before, but he didn't expect much from the Red Sox. He went out to the ball park chiefly to see the visiting stars and get a thrill from their fancy play. If the Red Sox won, so much the better, it was a great day, but he saw the visiting team play most of the baseball.

He, in his multiplied number, gave Boston the reputation of being the most fairminded baseball town in the league. The visiting teams always got a fairer shake in Boston than in any other American League city. Their victories over the Red Sox weren't resented much. The Boston fan was a good sport. In another town a fancy play that beat the home club might evoke moans and mutterings, but at Fenway Park it was as apt to produce sincere applause for being a great play.

Tolerance Goes Out of the Park

But all that was before Yawkey. Before Yawkey's great wealth held out the promise of a pennant for the Red Sox. Yawkey's appearance on the Boston scene changed the character of the Fenway Park fan. The scent of a pennant was strong in his nostrils. Tolerance went out the window. He became rabid. He demanded Red Sox victories, now that Yawkey had bought Lefty Grove and Jimmy Foxx and Joe Cronin and the most expensive rookie stars of the high minors. The Fenway fan wanted his hour in the sun.

A pennant for Boston has been a mirage, though, for eight years now. The Fenway fan has become increasingly sour at Red Sox defeats and less willing to forgive. The visiting clubs no longer get the same fair shake at Fenway. They are booed and jeered when the Red Sox win. When the Red Sox lose, the boos are turned toward tht home club. The fans have become impatient, pennant-hungry and slightly carniverous.

His transformation was immediate with the coming of Yawkey to Boston. In the first year of Joe Cronin's management of the club, in 1935, the Fenway fan who had hailed with glee his purchase for a quarter of a million dollars booed Cronin so loudly that his new bride rose from her box seat and left the park in tears one July afternoon. When the Red Sox own even a modest winning streak, Cronin could be elected mayor. When the Red Sox are losing, the Boston fan wants Cronin's scalp.

Even as towering a hero as Lefty Grove has heard the jeers of the Boston fan when he didn't win. The victory is the thing with the Fenway customer. Ted Williams, in a petulant tirade two summers ago, told newspapermen that Boston fans were a bunch of ungrately lugs and that he didn't like 'em. The next day they greeted him with cheers because he hit a home run that helped put the Red Sox up near the lead.

Fenway Fans Soured on Jack Wilson

No town ever soured on a ballplayer the way the Fenway fans soured on Big Jack Wilson. Boston fans visualized him as a great pitcher for the Red Sox some day but when he failed, year after year, to pitch winning ball, they literally booed him off the club. Cronin actually was afraid to start him in front of big Fenway crowds. Eventually he traded Wilson to the Nats last winter. When Wilson went to the mound for Washington the other day in Fenway Park, the Fenway fans were still in no forgiving mood. Boos greeted Wilson in his Washington uniform and at the end of a triumphant five-hit pitching job against the Red Sox, he was still hearing 'em.

Once upon a time Boston used to insist on Irish ball players. The biggest bum could be forgiven by the Fenway fan if he were Irish. But the hunger for a pennant has now overpowered racial enthusiasm. The Fenway fan isn't particular about the Red Sox nationalities as long as the Red Sox win ball games.

I guess Washington gives the visiting ball club as good a deal as any town in the American League. The reason is, of course, that only a small percentage of Griffith Stadium customers are native Washingtonians. The city's floating population always contains a host of fans of the town of whichever team happens to be playing the Nats and like all visiting fans they adopt a loud civic-mindedness.

Down through the years, though, New York has been kind to the visiting clubs. The New York fan does not always insist on a Yankee victory. In fact, when the Yankees lose a ball game, it always makes for a better crowd the next day. Fans are curious to see if it can happen twice in a row. Cleveland fans have been, for a generation, the sweet of the new strain of Fenway Park fan. Cleveland fans, in fact, may even eat their young.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

PUNCH DRUNK, THE TECHNICAL SIDE

New York, April 21.—Big Abe Simon, who had only brute courage to recommend him as a fighter, has wisely quit the ring. He could have stayed on for a few more years, getting belted by a succession of local prides, and made a good chunk of money. But he sensibly figured that if he did so he would be spending most of it for paper dolls.

CONSIDINE

In the back of their skulls, or pituitary glands, all fighters fear (1) blindness and (2) punch-drunkenness, usually in the order named. The constant boast of many who stayed too long in the game, and took too many punches around the head, is that they are not punch drunk. Repetitious denial is one of the several symptoms of this dreadful occupational disease.

Dempsey's handlers used to goad him into fiery action, early in his career, by telling him that his opponent was going to thumb him in the eyes. That was fearful stimulant for Jack and many other fighters. It's still in vogue.

But few fighters know anything about the disease called punch-drunkenness. As far as we know, only one article has ever appeared on it in the American Medical Journal though, along with the political hacks, there must have been a lot of first class commission doctors who have observed this malady at close range.

Slow Tongue a Good Sign

Our own medical learning is confined to uncorking iodine bottles, but we understand from an Army doctor who used to examine a lot of fighters at Fort Hamilton, and who interested himself in punchy battlers, that the trouble first manifests itself in attacks of vertigo. The blunt-talking ring game for a long time has a phrase "back on his heels" to describe a punchy fighter. It is a sounder diagnosis than its originator thought. For the natural thing to do when hit with a dizzy spell is to shift the weight to the heels—for balance. That is what punchy fighters have been doing since the very antiquity of time. And what they always will do in the first stages of a pretty grisly disorder.

The ring game also coined "he's got a mouthful of marbles," and that, too, was coined to describe another milestone on the path of a punchy fighter toward complete insanity. With the dizzy spells comes a hesitancy in speech. The tongue thickens and, until the brain slows down, cannot keep pace with it. Drooling often results, and a distant look settles in the eyes of the poor bloke—never to be erased.

The brain, of course, is the core of the trouble. Our Army doctor informant asked us to picture a dish of lima beans held together by a transparent jelly. We said we didn't want to, having had a bad night, but he insisted that pictorially this was necessary for the understanding of punch-drunkedness.

Then he explained that punches around the head rattle the brain and, after a countless number of blows, cause tiny cracks to appear in the gelatine. Into these cracks settle a fluid which the human system, with its ready made internal remedies, sends to the brain.

Shadow Boxing at a Trolley Bell

As we understand it, this is one of nature's few blunders. The human system finds ways of curing just about every other whack which its members absorb. But it cannot cure the brain. In fact the fluid it sends in an effort to repair the cracks succeeds only in hardening in the crevices. This clogs certain impulse channels, and when enough of them clog the result is destruction of coordination. The balance of the victim is affected first.

After a time come certain delusions, periods of intense depression, then rootless exhilaration. Certain sounds or sights that associate themselves with half-forgotten experiences in the ring, have a sharp effect on the victim. When witnessing other boxers at work, they twitch and duck and ward off blows in numb sympathy with the men in the ring. It is no joke that some have been known to throw up their guard at the sound of trolley-car bells. During the street fighting between Washington cops and the ragamuffin "Bonus Army" of a decade ago, we saw a punchy veteran, a former boxer, suddenly start boxing furiously although no one was close to him. He kept it up for the equivalent of several rounds before a young cop walked up to him and flattened the poor fellow with a punch.

Unanimous Nod Given D. C. Heavy

Newark Opponent Warned Repeatedly For Rough Tactics; Murray Is Winner

By Tony Neri

Jimmy De Chard, popular Washington heavyweight, hurdled another obstacle in his path last night when he punched out a unanimous decision over tough Joe O'Gatti, of Newark, in the eight-round main attraction of Promoter Joe Turner's boxing show at Riverside Stadium.

With 3000 fans voicing their disapproval of O'Gatti's rough tactics, De Chard took matters in his own hands by pummeling the Newark veteran about the body to gain the edge in every round.

O'Gatti tried from the first to bulldoze the young Washingtonian, only to find he had a heap of trouble in the ever-trying De Chard.

Using his head to ram against Jimmy's chin, O'Gatti was repeatedly warned by Referee Ray Bowen. O'Gatti paid no heed as he continued to use the unfair tactics.

O'Gatti Hangs On

De Chard strove to punch it out, but O'Gatti constantly hung on, refusing to obey the referee's orders to break. At times Jimmy would wrest himself loose and throw a right, only to have O'Gatti shove him toward the ropes. O'Gatti pushed Jimmy to the floor in the fourth round and Jimmy retaliated by administering lefts and rights in the stomach of the squatty New Jersey veteran.

In the third round the fans began a series of boos when O'Gatti wouldn't stop his holding. The last three heats of the fight provided a minimum of action with De Chard throwing his rapier-like left. O'Gatti couldn't cope with this weapon and Jimmy used it successfully. On the few occasions De Chard had to bring into play his right, he used it to best advantage.

O'Gatti Shaken Up

O'Gatti was visibly hurt in the fourth round. The Newark heavyweight had taken a steady beating to his midriff and he began puffing like the late 5:15. De Chard, pressing his margin, was ready for the kill, but with all due respect to O'Gatti, he was a good catcher.

The Newark fighter, who has stayed the limit with Mello Bettina, Harry Bobo, and Gunnar Bariund, suffered a cut over his left eye in the second round. De Chard appeared as fresh at the end of the eight rounds as when he entered the ring.

O'Gatti held a 9-pound pull in the weights, coming in at 201. De Chard scaled 192.

Murray Impressive

In a well-received semiwindup, also scheduled for eight rounds, and staged after the main event, Billy Murray, good-looking Ohio youngster, pounded out a clean-cut decision over Carl Guggino, of Hartford, Conn. Murray, who decisively licked little Oscar Wright here a few weeks ago, showed Guggino the same kind of fight that stole the show in the Wright match.

By sticking with his left and following with a hard right, Murray kept Guggino actively occupied. Carl, a ready mixer, met the youngster's challenge with bids of his own, but the aging Guggino couldn't cope with the kid's lightning jabs and right crosses.

It marked Murray's second triumph over Guggino, and gave him his fifty-fourth win in 56 fights. The decision was unanimous. The winner scaled 138 and Guggino, who is managed by Gabe Menendez, Promoter Turner's former matchmaker, weighed 140.

The net gate was $2241.

Mirman Wins Kaye

The preliminaries:

Gus Mirman, 171½, Washington, knocked out Oscar Poindexter, 161, Orange, N. J., in 2:20 of the second roud of a scheduled six.

Manuel Rosa, 150, Baltimore, outpointed Dave Bruce, 147, Orange, N. J., in six rounds. This was Rosa's second fight in two nights, he Monday having fought a draw with Johnny Finanzo in Baltimore.

Carl Gant, 153, Greensboro, N. C., knocked out Tony Cordell, 153¼, Baltimore, in 2:03 of the second round of a scheduled four-round curtain raiser.

Notre Dame Nine Whips Wildcats

South Bend, Ind., April 21 (AP).—The Notre Dame baseball team thumped the previously unbeaten Northwestern squad, 13 to 1, today with a 21-blow barrage and Johnny Metzger's five-hit pitching.

In the seventh inning the Irish got seven runs on eight singles and three errors.

Jack Tallett, North Chicago junior first baseman for Notre Dame, made two home runs and two base hits in five times at bat and scored three runs and batted in four.

Bobo Is Signed For Fight Here

Harry Bobo, big Pittsburgh Negro, was signed last night by Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn for a fight at Uline's Arena, April 29. A suitable opponent is being sought.

Wild Toss by Dodger Ruins Double Play as Braves Score

Al Roberge, Braves' infielder, sprawls on the ground after being forced at second in fourth inning of yesterday's game at Ebbetts Field with the Dodgers. Roberge was forced by Clyde Kluttz, Pitcher Ed Head to Shortstop Pee Wee Reese. Reese hurtles over Roberge as he tosses wildly to first. Kluttz reached second on the play and Sebastian Sisti scored

Tigers Whip Chisox, 4 to 2; Rowe Stars

By the Associated Press

Chicago, April 21.—Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe kept the Chicago White Sox from passing second base until the ninth inning today and the Detroit Tigers converted his six-hit pitching into a 4-to-2 triumph.

In evening the series, the Tigers handed Johnny Humphries, whose four victories last year were all shutouts, his second of the new season. Catcher Birdie Tebbetts' three singles led the 0-hit Detroit attack.

Consecutive singles by Ned Harris, Eric McNair and Tebbetts gave Detroit the first of two runs in the second inning, a bunt and fly scoring the other. Rudy York drove in the last two with a single and double.

Rowe needed a lift from John Gorsica to retire the last two Chicagoans in the ninth after McNair's fumble sandwiched between singles by Joe Kuhel and Myrl Hoag and a pass allowed one run and left the bases loaded.

Bums Unleash Power And Maul Braves, 13-2

Get 11 of 19 Hits in First Two Innings to Rout Foes; Rookie Head Hurls Victory

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, April 21.—The Brooklyn Dodgers mauled the Boston Braves today, 13-2, getting 11 of their 19 hits and nine runs in the first two innings to make the going easy for Rookie Ed Head on the mound.

The National League champs started off like a whirlwind, sending 12 men to bat for six runs in the opening frame and routing Al Javery at the height of their hilarity.

Dick Errickson, who came on the scene to quiet the party, was himself knocked out in the three-run second inning and Big John Hutchings merely slowed the Dodgers down, giving four more runs after the second inning.

The game was so one-sided, what with Brooklyn's violent offensive and head pitching eight-hit ball for his second triumph, that Manager Leo Durocher substituted freely in the late innings to give his veterans a rest.

In their opening flurry the Dodgers three times loaded the bases. The first came with none out and a walk to Dolph Camilli forced in the initial tally. The second time they were filled Head himself singled for two runs. The third time the side was retired. Frenchy Bordagaray, subbing for Pete Reiser who had a cold, and Arky Vaughan each singled twice in the inning.

Dixie Walker Doubles

Camilli led off in the second with a double against the right-field screen and four more hits followed before Hutchings came on duty.

In the third, Vaughan led off with a single, stole second and scored on a double by Dixie Walker. Head started the trouble in the seventh with a two-bagger, which was followed by a double by Bordagaray and singles by Lew Riggs and Walker.

Boston's tallies came in the fourth on three singles and a wild throw by Peewee Reese.

Md. Betting Figures Top Last Year's

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, April 21.—Traffic at the mutuel windows of Maryland race tracks is heavier this year than last, Governor O'Conor disclosed today.

Reporting the State's first wartime turf meeting was a big success, O'Conor said the nine-day Bowie card, which inaugurated the racing season, found betters planking down more money each day than in 1941.

He quoted figures from a report submitted by Frank Small, jr., State racing commission chairman, who said the average daily handle at Bowie was $450,960. This, O'Conor reported, was $92,783 more than the daily average for Bowie's 1941 spring meeting.

Small also reported that the current Havre de Grace meeting, which concludes Saturday, has been well attended. He indicated Havre's daily track take would be increased appreciably over the 1941 figures.

With Pimlico scheduled to inaugurate its spring program next week, O'Conor remarked that earlier fears for the success of the State's lengthy racing program have been dispelled by the "excellent start."

'New' Nats Start Bosox Series Here

By Shirley Povich

Post Staff Writer

Boston, April 21.—Only faintly resembling the hapless club that left Washington five days ago plastered by three straight defeats, the Nats are flexing their muscles in new hope tonight en route to a three-game series with the Red Sox in Griffith Stadium.

Bucky Harris' pitching and the anemic hitting of the club, did an abrupt about face after the Yankees sent them skulking out of town and the Nats are returning to Washington with three victories to show for five games with the A's and Red Sox. Buck Newsom, Jack Wilson and Dutch Leonard have turned in pitching jobs in the past week that have renewed Harris' faith in his mound staff.

To sweeten the picture the supposedly punchless Nats have been slugging away at a torrid pace in recent games. Bruce Campbell and Bobby Estalella are banging pitching for a better than a .400 average and Stan Spence, despite his second-place spot in the batting order, is leading the league in runs driven in. That trio, however, has virtually been carrying the load for the Nats.

Vernon Is Brilliant

The Nats have been doing very well despite the fact that Mickey Vernon, who was supposed to be the most consistent hitter on the club, hasn't been able to get up even a faint gallop with his bat. At this point, Vernon isn't hitting .200, but Harris is not very much troubled. The Nats' manager has lost no whit of faith in his tall first baseman who is expected to start meeting the ball with his customary vigor at any moment.

Vernon has been giving the Nats a great go of it despite his weak hitting. In every game he has been digging low throws out of the dirt and otherwise giving the club brilliant protection at first base. He has had to contend with the worst-throwing infield the league has seen in recent memory and save for Vernon's brilliant saves, the Nats might not own even one victory.

That infield is Harris' chief worry. He makes allowances for Estalella at third base, but Bob Repass has been in a horrible fielding slump and doesn't bear any resemblance to the fancy-fielding and accurate-throwing shortstop he was in the South. Until he pounded a double and a home run at Boston yesterday, Repass has not been hitting either. Harris is hopeful that those two blows will prove a lift both to Repass' fielding and hitting.

Mexican Joe Gomez has been doing well enough at second base defensively, but Harris will bring

Red Ruffing Wins After Shaky Start

Keller Cleans Sacks With Homer in First; Champions Celebrate McCarthy's Birthday

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, April 21.—The New York Yankees celebrated Manager Joe McCarthy's fifty-fifth birthday today by overpowering the Philadelphia Athletics 10 to 4 for Charley (Red) Ruffing's second triumph of the season.

The victory advanced the World Champs into a tie for the American League lead while the Boston Red Sox were kept idle by the weather.

Charley Keller blasted a home run over the right-field wall with the bases loaded in the first inning to set the Yankee machine rolling and in the fifth frame the Champs knocked Rookie Roger Wolff off the mound with anothre five-run assault.

Ruffing Tightens Up

Meanwhile, Ruffing settled down after a faltering start, and although he allowed the A's ten hits, the same as the Yanks accumulated, he permitted only one tally after the second inning.

In the first inning the Yanks loaded the bases for Keller on an error, a single and a walk. Ed Levy opened the fourth with a single, his second hit in seven games and wto passes filled the bases. Tom Henrich doubled two runs across and Joe DiMaggio singled another home. Russ Christopher came on duty and walked Keller to load the bases and then, after two were out, Buddy Rosar singled a pair of runs home.

Two More Passes Help Yanks

Two more of the ten bases on balls given the Yanks during the game came in the fifth and, coupled with a sacrifice and an infield out, provided the champs with their final tally.

Bob Johnson drove in a run for the A's in the first with a double and brought home Lou Blair with a fly in the sixth after Blair had tripled. Pete Suder singled home two runs in the second.

Auker May Quit To Take War Job

Cleveland, April 21 (AP).—Elden Auker, veteran "submarine" pitcher of the St. Louis Browns, said today it looked like he might retire from baseball to accept a full time job in a Detroit war-industry plant.

Holder of a bachelor of science degree from Kansas State College, Auker is employed in the winter in the engineering department of the Midwest Abrasive Co. in Detroits, which offered him a permanent job.

The veteran pitcher, sensing that his days in baseball are numbered, said "I haven't quite made up my mind, but it looks as if I may quit baseball."

Western Defeats Coolidge, 10 to 5; Takes Interhigh Lead

It's Rally Time for Central Diamonders

Easterners Beaten, 11-3, By Central

White Tide's Chance Of First Place Tie Ruined; Big Innings Decide Both Issues

Out front of all competitors in the interhigh baseball race leaped Western High's classy team yesterday as it defeated Coolidge for its second triumph, 10-5, while Central was trouncing Eastern, 11-3, to ruin the latter's chances of a tie for top spot.

In each case it was one big inning, wherein the losing nine came slightly apart at the seams, which decided the issue as the second public school twin bill was staged on the Western and Central lots, respectively.

Western Triumphs

The Red Raiders of Western, moving steadily toward their second straight title playoff berth, tossed both their veteran hurlers into the fray yesterday but were never seriously threatened, nevertheless.

Clarence Kuldell lasted through a 4-run Coolidge spree in the fourth, went out after the fifth with a total of six hits charged against him. Then Charley Hines, who stopped Wilson in the Raiders' previous triumph, went in and held things safe. He gave five hits in the last four frames.

Meanwhile, Western was getting the same number of hits, 11, off the offerings of Ralph Meikeljohn and Bernie Shankman. Assisting the Raiders, however, were four walks, a pair of wild pitches by Shankman and a costly Colt error.

Using Western's short right field fence to advantage, players of both teams had a field day of extra-base hits. Cockrill and Karas pounded triples for the hosts, and Papanicolas connected for a home run. A triple also went to the invaders' Penn, and Meiklejohn and Kleinknecht socked homers.

Western's big inning was the first, wherein it spotted Kuldell a 6-0 lead. The other four Raider tallies came in the next three innings.

Central Prevails

Overlooking the second inning, the Central-Eastern fray was an interesting and close one. Consider that period, however, and Central would seem a certain winner of the interhigh crown after only one game.

Eight runs the Vikings poured across the plate in the second, off six hits. Thirteen men went to bat and Eastern's starting pitcher, Garland Curles, went to the showers before the awful display was over.

Spotted such a lead, Aaron Weisenberg, experienced hurler of the Vikings, went ahead to win impressively. He struck out 17 of the hopefully waiting Easterners and got out with a six-hit record.

Jack Falls Stars

Al White, called in to stop the flood started by Curles, pitched nine base hits to the opposition, but was charged with only single runs in the second, third, sixth and eighth stanzas.

Leading the winning attack was an unheralded young outfielder, Jack Falls, whose pair of triples and single in five times at the plate were all of the solid variety. Falls drove in two runs to lead in that department, too, since Eastern was letting runs score right and left without their being driven in.

A big disappointment was Bob Hill, the Central first-sacker, for whom a bright baseball future has been predicted. He collected two Texas leaguers in five times at bat, walked once and popped weakly to third base and center field in his other two trips.

Raba Hurls, Gonzaga Stops Anacostia, 6-2

Elmer Raba, all-around athletic star at Gonzaga, got his first starting pitcher's role yesterday, and allowed only three hits and fanned 14 as the Purple stopped Anacostia High, 6-2, on the losers' field.

Anacostia was making its first start under the coaching of Joey Kaufman, former G. W. grid star, Coach Rolland Lund having left yesterday to accept a commission in the Air Corps.

Until the seventh inning it appeared Gonzaga would win its third game in five starts by a 2-1 count. In the seventh, however, they put on the clincher with four more runs. Star of the uprising was Bernie Nolan, who pounded one of John Penn's pitches for a triple with two mates on base.

Pin Crown Won By Elms Builders

The Elms Builders team won the championship of the American League at Silver Spring by taking all three games from Cornelius Printing with Andy Gleeson's 379 sparking the victory. Hugh Arbaugh, Silver Spring owner, rolled individual highs, his 153-396 leading Sandford's to team highs of 634-1750 and three games from Wonder Bread. Georgia Tavern and Diamond each won three from opponents to finish second and third, respectively.

Agnes Collins Leads Hyattsville Women

The Hyattsville Ladies League found Agnes Collins, Russell Motors, the leading pinwoman on the drives with a 160 game and 396 set, the latter count just five sticks below that of Winnie Hiser, rolled some weeks ago. The Russell Motor girls also won team highs with a 596 game and 1686 set, both counts high for the season.

In a flurry of extra-base hits the baseball team of Tech High realized an 18-7 victory over Bethesda-Chevy Chase yesterday on the suburban diamond.

The Manual Trainers jammed two home runs and an assortment of other hits into the fifth inning for nine runs, turning a close ball game into a rout. First Baseman Keithley and Outfielder Mater connected then. A triple had been socked by Brewer and a double by Bradley earlier in the proceedings.

Victim of the barrage was Shoemaker, who went the distance for Bethesda. He allowed 11 hits, while Burnett and O'Connell were holding his mates to 4.

Juggled Bucs' Line-up Pays Off at 5 to 2

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, April 21. — Manager Frankie Frisch gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a thorough shaking up today and the movement paid a 5-2 dividend victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Rip Sewell, veteran Pittsburgh right-hander, limited the Cubs to six hits, one an inside-the-park homer by Lou Stringer in the fourth inning, to win his second straight victory and snap a two-game Pittsburgh losing streak. The Cubs' other run came in the fifth on doubles by Stan Hack and Phil Cavarretta.

The Bucs gathered only eight hits but two of these were home runs, one by Bob Elliott in the third with a mate on base and the other by Stu Martin in the fifth. Martin's blow, like Stringer's was inside the park.

Georgetown Golfers Beat Baltimore, 5-1

Losers' Only Point Comes as Eddie Johnston Upsets Hoya Captain Buddy Sharkey, 1 Up

Coach Tony Sylvester's Georgetown University golf team outshot the University of Baltimore at Bannockburn yesterday, 5-1.

There was just a single sad aspect. The "one" of the losers was scored over Capt. Buddy Sharkey by Eddie Johnston, well-known young shotmaker who competes in tournaments as a representative of the Country Club of Maryland.

Sharkey, who has won matches this year against Duke, North Carolina, Catholic and George Washington, shot a 76, but Johnston turned in a 75 and won, 1 up, for his school's only score.

Georgetown's Jack Donahue and Bill Rohrey both shot two under-par 68's to win their matches easily and turned in a phenomenal best ball of 63.

The Hilltopper golfers meet Loyola, of Baltimore, at 3 p. m. on Friday at Bannockburn, and Monday meet a six-man team of all-star players selected from Washington high and prep schools.

Johnston (Balt.) defeated Sharkey, 1 up; Halligan defeated Bauer, 8 and 6. Best ball—G. U., 4 and 2.

Donahue (G. U.) defeated Fallon, 10 and 8; Rohrey (G. U.) defeated Snyder, 9 and 8. Best ball—G. U., 8 and 7.

Devitt Nine Trounced, 23-4, By Briarley

Special Dispatch to The Post

Amendale, Md., April 21.—The most decisive setback in this section this season was suffered by Devitt Prep nine, of Washington, as the local Briarley Military Academy club swept to a 23-4 triumph here today.

The Cadets built up their score rapidly in the early going, then exploded with a 9-run assault in the sixth inning. Meanwhile Devitt was never able to get more than one run an inning.

Despite the number of Cadet runs, only two Devitt pitchers saw action and they allowed only 11 hits. Russ Cordua went the route for Briarley and limited the invaders to four safeties, all singles.

Colonial Nine Invades G. U. At 2:30 Today

The race for the unofficial District of Columbia college baseball championship enters another phase at 2:30 today when George Washington invades Georgetown in the feature of today's schedule.

Meantime Maryland, winner of two straight after taking it on the chin for seven straight games, visits Navy for a baseball engagement and American University's tennis team journeys for a match with Western Maryland.

Result of the Georgetown-George Washington game will have a direct bearing on the collegiate championship race. Both defeated American University, but G. W. lost to Maryland so that another defeat today will all but eliminate the Colonials from contention, leaving G. U. and Maryland to fight it out.

In an effort to gain a needed triumph, G. W. will lead with its pitching ace today, one "Red" Kloak who has earned two of the three victories credited to the Colonials. Georgetown's pitching choice probably will be Joe Wells upon whose shoulders will rest a heavy burden.

Since Georgetown will not be able to use freshmen against George Washington—a member of the Southern Conference which frowns on such practice—two of its best pitchers will be employed in other positions. Dan Dieckelman will be at first base and Danny Murphy in the outfield, so that should Wells need relief, neither of his prospective successors will have the benefit of a warm-up.

Wilson Rally Wins, 8-4, Over Little Hoyas

Catching Georgetown Prep napping in the seventh inning, Woodrow Wilson's nine pushed over five runs to account for an 8-to-4 triumph on the Garrett Park diamond. The Prepmen came back in the next frame with three runs of their own, but darkness overtook the teams at that point.

Neither team was able to garner many hits, Wilson getting six and Prep five. Wilson's margin resulted from a total of nine errors by its host.

Frosh Star Sets Records In 100, 220

Cards Score 80 1-5 Points by Winning 12 of 15 Events; Bridgewater Is 2d

By Jack Munhall

With Freshman Jack Pierce scorching the cinders to two new meet records, Catholic University yesterday ran away with its annual multilateral track engagement with Mason-Dixon Conference rivals for the sixth straight year at Brookland.

Pierce breezed the 100 in 10 flat and the 220 in 22.7, both meet marks, as the Cardinals warmed up for next month's Mason-Dixon championships by taking 12 of the 15 events. They rolled up 80 1-5 points, more than double the 40 amassed by runner-up Bridgewater College.

Third with 29 1-5 was Gallaudet; fourth, with 8 2-5, Loyola of Baltimore, and fifth and last, with 5 1-5, was American University.

New Century Record

Pierce, a slim youngster from Hartford and the latest in a long succession of crack sprinters developed by C. U. Coach Dorsey Griffith, equaled the 3-year-old stadium record with his 10-second century. Reggie Cooper of C. U. set the stadium standard in 1939.

Coming back in the 220, Pierce zipped through in 22.7, erasing another of Cooper's meet marks, this one 23.1, also posted in 1939.

It took a meet record for Pierce to win the 100, too, for right on his heels all the way and beaten only a whisker was Bridgewater's Butch Spangler. Both Pierce and Spengler had been clocked in 10.2 in taking their respective qualifing heats.

Though Pierce's efforts were outstanding, he was not the meet's high-point scorer. That distinction fell to versatile teammate, Jack Weschler, who won the 440 in 0:53.2, the discus with a throw of 113 feet 11 inches, and took second behind Pierce in the 220.

Riehl Wins Javelin

Another big point earner for the Cardinals was Charley Riehl, who won the javelin toss with 162 feet 3½ inches, and the pole vault with a leap of 11 feet even. For the second time in a week, Riehl failed in an effort to break the stadium record of 12 feet 2 inches.

Only events not won by the Cardinals were the 2-mile run in which Herbie Wood of American University's small, unofficial team unleashed a great "kick" to annex in 10:24.6, and the 220 low hurdles, taken by Bridgewater's Garber in 27.4, and the high jump.

Earl Stevens of Gallaudet established a new meet mark and tied an 11-year-old stadium record in winning the high jump at 6 feet. The stadium mark was hung up in 1931 by Fraatz of C. U. and Corrigan of Villanova.

The specially scheduled mile relay, a warmup for the Mason-Dixon event in the Penn Relays Saturday, went to a makeshift C. U. team in 3:38.2. The Cards used only one regular, Charley O'Keefe, who turned his anchor leg in a promising 52.6.

100-YARD DASH—Won by Pierce (C. U.); second, Spangler (Bridgewater); third, Herzog (Gallaudet); fourth, Fuliam (C. U.). Time, 10 seconds flat (meet record, equaled stadium record, old meet record, 10.4, by Cooper (C. U.), 1939).

220-YARD DASH—Won by Pierce (C. U.); second, Weschler (C. U.); third, Bachman (Loyola); fourth, Doyle (C. U.). Time, 22.7 seconds. (Meet record: old mark of 23.1 by Cooper (C. U.), 1938.)

440-YARD DASH—Won by Weschler (C. U.); second, Keller (Bridgewater); third, Huffman (Gallaudet); fourth, O'Keefe (C. U.). Time, 53.2 seconds.

880-YARD RUN—Won by Zuppa (C. U.); second, Huffman (Gallaudet); third, McQuain (Bridgewater); fourth, McKenny (Loyola). Time, 2:01.2. (Meet record: old mark of 2.01.4 by Burnette (Gallaudet), 1937.)

MILE RUN—Won by Doyle (C. U.); second, Elliot (Gallaudet); third, McQuain (Bridgewater); fourth, Mitchell (Bridgewater). Time, 4:35.6.

TWO-MILE RUN—Won by Wood (American U.); second, Flory (Bridgewater); third, Diehl (Bridgewater); fourth, McGee (C. U.). Time, 10:24.6.

120-YARD HIGH HURDLES—Won by Hutton (C. U.); second, Diehl (Bridgewater); third, Seidler (Bridgewater); fourth, Martin (C. U.). Time, 16.5 seconds.

220-YARD LOW HURDLES—Won by Garber (Bridgewater); second, Roberts (Gallaudet); third, Cannon (Bridgewater); fourth, Garner (C. U.). Time, 27.4 seconds.

ONE-MILE RELAY—Won by C. U. Fullam, Jablanski, Goodman, O'Keefe); second, Bridgewater; third, Loyola. Time, 3:38.8.

SHOT PUT—Won by Sliney (C. U.); second, Conlen (C. U.); third, Herzog (Gallaudet); fourth, Ohlson (Gallaudet). Distance, 38 ft. 6½ in.

JAVELIN—Won by Riehl (C. U.); second, Makofske (C. U.); third, Berg (Gallaudet); fourth, Hoeman (Bridgewater). Distance, 162 ft. 3½ in.

HIGH JUMP—Won by Stevens (Gallaudet); second, Diehl (Bridgewater); third, Hutton (C. U.); no fourth. Height, —. (Meet record: old mark of 5.11 by Stevens (Gallaudet), 1939 and 1940.)

BROAD JUMP—Won by Stauffer (C. U.); second, Garber (Bridgewater); third, Breier (C. U.); fourth, Smith (Gallaudet). Distance, 20 ft. 5 in.

POLE VAULT—Won by Riehl (C. U.); second, Butler (Gallaudet); third, Barkman (Bridgewater). Height, 11 ft.

Final score—Catholic U., 80 1-5; Bridgewater, 40; Gallaudet, 29 1-5; Loyola, 8 2-5; American, 5 1-5.

Tribe's Timely Hitting Beats Browns, 4-2

By International News Service

Cleveland, April 21.—Cleveland and St. Louis each made seven hits today, but the Indians made their blows count and beat the Browns, 4 to 2.

The Tribe combined an error and four hits—singles by Les Fleming, Gene Desautels and Roy Weatherly, and Ray Mack's double—to score three runs in the fifth. In the seventh Weatherly's single and Oris Hockett's double gave the Indians another tally.

Until the fifth inning uprising Bob Harris had pitched hitless ball for the Browns. He was relieved by Ken Hollingsworth.

Max Shapiro Stops Frankie Martin

Brooklyn, April 21 (AP).—Maxie Shapiro, 134-pound New Yorker, stopped Frankie (Chief Crazy Horse) Martin, 139, Los Angeles, in the seventh round of a scheduled 8-round attraction at the Broadway Arena tonight.

The fight was even for the first two rounds but then Shapiro, scheduled to meet Joey Pirrone of Detroit in Chicago Friday, centered his attack on the Californian's head until the referee halted the bout.

Uruguay Petitioned To Delay Pan-Am. Games

Montevideo, Uruguay, April 21 (AP). Various groups of sportsmen today petitioned the Uruguayan Olympic committee to request the Argentine Olympic committee to postpone the Pan-American games until the end of the war "as an act of solidarity with the United States." The United States announced its withdrawal last Saturday.

The Uruguay committee is to meet shortly and is expected to approve the postponement proposal. If Argentine refuses the request, it is said Uruguay is likely to withdraw from the games.

Mort Cooper Hurls, Cards Beat Reds, 8-0

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, April 21.—The Cardinals shut out the Cincinnati Reds, 8 to 0, today as Mort Cooper turned in a masterful three-hit pitching performance. His younger brother, Walker, did the catching.

The only blows off the big right-hander were three ineffective singles sprinkled in as many innings by Bert Haas, F. McCormick and Charley Aleno, the Reds' new third sacker.

Eleven of the 12 Card hits were off the veteran Bucky Walters, who was sent to the showers late in the seventh.

Big guns of the St. Louis attack were Enos Slaughter, Frank Crespi and Stan Musial. Slaughter drove in three runs on two hits; Crespi came out of his batting slump for a perfect day of three-for-three and scored three runs, while Musial hit a line drive homer to the pavilion roof in the fifth inning with a runner on base.

Johnny Hopp, Cardinal utility man was hit on the head and knocked unconscious by a thrown ball in pregame practice, but an examination showed the injury was not serious.

Canada Awaits Death of Hockey

Winnipeg, Manitoba, April 21 (INS). Canadian sports circles tonight anticipated an official announcement from Ottawa, sounding the death knell of professional hockey for the duration.

The release of Canadians from military service to play hockey either at home or abroad will be banned, it was reported tonight. With most of the hockey players in service, such an order would mean the end of the sport in the dominion and would seriously effect the professional game in the United States where most of the players are imports.

Faced with curtailments and restrictions this spring, fresh and salt water anglers alike have at times become quite a disgusted lot. With conflicting reports on regulations, restrictions, and closed waters many don't know just which way to turn. This bewilderment arises chiefly because there has been no official Nation-wide announcement in regard to salt-water fishing.

All regulations regarding fishing in salt-water, especially off the Atlantic Coast, are made by the Captain of Ports along the coast. The trouble is that these orders from the Port Captains are by no means identical, and the situation is further complicated by the fact these regulations are subject to change without notice.

Without any guarantee that when you read these lines that the information offered will be correct, here is what you can expect in the way of regulations for the Chesapeake Bay water controlled by the Captain of Port at Baltimore, which cover the bay to the mouth of the Potomac River.

There are rumors to the effect that no night fishing will be permitted. Commander, Abel, Captain of Port at Baltimore, tells us there is no restriction on night fishing as yet, from either boat or pier, except within the boundaries of ports or war plants. Further, the occasional fisherman is not required to have an identification card.

In some sections along the coast it is necessary to possess identification cards. It is quite probable that this regulation will be coast-wise eventually. To sum it all up, you will be able to fish to your hearts content. Your boat captain will know where he can and where he cannot go.

In fishing in the Chesapeake, from the mouth of the Potomac River to the Atlantic, and along the Atlantic Coast from Fenwick Island, Delaware to Cape Hatteras, N. C., no sport fishing of any kind is permitted with or without identification card, night or day. The Captain of Port at Norfolk, said . . . "it is time these fishermen know there is a war on."

The occasional fisherman fishing in the Anacostia or Potomac River down to it's mouth in the Chesapeake, is not required to have any identification card and fishing night or day is permitted. However, in the waters within 100 yards of all Army and Navy activities on the Anacostia or Potomac, no fishing is allowed.

All vessels in these waters are required to have a movement license, also all canoes and rowboats are required to have a P——number, issued by the Captain of Port, 1020 Maine Avenue, Washington, D. C. No vessel shall moor, anchor, or hover near any supporting pier of any bridge over the Potomac or Anacostia Rivers. All operators and crew members of vessels operating on these waters shall be required to have an identification card issued by the Captain of the Port.

There will, of course always be specific regulations for specific territories all along the coast made necessary by local conditions, we shall try to report these as soon as received.

Now with the shad making their appearance in the Susquehanna just below Conowingo Dam, an edict by the War Department closed Conowingo Lake, which is a matter of little import to Maryland or local anglers, as fishing the waters above the dam a Pennsylvania license is required. But, the closing of the dam breast is a blow to both Pennsylvania, Maryland and District of Columbia anglers.

The Susquehanna between this some breast and Hogback Shoals is noted chiefly for its great run of big shad. This shad run annually attracts anglers who come long distances to engage in the sport of taking shad with a fly. This fishing is the nearest approach to salmon fishing found only in Northern waters.

The War Department order does not permit fishing between the breast and the south end of the island below the dam and anglers are warned if this order is not rigidly complied with, the entire river may be declared a closed area.

Last week it was officially reported that Big Hunting Creek, which flows on the north side of the road through the Catoctin Recreational area, recently taken over by the Army for training purposes, would be closed. However, on opening day the Army made a last minute decision and allowed trout fishing to continue on the entire stream in the area. This of course is good news to the trout fishermen. Now the only closed waters are the two forks of Fishing Creek above the reservoir, and Little Hunting Creek, near Thurmont, Md.

Cardinals to Give Balls to Service Teams

St. Louis, April 21 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals' management announced today that all baseballs knocked into the stands at Sportsman's Park during their games and returned by the fans will be sent to Army and Navy camps.

Spectators were asked to give the balls to an usher who will toss them in a large receptacle near the Redbird dugout.

Gobblers Beat W. & L., 8 to 2; Moody Stars

By the Associated Press

Blacksburg, Va., April 21 (AP).—Today was Joe Moody's day. He set the Washington and Lee nine down with three hits in hurling Virginia Tech to an easy 8 to 2 win over the Generals in a Big Six game.

The Red-thatched sophomore from Charlotte struck out 11 men, made three hits in four times up and drove in one of the Gobblers' runs in his best performance to date.

Loyola Errors Help Eagles Score, 10 to 6

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, April 21. — American University put together 9 hits and 11 Loyola errors today to defeat the Greyhounds, 10 to 6, in a loosely played Mason-Dixon Conference baseball game.

Ed Pazourek and Gus Hennegan, Greyhound battery mates, together contributed seven boots, while Rube McNab, American pitcher and lead-off man, rapped out two hits, including a slashing double, to spark his mates to victory.

Pazourek allowed nine hits and held the Eagle batters fairly well in check, but gave up seven walks, made two wild pitches and twice threw wild to the infield to give the Eagles unearned runs.

American took a two-run lead in the first on a hit, walk and two errors, but Loyola tied it up in their half of the inning in exactly the same manner.

In the third McNab doubled, Shortstop Mac Potter walked and Harry Newby, batting in the clean-up slot, slammed out a double to score two for American and came home himself on Catcher Shanty Shephard's single.

Loyola rallied for three runs in the sixth, but the Greyhound defense fell apart and the Eagles got four more runs in the final three innings to put the game on ice.

American U. also contributed four boots to the 15-error total, but they were neither as spectacular nor as costly at Loyola's.

Brann's Challomine Captures Feature at Havre de Grace

Mare Scores By 5 Lengths; Gondalina 2d

Porter Roberts Rides Winner to Easy Victory; Night Glow Finishes Third

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Havre de Grace, Md., April 21.—After failing in five chances this year, W. L. Brann's Challomine met opponents of her sex here this afternoon and galloped off with first money in the Chestertown Purse, featuring the Tuesday show here on the west bank of the Susquehanna River. Carrying the light weight of the party and ridden by Jockey Porter Roberts, the daughter of Challenger II and St. Prisca came home five lengths in advance of her closest rival, G. R. Watkins' Gondalina. Three lengths farther back came Gustave Ring's Night Glow to be third. Only two others competed in the battle of a mile and 70 yards, exclusively for fillies and mares.

Challomine, another of the fit horses being sent postward by Trainer Ed Christmas, was the favorite player's delight. She won as she pleased and her $4.50 mutuel was considered honest and above board. The program, conducted over a fast track, lured 7500 fans to the oval.

Blustering, recent long shot sprint winner, carried the colors of J. B. Belk to the front leaving the gate. The filly lost ground at the first turn but held the lead over Night Glow. Along the back stretch, Roberts steadied Challomine on the inside and Eddie Campbell kept a grip on Gondalina on the outside.

Blustering and Night Glow began to weaken leaving the backstretch and Challomine moved through on the rail to take command. Campbell then brought Gondalina around on the outside to get to the Brann filly. The expected stretch battle between the pair failed to materialize. Roberts shook up Challomine and the filly responded by opening plenty of daylight to the end.

The program was ten minutes late in getting started because Magdala a 2-year-old filly, ran away. She tossed Jockey Joe Deering who was unhurt and galloped back to her own stable, finally being captured. She wasn't a factor in the real running.

The winner turned up in Mrs. A. J. Abel's Dot's Key, an $8 shot who came from behind to defeat the Howe Stable's Four Leaf, the favorite in the group of a dozen. Third in the sprint was Triple Sun, from the William F. Hitt string.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DOT'S KEY, $8.00, $3.60, $3.20; FOUR LEAF, $3.00, $2.70; TRIPLE SUN, $7.75.

DOT'S KEY came out for racing room leaving backstretch, responded gamely to drive and wore down FOUR LEAF in concluding strides. FOUR LEAF shook off TRIPLE SUN to open good lead but could not stay with winner. TRIPLE SUN was first away, had good early speed and weakened gradually in closing stages. OWN SHIP improved position early and then weakened.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1000. For 3-year-olds; claiming. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:09. Off at 3:09½. Winner, Howe Stable's ch. g. (3) by Only One—Kate. Trained by P. M. Burch. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:14⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CASTINE, $11.50, $6.20, $5.40; BAVARDIA, $124.70, $38.10; MALVOIS, $9.30.

CASTINE disposed of SWEET ZACA to take command, assumed good lead and won with speed in reserve. BAVARDIA was well placed from start and held on gamely in closing drive. MALVOIS raced on inside and showed good effort. EARLY SPRING was pinched back leaving backstretch and failed to rally.

Daily Double—DOT'S KEY and CASTINE Paid $74.50

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1200. For 3-year-old maidens. Start good, won handily; place driving. Went to post at 3:36. Off at 3:36½. Winner, R. Sterling Clark's ch. f. (3) by Brantome—Galaday. Trained by V. Mara. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:13⅗.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MARIE GALANTE, $5.80, $3.80, $2.60; HALF CROWN, $5.10, $3.00; TROON, $2.40.

MARIE GALANTE, off in first flight, drove to front entering stretch and drew out in closing test. HALF CROWN was rushed to contention, could not menace winner but was best of others. TROON moved up boldly approaching stretch and then hung. SEA SLAVE, off alertly, lacked early speed and came with bold rush in closing test.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $2000. For 3-year-olds; claiming. Start good, won easily; place driving. Went to post at 4:04. Off at 4:04½. Winner, Brandywine Stable's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FREE DOUBLE, $8.50, $4.80, $3.70; STEEL BEAM, $5.60, $4.20; POMPA NEGRI $4.80.

FREE DOUBLE sprinted into good lead on backstretch, withstood a bid from STEEL BEAM and drew out in closing stages. STEEL BEAM was steadied early, came out for racing room and weakened after moving up menacingly. POMPA NEGRI had keen early speed and faltered. CHOP STICKS failed to rally.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $2500. For 3-year-olds and upward, fillies and mares. The Chestertown Purse. Start good. Won handily; place easily. Went to post at 4:31. Off at 4:31½. Winner, W. L. Brann's b. f. (4) by Challenger II —St. Prisca. Trained by E. A. Christmas. Value to winner, $1650; second, $500; third, $250; fourth, $100. Time, 1:44.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHALLOMINE, $4.50, $2.80, $2.30; GONDALINA, $2.70, $2.30; NIGHT GLOW, $2.80.

CHALLOMINE came through on inside to improve position and drew out in stretch run to win handily. GONDALINA was steadied early, came to outside to move up gamely and closed willingly, but was no match for winner. NIGHT GLOW was hard used in early stages and hung in final drive. CELAENO was shut off repeatedly and can do better.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1500. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:59. Off at 4:59½. Winner, N. J. Agnello's ch. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—STURDY DUKE, $19.90, $6.20, $3.70; GINOCA, $3.30, $2.40; LITTLE BOLO, $3.80.

STURDY DUKE, allowed to settle into best stride and not asked for speed for half, responded willingly when put to drive, came wide into stretch and finished under punishment. GINOCA set pace under steadying restraint and fought it out with good courage in closing drive. LITTLE BOLO came out for racing room approaching stretch and weakened through straightaway. JIMSON BELLE closed ground while in first flight and tired.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1200. For 3-year-olds; claiming. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:24. Off at 5:24½. Winner, J. Menendez's dk. b. c. (3) by Michigan Boy—Sun Chevlot. Trained by C. O. Persuson. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:46⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MICHIGAN SUN, $9.80, $5.90, $4.20; FREE TRADER, $5.20, $3.10; DEVILTRY, $3.40.

MICHIGAN SUN was rated for half, was steered wide to get to leaders, assumed brief advantage in stretch and held away to end under hand ride. FREE TRADE was steadied in first flight, responded when urged and fought it out gamely under punishment. DEVILTRY took command over BRIGHT HENRINA at far turn, but weakened gradually thereafter. FOX CUB was squeezed back at first turn, moved up and weakened. CALATAN had no excuses.

EIGHTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1200. For 3-year-olds; claiming. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:51½. Off at 5:51½. Winner, R. Curran's b. c. (3) by Chance Shot—Lady Gibson. Trained by R. Curran. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:46⅘.

At The Post

Selections at Havre de Grace

Dear Al: This track offers another bang-up program today, headed by the $2500 added Aberdeen Stakes, a struggle of 4½ furlongs with 2-year-olds spending their energy. The favorite is likely to be Hygrohour, the juvenile who busted his way to the front and then went on to lead the way home in the Kindergarten Stakes at Bowie. Most of the handicappers and clockers believe Hygrohour is a standout, but I'm not so sure. There was much bumping and dumping soon after the start of that event and Hygrohour was one who escaped trouble. But along that line, we shall see what we shall see. The American Women's Volunteer Services, Harford County branch, will sell war bonds and stamps at the track for the remainder of the meeting. If you are winner, invest in Uncle Sam and then go to dinner. Liberty Patsy, the filly who set the pace in yesterday's third race, is going to Charles Town. And it looks as if we will be betting on Walter Haight up there. Jockey George Woolf has signed to ride Colchis in the Preakness. Here's a paddock story: After Ringmenow had won the first race, a clocker had several daily double tickets riding including one on Ler-Lin. He was talking to a man from the barn of Lar-Lin and he said, "I've got a double on your horse. What's his chances." The man replied, "This horse is a maiden and looks like we'll have to put him in a maiden race. Anyway, this is the first time out for Ler-Lin." The clocker looked around and there was a blonde standing nearby. "Here's a daily double ticket for you," said the clocker, handing the pasteboard to the girl. "If it wins all you will owe me is a kiss." Well, Ler-Lin won and the girl collected the $286.40 payoff. What about the clocker? Why, he couldn't even find the girl to collect the kiss. If she played a hunch she cased another bet yesterday, because the winner of the fourth race was Free Double. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First race—ARGO LASSIE has shown speed and may be the right one in this field of cheap maidens. RENOWNED showed a fair race last out and is dangerous. ATHELCARE to take care of the show end.

Second race—WISBECH has had two outings at this track and is now ready for a bang-down effort. Looks like the day's best. MEMORY BOOK deserved a chance off that last. SIR LANCELOT for the show money.

Third race—MISRULE is fit and ready for the best. This company suits and I'm going to string along. HORNBLENDE tossed off that last in the closing sixteenth and promises to be close today. BRIGHT CAMP had a rough trip last out.

Fourth race—COUSIN NAN comes from a good barn. Has plenty of speed and seems likely to down this kind. HARDY BUD'S recent effort was a sizzler. REHEARSAL can improve on that last.

Fifth race—TRUE NORTH had a lot of trouble in the Bowie Kindergarten and if he gets clear sailing today, he might reverse the order on HYGROHOUR. The latter is a good one, however. SHIP SIGNAL is better than generally rated.

Sixth race—There are courses for horses and this is JAY JAY'S track. I'm forced to string along with the veteran. POMPION ran off with a sprint here in the fastest time of the meeting. CANROLL is an upset possibility.

Seventh race—WHITE FRONT made his move too soon and weakened after getting to the front in that recent try. I took for different handling today. MIGHTILY is a threat among these. GOLDEN MOWLEE to take care of the others.

Eighth race—SUNPHANTOM appears the best of those gathered for the day's finale. BATTLE WON and RED MARS to take care of the place and show awards.

Best bet—WISBECH.

G. E. Foresees Billion-Dollar War Output

By the Associated Press

Schenectady, N. Y., April 21.—General Electric Co. expects to produce approximately a billion dollars worth of highly diversified war materials this year, President Charles E. Wilson said today.

Wilson, in a statement at the annual stockholders' meeting, said last month's output was at an annual basis of 860 million dollars "without the benefit of new plants not yet in operation and without complete use of recently added facilities."

Meeting Schedules

"Notwithstanding the magnitude of the task we so suddenly assumed," he asserted, "I am happy to report that in practically every important item production is meeting the victory program schedules set by the service departments of the government.

"In a number of outstanding items, production is considerably ahead of schedule requirements."

The company president "repeated for the record" the offer to make available any of General Electric's designs and techniques that may be required for the Army or Navy, for manufacturing by others, whether patented or unpatented.

"Men who go to war not only give their time and money to their country, but some part of themselves. In this emergency corporations can do no less.

Net Slightly Lower

Wilson said the company's net profit in the first quarter amounted to $10,300,000, equal to 36 cents a capital share after all charges and taxes had been provided for. This compared with profit of $11,400,000, or 39 cents a share in the first quarter a year ago.

A total of 37 million dollars was set aside for Federal taxes out of first quarter profits, an amount 105 per cent higher than last year, Wilson said, adding that officials did not know exactly how much to allow for this form of taxes at present due to proposed changes. In addition, Wilson said, eight million dollars was put away for contingencies, an amount double a year ago.

Goodrich Head Sees Auto Speed Cut Further

New York, April 21 (AP).—It may be necessary to reduce automobile speed limits even more drastically within the next two or three years, John L. Collyer, president of the B. F. Goodrich Co., said today at the annual stockholders meeting.

Emphasizing the urgent necessity of conserving available rubber supplies, Collyer estimated the unworn rubber on the Nation's 30-odd million motor cars would last a year at present rate of use. By reducing driving speeds still further, Collyer said, this supply could be stretched to two or three years on the average.

He said production of the 300,000 tons of synthetic rubber scheduled for 1943 would require "almost a miracle" to accomplish.

Cleveland E. Dodge, vice president of Phelps Dodge Corporation, was elected to the board, succeeding Arthur B. Newhall, who recently resigned as a director and member of the executive committee of Goodrich to accept appointment as coordinator for rubber of the War Production Board.

U. S. Rubber Co. War Orders Soar

Jersey City, April 21 (AP).—Orders for war products received by U. S. Rubber Co. in the first three months of this year exceeded those received in the entire 12 months of 1941, F. B. Davis, jr., president, told the annual meeting of stockholders today.

The dividend question, he said, depended on the amount of Federal taxation, which would not be known until later in the year, and the policy finally to be adopted regarding the company's investments in foreign rubber plantations.

Pointing to the large synthetic rubber program of the Government, which he said was "rapidly taking shape," Davis said:

"The immediate need is for all of us to have great patience and conserve our crude rubber products until the synthetic rubber industry can offset the loss of crude supplies."

Davis pointed out that the company's 1941 record sales of $315,345,328, up 38 per cent over 1940, were accounted for only modestly by war orders.

A. C. L. Railroad Net Leaps to $11,132,471

President George B. Elliott, of Wilmington, N. C., reported a net income of $11,132,471, compared with $1,823,536 in 1940 and $804,074 in 1939.

The report listed operating revenues last year of $67,404,252, compared with slightly over 50 million dollars in 1940. Operating expenses increased from $39,567,508 in 1940 to $46,859,449 in 1941.

Passenger revenue amounted to $11,817,851, an increase of almost four million dollars. The freight tonnage was up 32.9 per cent.

Young Regains C.&O. Railway Board Control

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., April 21.—Robert R. Young, chairman of Alleghany Corporation, regaining control of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, was elcted chairman of the board of directors and of its finance committee today.

The action came immediately after stockholders named five new directors at their annual meeting to replace members Young once classed as allies of Guaranty Trust Co. of New York.

Welcomes New Aide

George D. Brooke, of Cleveland, president of the company, said that because of the burden of his work in the emergency as head of the railway he would welcome the assistance of Young in the direction of the company's affairs. The board chairmanship had been vacant since the resignation of Herbert Fitzpatrick, of Huntington, W. Va., a year ago in an effort to end the dispute between Young and Guaranty.

Robert B. Tunstall, counsel of the company, was promotd to vice president and general counsel by the board of directors.

The new directors are Fitzpatrick; Carl E. Newton, Alleghany counsel; James M. Nicely, of Guaranty Trust, which is trustee for one Alleghany bond issue; Joseph P. Routh, of New York, chairman of the Pittston Coal Co., and William H. Lipscomb, of Leesburg, Va.

They replace Frank B. Bernard, of Muncie, Ind.; J. L. Dickinson, of Charleston, W. Va.; Homer L. Ferguson, president of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co.; Ralph C. Gifford, of Louisville, and J. B. Hollister, of Cincinnati, law partner of Senator Robert A. Taft.

Kirby Back on Board

Allan P. Kirby, of Morristown, N. J., associate of Young in the 1937 purchase of controlling securities in Alleghany Corporation, who succeeded John M. Miller, jr., of Richmond, resigned, as a member of the board last December, was reelected, along with James G. Blain, of the Marine Midland Bank, of New York, trustee of one Alleghany bond issue; George D. Brooke, of Cleveland, President of the C. & O. and two subsidiaries, the Nickel Plate and Pere Marquette; H. B. Erminger, jr., of Chicago; Harvey D. Gibson, of Manufacturers Trust Co., New York; Harry C. Thompson, of the Continental Bank & Trust Co., trustee for another Alleghany bond issue; Brig. Gen. Leonard P. Ayres, of Cleveland, and Young.

Ayres, Gibson and Lipscomb were elected by holders of preference stock, series A, and the other ten by holders of common stock.

When Young lost control of the C. & O. several years ago after a fight with the directors whom he claimed represented Guaranty Trust, then trustee for three Alleghany bond issues, he was removed as chairman of the Nickel Plate. Fitzpatrick's resignation a year ago was in an effort to end the dispute between Young and Guaranty.

Curtiss-Wright To Use Plywood In Transport Plane

New York, April 21 (AP).—Curtiss-wright Corporation will build a cargo-transport airplane for the United States Army Air Force constructed almost entirely of plywood and nonstrategic materials, President Guy W. Vaughan said in issuing the company's annual report.

He added that a large percentage of the work would be subcontracted in the plants of furniture and woodworking organizations.

The report showed net profit for the year ended December 31, 1941, as $25,717,511 compared with $15,746,873 the previous year. Dividends on common shares rose from $1.81 to $3.14.

Shipments increased 169 per cent over 1940 to $373,083,364 which the report described as the greatest volume ever shipped by any aviation company in a 12-month period. Since 1938, Curtiss-Wright has increased production 1127 per cent.

The report said that "incredible" strides have been made toward attaining President Roosevelt's goal of 185,000 military airplanes within the next two years.

WPB Acts to Convert 88% of Textile Mills

By the Associated Press

The War Production Board took an initial step yesterday toward eventual forced conversion of about 88 per cent of the cotton textile industry to war or essential civilian production.

Acting after months of investigation and study, WPB ordered from 20 to 100 per cent of the weaving looms in textile mills now producing various civilian cotton fabrics shifted to manufacture of bagging for sand bags, camouflage cloth and food and agricultural bags.

Cotton mills were granted up to 60 days in which to complete the required change-over, which WPB said was necessary to compensate for losses of burlap supplies, formerly imported from India, and steadily increasing military and farm demands for bagging.

Effect Seen Next Spring

No appreciable effect on civilian fabrics for such goods as shirts, sport clothes, and towels was expected immediately. However, officials predicted that by next spring such fabrics would present a uniformly coarse appearance—particularly apparent, for example, in expensive broadcloth shirts. At the present time, stocks of fine goods are reported heavy.

Other civilian fabrics which will be affected include those for draperies, upholstery, tapestry, outing flannel, athletic uniforms, sheeting and bed ticking.

Textile experts said they expected conversion program to prove a boon to cotton farmers, in the form of an increased consumption of raw cotton and expansion of the use of part-waste and lower grade cotton. Although farmers now have no difficulty in disposing of high-quality cotton, they find little demand for poorer grades.

As a supplement to today's order, which in effect converts about 50 per cent of the cotton textile industry's capacity to war order, WPB will issue future instructions specifically assigning additional capacity to production of certain essential civilian fabrics—such as denim, used in manufacture of overalls and work clothes.

Will Take 88 Per Cent Capacity

Issuance of these orders will bring the total war or essential civilian output of weaving mills to slightly more than 88 per cent of capacity. The percentage remaining will be devoted to ordinary civilian production.

Reaction from the cotton textile industry was generally favorable although some spokesmen declared it would be difficult to convert some types of looms to production of bagging. They welcomed the definite statement of Government requirements and the implied promise of priority aid in meeting them.

Russell Fisher, secretary of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, declared no radical change was indicated in operation of New England mills. Between 50 and 60 per cent of the industry's capacity in that area now is devoted to war orders, Fisher said.

Ark. Diamond Mines To Be Worked Again

Hot Springs, Ark., April 21 (AP).—The North American Diamond Corporation of Indianapolis will start immediately a million-dollar development program in the long-idle Arkansas diamond mines near here to obtain stones for war purposes.

Full-scale operations have not been attempted since about 1920. Accurate figures on the production were never made public but a Smithsonian Institution report in 1923 said that 10,000 diamonds with a conservative value of $150,000 had been taken from the field. The field was discovered in 1907.

Simplification Plan Of Erie R. R. Approved

By the Associated Press

The Interstate Commerce Commission gave the Erie Railroad Co. authority yesterday to purchase virtually all the property of ten subsidiary companies and to assume the liability of the securities of two of them, aggregating more than ten million dollars.

The subsidiaries are terminal, dock and real estate companies.

Tobacco Issue Priced at Par

By the Associated Press

New York, April 21.—Morgan, Stanley & Co. announced today the 100 million dollars in American Tobacco Co. 20-year 3 per cent debentures would be priced at 100 when they are offered to the public, possibly on Thursday of this week.

Morgan-Stanley spokesmen said a group of 146 underwriters and an additional 500 selling agents would handle the offering. The underwriting syndicate and the offering itself are among the largest under the Securities and Exchange Act.

Proceeds from the sale will be used to put the company on a long-term basis through retirement of $12,977,000 or 2.45 per cent serial debentures maturing to 1948; 16 million dollars of 2 per cent notes and $75,700,000 in short term bank loans.

The issue was issued April 10 with the SEC, the underwriters said, and Tuesday would be the earliest possible date for the offering, the underwriters said.

A cumulative sinking fund of three million dollars a year, commencing in 1943, is to be established to be applied to purchase or redemption of the debentures.

Moffat Opposes Construction of Alcohol Plants

By the Associated Press

Fraser M. Moffat, jr., head of the chemical branch of the War Production Board, told Senators yesterday he would not recommend construction of new alcohol plants in the grain belt because existing production facilities were adequate.

He told a subcommittee of the Senate Agricultural Committee that there was an apparent need for 365 million gallons of alcohol next year for all military and industrial purposes.

Pork Rationing Deemed Likely By Henderson

By the Associated Press

Chairman Fulmer (Democrat), of South Carolina, made public yesterday a letter from Leon Henderson in which the price administrator asserted rationing of pork may "have to be resorted to if the existence of smaller sellers is to be preserved."

Henderson's letter was in reply to a complaint by Fulmer against inequalities in pork ceiling prices established by the Office of Price Administration. Carolina packers had protested on the ground that large Chicago packers "having advance knowledge" of the price order had been able "to bid up prices of hogs in South Carolina to a point where local packers can buy the hogs only at a great loss."

While an OPA amendment to the original price-fixing order "will give relief to smaller packers," Henderson wrote, other factors are holding up prices.

"Chief among them," he said, "is the great pressure which the Government has placed upon certain sellers by demanding that they furnish for export to our Allies 40 per cent of the entire United States pork production of the next few months."

"It is difficult completely to relieve this pressure solely by price-fixing," Henderson wrote. "When a great scarcity exists, other expedients, such as rationing, may have to be resorted to."

Food Trade Parley Called Here by OPA

The Office of Price Administration yesterday called a four-day conference with representatives of the food trade, beginning here Wednesday, to discuss general price problems at the manufacturer, wholesale and retail levels.

OPA announced that three manufacturers, three wholesalers and three retailers—including representatives of independents, cooperatives and chain stores—from each branch of the trade had been invited to attend. Trade branches to be represented will include fats, oils and soaps; canned fruits and vegetables, coffee, packaged cereals, prepared flour mixes, citrus fruits and juices, tea and spices, household supplies, cocoa and chocolates, dried fruits and jams, jellies and preserves.

Let Us Make It For You In Indiana

● Indiana manufacturers, both large and small, are ready and waiting to be of immediate service on almost any kind of war-production job.

There is a wide variety of manufacturing equipment ready to do your war work right now—and much that can be adapted to your needs very quickly.

In our offices we have access to the data you may be needing for quick production of some essential part on your war order. We know what can be done in Indiana and who can do it. We'll gladly tell you.

No red tape. If you want action write us at once.

Security and Economy Here

Indiana is geographically the center of almost everything you want for today's war-time conditions, as well as those of the peace that is to come.

Nearer than most any state to both markets and materials, yet removed from congested areas and seaboards, manufacturers find maximum security, economy, and profit here.

Extra Floor Space Available, Too

Also, our current surveys show 200 industrial buildings, with 10,000,000 sq. ft. of floor space, immediately available in 92 Indiana cities and towns.

While Indiana's advantages have been strongly emphasized by large defense developments here, most Indiana communities are still free from the living and labor problems common to congested areas elsewhere.

Every city and town in Indiana shares the State's remarkable advantages for industry.

On the Civilian War Front

By the Associated Press

Deliveries of iron products may be made only upon military priority ratings after May 15, the Government directed yesterday. At the same time steps were taken to suspend deliveries of steel plates to users having supplies on hand.

The priority action of the War Production Board brought the country's 2700 iron foundries under restrictions which previously applied only to steel. No iron or steel products may be delivered except on orders carrying an A-10 preference rating or higher.

The board's iron and steel branch followed up a survey of steel plate in the hands of shipyards and other consumers with announcement that those having excessive supplies would receive no plate allocations in May.

Acting to assure supplies necessary to keep machinery in good running order, the War Production Board yesterday granted high priority ratings on deliveries of operation, repair and maintenance materials to plants processing or producing dairy products.

One rating (A-2) is assigned to materials needed for emergency repairs to avert spoilage "due to an actual or threatened breakdown of operations;" a lesser rating (A-3) is assigned materials required for normal repair, maintenance, operation or replacement.

Neither rating can be used to obtain materials for additions to or expansion of present operations.

Manufacture of all rubber-tired farm machinery, except harvester-thresher combines, must be stopped April 30, the War Production Board ordered yesterday. Production of the combines must cease July 31.

Included under the April 30 deadline are all farm tractors requiring rubber tires.

WPB officials said additional time was permitted makers of combines because a new small-size machine had been developed requiring rubber tires for complete efficiency. Manufacturers now are endeavoring to perfect a satisfactory substitute for rubber in the special tires used.

W. Walter Timmis, chief of the WPB plumbing and heating branch, ruled officially yesterday that gas cooking stoves were subject to the Government order freezing retail sale of plumbing and heating equipment.

A member of the WPB legal staff held Saturday, in an unofficial interpretation, that such stoves were not covered by the freeze.

However, Timmis pointed out that gas ranges came within the definition of plumbing equipment "of a type used in, or connected to, a water, sewer, or gas system."

Plumbing and heating equipment costing more than $5 may not be sold at retail without military priority ratings, under terms of the freeze order.

The Office of Price Administration yesterday issued a permanent price ceiling for silk waste, now being used only for manufacture of powder bags and other military purposes, at the price levels established in a temporary order.

The prices are substantially the general market prices prevalent in July, 1941, when President Roosevelt froze Japanese and Chinese funds in the United States. Silk imports ceased shortly thereafter.

Frank Croucher back to the line-up the moment that Croucher's sore arm permits him to throw. The Nats' double play production has been virtually nil in their first eight games of the season, and Harris expected that the presence of Croucher will steady potentially brilliant Repass.

Campbell, Estalella and Spence are now a triple delight to Harris. Bruiser Campbell and his famed clutch-hitting qualities are justifying the clean-up hitting job he has been assigned, and Spence has been poison to enemy pitching with men on bases. He is also giving the Nats center field protection of the kind they haven't had since Sammy West was roaming far and wide and throwing strikes back into the infield.

Estalella's hitting is little less than amazing. The little Cuban is batting .407 and he hasn't trifled much with singles. Seven of his 11 blows have been two-baggers and one a home run. He has batted in only three runs, but he has figured in at least a dozen. If the Nats ever acquire a third baseman who can field, Estalella is surely ticketed for an outfield job.

Leonard, who failed to win his first start when he pitched a ninth-inning home run to Bob Johnson in Shibe Park, will take his knuckle ball to the mound against the Red Sox tomorrow. . . . Washington fans will be getting their first 1942 glimpse of Batting Champion Ted Williams and their first look at Johnny Pesky, sensational rookie shortstop of the Red Sox. Today's game was called off at 2 p. m. on account of Boston weather. . . . The Nats were able to return to Washington on an afternoon train only by courtesy of the Red Sox, who turned over one of their special cars to the Washington club, which is being plagued by a shortage of rail transportation. . . . There has been only one base stolen this season against the throwing arm of Jake Early and Al Evans.

G. W. High's Track Squad Bows to Blair

A fast finish in the field events gave Montgomery Blair High, of Silver Spring, a 68½ to 60½ track victory over George Washington High of Alexandria yesterday on the latter's field.

Pacing the late drive was Berry, a stellar weight man, who stole individual scoring honors with 13½ points. He was best in the shot and discus, finished second in the javelin, and shared a tie for third in the high jump.

100-YARD DASH—Won by Renshaw (G); second, Bell (G); third, tie between Reece (G) and Briggs (B). Time, 0:10.2.

220-YARD DASH—Won by Renshaw (G); second, Bell (G); third, Briggs (B). Time, 0:23.2.

Blair, 68½; G. W. 60½.

Chanute Field Nine Illinois' Victim, 8 to 1

Champaign, Ill., April 21 (AP).—The University of Illinois baseball team won its fifth game in eight starts today, turning back the Chanute Field Planesmen, 8 to 1, behind the eight-hit pitching of Bob Roth.

It was the first defeat in three games for the Planesmen.

District Court No. 2764. Notice and order of publication to property owners assessed for benefits. Notice is hereby given that the jury in the above entitled cause returned its verdict therein on the 15th day of April, 1942, and by said verdict assessed benefits against the following lands or parcels of land, in the following amounts: SQUARE 5772—Lot 761, $175.00; Lot 722, $75.00. Therefore, it is by the Court this 21st day of April, 1942, ordered that the objections to said verdict of property owners assessed for benefits (no part of whose land was condemned in this proceeding) be filed in said cause on or before the 18TH DAY OF MAY, 1942; otherwise said verdict will be finally ratified and confirmed upon the application therefor by the petitioners in said cause: Provided, however, that a copy of this notice and order be published once in each The Washington Post, the Washington Evening Star, and the Washington Daily News, newspaper published in the District of Columbia, at least ten days before the said 18th day of May, 1942. EDMUND C. EICHER, Chief Justice. A true copy. Test: (Seal.) CHARLES E. STEWART, Clerk. By E. B. DERTZBAUGH, Deputy Clerk.

JOE PALOOKA — Farewell to Steve — BY HAM FISHER

ALL MEN RETURN QUIETLY TO YOUR QUARTERS---THE HUNS WILL BE OVER HERE IN A HALF HOUR.
THEY MUST HAVE HEARD OF THIS SHOW---BUT THEY'LL BE OUT OF LUCK---HOWEVER--- THERE WILL BE NO MORE FIGHTS---SHOW NO LIGHTS--- NO SMOKING---
BOY! I HEAR YA KAYOED 'IM--- TELL ME ABOUT IT---
I AIN'T EVEN GOT TIME FER A SHOWER--- WE GOTTA GO.
G'BYE STEVE-- GOOD LUCK AN' GOD BLESS YOU-- AN' IF YOU SEE MOM AN' THE FAMILY FIRST---GIVE 'EM ALL MY LOVE--
SURE, JOE--' $--UH ---I MEAN SURE.

WINNIE WINKLE — It's a Long Pull — BY BRANNER

MR. WINKLE, I MAY AS WELL CONFESS THAT I'M MADLY IN LOVE WITH YOUR DAUGHTER!
THAT'S FINE, DAN, AN' I DON'T MIND TELLIN' YOU THAT I'M WITH YOU!!
APR.22
BUT THE TROUBLE IS, I'VE ALWAYS BEEN GIRL-SHY! I DON'T KNOW HOW TO TELL WINNIE THAT I LOVE HER!
H'MMM! YOU'LL HAVE TO GET OVER THAT!!
I WALK AROUND ALL DAY WITH MY FEET ON THE GROUND, BUT WITH MY HEAD IN THE CLOUDS!
THAT'S BAD---
- YOU'LL HAVE TO PULL YOURSELF TOGETHER!!
HUH!!

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY — BY CLIFFORD McBRIDE

JANE ARDEN — Warning — BY MONTE BARRETT and RUSSELL ROSS

SUPERMAN — The Mystery of the Mystifyinng Matches — BY JERRY SIEGEL and JOE SHUSTER

1942, The Register and Tribune Syndicate
4-22
TRYING TO TRACE "THE TURK", JANE QUESTIONS THE APPARENTLY HARMLESS OLD ELEVATOR MAN, CALLED "HAPPY"!
IF MR. SMITH DROPPED SOMETHING, JUST GIVE IT TO ME—I'LL TAKE IT UP—
I'D BETTER TAKE IT MYSELF—YOU SEE I MAY BE MISTAKEN—IT WAS THIS PURSE—
I'LL TAKE YOU UP—SO YOU THINK HE DROPPED A LADY'S PURSE—HEH-HEH-HEH!
IT'S A STRANGE THING FOR A MAN TO DROP!
SO—THE RED PURSE—AND HE DIDN'T HAVE IT—I'D BETTER RING HIM!
BUZZZ!
THE WARNING—"DOCTOR Z" IS BRINGING ME A VISITOR!

ODD BODKINS — BY FRED FOX and CHASE CRAIG

ANOTHER MOMENT AND THIS ENVELOPE GOES UP IN SMOKE-AND THE LEER'S SECRET WITH IT!
HOW CAN YOU BE A TRAITOR TO YOUR OWN COUNTRY?
THERE ARE PLENTY OF AXIS SYMPATHIZERS IN OUR MIDST-WE'VE GOT TO BE ON THE WATCH FOR THEM!
IT WENT OUT! BUT I CAN LIGHT ANOTHER!
MATCH AFTER MATCH IS QUICKLY EXTINGUISHED, THE REASON: SUPERMAN!
(-I'LL HUFF AND I'LL PUFF AND I'LL...!-)
I CAN'T UNDERSTAND IT! AS FAST AS I LIGHT THEM, THEY GO OUT! ONLY ONE THING TO DO. TEAR UP THE LETTER!
-AND I WOULDN'T ADVISE THAT!
THE WHOLE ARMY CORPS IS WAITING FOR JUST ONE EGG!
GENERAL, MAYBE IT'S BECAUSE SHE HASN'T EATEN! A HEN CAN'T LAY EGGS ON AN EMPTY STOMACH!
WE'LL LET HER OUT SO SHE CAN GET SOME FOOD!
HURRY BACK, JOSEPHINE! DON'T WASTE ANY TIME!
TWO HOURS LATER...
WHAT DOES THE MESSAGE ON THE EGG SAY?
PHONE FORT HOOKEY—IT SAYS THAT ONE OF THE GUNS HAS BEEN TAMPERED WITH!
SO A SUBSTITUTION HAS BEEN MADE, EH?
YES, SIR! IT'S MADE OF RUBBER!

Grin and Bear It

By Lichty

"And you'll need this when you happen to dig up some bait in the garden."

Listen! with Glynn

Sheila Vogelle, the young American coloratura soprano who made her operatic debut with the Chicago Civic Opera only a couple of months ago, will have her radio debut tonight when she's heard in "Great Moments of Music" over WJSV and the Columbia network at 10:15 p. m.

Miss Vogelle is a native Chicagoan and a recent graduate of Northwestern University. Before her operatic debut she sang in musical comedy on the West Coast.

She'll be heard with Jean Tennyson, Jan Peerce, Robert Weede and the symphony orchestra conducted by George Sebastian in excerpts from the popular opera, "Mignon," written by Ambroise Thomas from the novel by Goethe.

The title role of Mignon, the gypsy girl who doesn't know that she's the daughter of a marquis—all very romantical, this is—will be sung by Miss Tennyson and Miss Vogelle will sing the part of Philine, the actress and coquette who is Mignon's rival for the affections of Wilhelm Meister, the well-to-do young man who, oddly enough, also seems to be quite popular. Jan Peerce, tenor, does Wilhelm Meister, and Robert Weede, baritone, enacts the role of Lothario, the mad minstrel who doesn't know that he's a marquis.

If all this sounds somewhat confusing, the consolation from the fact that it's quite musically attractive and that the highlights from the opera which you will hear will include the overture, the arias, "Connai-tu le pays?" "Adieu, Mignon," "Je suis Titania," "Romance," the berceuse and the trio.

Contract Bridge

Today we offer two questions composed by Sam Fry, jr., a champion and leader of the Master Solvers' Club, a department of Bridge World Magazine.

♠ A K 10 7
♡ none
◇ A 8 3
♣ A Q 9 7 5 4

The bidding has gone:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♣	Pass

What call do you make?

2. With neither side vulnerable, you are sitting South and hold these cards:

♡ K 6 4 2
◇ K 7 5 2
♣ K 8 6 2

The bidding has gone:

North	East	South	West
3 ♣	4 ◇	?

Answers to Quiz

1. "Bid three diamonds," advised Sam. "This is the only bid now available to us which will 'prove' anything. True, partner has given minimum responses to our opening club bid and spade rebid; but, nevertheless, we still would be cowardly to sell out with a hand as strong as this. Game still remains very much of a probability, and a slam is not out of the question.

"South may have very little and yet may have it in the right suits. The crucial consideration is to impress South with the real strength of our holding and at the same time to give him the best possible picture of our distribution, specifically our complete lack of strength in hearts. His next response should point the way to the best contract."

2. Sam wants you to be sure to pass with this hand. "This is a simple question," he says, "but in my opinion would probably trap a great many players in the actual heat of battle.

"The singleton of partner's suit, the length in the opponent's suit and the two side kings would make average players very bullish, but the fact is that they would be foolish to say anything with this holding. For one thing, there would be no assurance whatsoever of defeating four diamonds; for another, a double would stop the opponents when they might well be on their way to higher levels. The best tactics here call for a meek and fast pass!"

War Plant Profit Small, Builder Claims

By the Associated Press

Arnold Hanger, vice president and treasurer of the Silas Mason Co., of New York City, general contractor for a Government shell-loading plant near Minden, La., said yesterday that the company would realize a profit of only 1.6 per cent on the job.

The profit motive was reduced minimum, he told a House Military Affairs Subcommittee investigating the project.

Hanger said the company, upon completion of the project, would have received $441,765 in fees, which he said would represent 1.6 per cent of the 27 million dollars estimated final cost. Hanger explained later that the figures did not include another contract under which the company will operate the plant for the Government.

Over the protests of the company representatives, Ralph Burton, counsel for the committee, submitted a typewritten statement, purporting to have been reports from progress clerks on the job which cited "numerous delays" resulting from shortage of material and lack of plans.

Charges of excessive costs in road construction at the plant were denied by R. L. Telford, general manager for the contractor.

Telford testified the 87 miles of road within the area of the Louisiana ordnance plant cost more than similar roads built under normal conditions, but asserted the heavy costs were incurred because "roads had to be built and rebuilt," since it was necessary to move heavy equipment over newly started roads, and "we had to work, rain or shine," to get the plant in operation within the nine-month period set by the Government.

He estimated the total cost of the 87 miles of road, all but 18 miles of which had to be cut from wilderness, would run $3,200,000, or about $47,000 a mile.

He denied another charge that some departmental heads were instructed to ignore requests from Army Engineers and other Government officers when they sought information concerning the project.

Pick Up Fares Beyond Zones, Buses Ordered

Amendment of rules affecting the Capital Transit Co.'s express buses to permit passengers to board as well as leave buses in areas beyond express zones was ordered yesterday by the Public Utilities Commission.

The change, according to Chairman Gregory Hankin, was made as a step toward getting more use out of buses now in service. Under the previous regulations, drivers of express buses were permitted only to discharge passengers after traversing the designated zones.

Hankin said the order came as a result of complaints from citizens that express buses often had seats to spare after the express zones had been passed.

The P. U. C. also ordered a change in the route of one bus line, in response to protests of citizens living in the Veazey and Thirty-eighth Street Northwest section. Henceforward, the commision ruled, outbound buses will travel via Reno Road, Veazey Street, Thirty-ninth Street and Yuma Street. Inbound, they will move via Yuma, Thirty-eighth and Van Ness Streets and Reno Road.

HOMER MAKES SELF AT HOME—Kitty Casey holds the homing pigeon that flew into her office at 1734 New York Avenue yesterday

Everyone was hard at work yesterday afternoon in the WPA employment division located on the seventh floor of 1734 New York Avenue Northwest, that is as hard at work as could be expected on a warm spring afternoon when the buds were bursting.

Then . . . in flew a pigeon.

Just like that, he zoomed through the window and landed on a desk. A. F. Smith, in charge of the section, just looked at the pigeon and the pigeon just looked at A. F. Smith.

Matters became more complicated when the pigeon failed to find the window and began fluttering and banging about the room making that funny little throaty noise pigeons make.

Since no one knew what to do with him (or her?), the birdie was sent back to the great green outdoors and work went on as usual.

Again everyone was as hard at work as could be expected on a warm spring afternoon when the buds, etc., when . . . in flew another pigeon.

Could be it was the same one but everyone seemed to doubt it. All agreed that most blue and gray pigeons look alike. At any rate they figured as one clerk put it, "What the heck, this can't go on forever."

The bird was placed in an empty wastebasket with a chair over the top while the employes put their heads together to decide what should be done. "Why not call The Washington Post," said one. This was done.

This was done.

Once again everyone settled down to work as hard, etc., only with a wary eye on the window.

'A Tingle in Every Jingle,' Is Motto of War Slogan Man

San Francisco.—If this country's war spirit doesn't rise to white heat it won't be for lack of effort on the part of J. Henry Smythe, jr.

Author of a thousand slogans in the first World War, Smythe—also known as "the man who looks like Roosevelt—is busy turning out new patriotic punch lines at a rate that sometimes reaches 150 a day.

He originated the widely printed "We're In It, Let's Win It!" But he concedes this is a natural and that other claimants may have thought of it independently.

Smythe's first rousingly successful slogan simply said "Buy and Keep Liberty Bonds." The Treasury of 1917-'18 war days liked that "Keep," however, and the words were plastered all over the country.

His first mass production of the present war is some 400 lines or jingles promoting defense bonds and stamps. Samples:

"Buy Bonds or We Lose!
"Be Loyal and Choose!"
"Back our millions With Billions!"

A professional flag waver and proud of it, Smythe does a good deal of cheer leading at luncheon clubs. He has just composed a college-type warwhoop which runs:

"Give the Axis the Ax—the Ax!
"Give the Axis the Ax—the Ax!
"Ax the Axis! Ax the Axis!
"U—S—A!"

Rejected by the Army in 1917 for poor vision, Smythe became an overseas lieutenant in the Red Cross and prolifically turned out slogans for home, British and French consumption.

Between wars Smythe writes books for children and slogans for worthy causes—among which he includes the Republican Party.

A Message to Washington Homemakers

From The Committee on War Adjustment
Washington Board of Trade

HELP RELIEVE TRAFFIC CONGESTION BY SHOPPING BETWEEN 10 A. M. and 3 P. M.

An important and urgent way in which Homemakers who are free during the day can help Washington's War Effort is to do their downtown shopping between the hours of 10 AM. and 3:00 P.M.

Before 10:00 A.M. about 300,000 persons are going to work; after 3:00 P.M. (when stores and transit facilities are over-taxed) those 300,000 are returning home.

Between 10:00 in the morning and 3:00 in the afternoon, traffic is comparatively light—stores are less crowded, and sales personnel better able to serve these members of the public.

Please cooperate with us whenever you can—you will save time and energy—you will help us serve you better, and you, personally, will help Washington's War Effort.
